Democrat Luncheon Guest of Republican Club '70 Per Cent for Him' After Enthusiastic Greeting by G. O. P. Head of Council

Praises People's Patience, Asks for Support That Land May be Happier—Speaks at Bowl and Stadium.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—Southern California today gave Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential candidate, a tumultuous welcome.

His program included two talks. The first was to a Republican club—"70 per cent for him"—where he said he cast his first vote in 1904 for a Republican—Theodore Roosevelt. The second was at Hollywood Bowl and he made a third at the Olympic Stadium, where he was a guest of honor at the colorful electrical pageant.

In a voice that carried clearly to the thousands banked tier upon tier in the natural amphitheater cut into Hollywood Hills, Gov. Roosevelt asked for the support of Southern California.

"I ask it not just for ourselves, but for our children, our grandchildren and our great-grandchildren, so that our land may be a happier and safer place to live," he said. "Give me your help."

The speech was made after a drive through the flowered streets of the movie colony. Later he motored back to his hotel for conferences and dinner before his appearance at Olympic Stadium, and a midnight departure for Williams, Ariz.

When Gov. Roosevelt started speaking at the Bowl there were several sections of unfilled seats in the top tiers, but all the way down the slope men and women were closely massed. The capacity of the bowl is 25,000.

Isadore Dockweiler, former National Committeeman for California, welcoming the New York Governor, evoked fox-hunting yells when he predicted the electoral vote of California would be in the Roosevelt column in November.

"Three Pre-eminently Great."

William Gibbs McAdoo, who made certain the nomination of Roosevelt in Chicago by casting the California delegation's vote for Gov. Roosevelt, said: "I can only think of three pre-eminently great men nature has produced in the last century. They were Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson. Frank bids fair to be ranked with them, but he won't have the supreme test until he takes the oath of office next March fourth.

"If you are on a sinking elephant in the middle of the stream and a sturdy mule comes swimming past, isn't it the sensible thing to climb on the mule and let him take you out?" The crowd sent echoes rolling back from the hill when he presented Gov. Roosevelt.

How People Carry On.

"Senator McAdoo," Gov. Roosevelt began—and the vast crowd cheered. He repeated the statement he had previously made that he was "not making a campaign trip." "I've come," he said, "to talk with the every-day people, the average people—the forgotten people.

"I've come to Southern California to find out and talk with you about the wonderful things you have done for progressive government. I, too, believe in those principles."

Gov. Roosevelt said he had found "from the beginning of the trip to this moment evidence that, through unemployment and a sore economic distress, people have carried on with a minimum of complaint and a maximum of patience."

Faith in Nation's Recovery.

"It must rest on faith," he said. "Faith that out of our great resources must be found a solution.

"I have seen that faith stretching in an unending panorama across the continent. I saw this faith in Denver and Salt Lake and Cheyenne. I saw it in Montana, where the miners have been hit by the same thing that has hit the farmers and the cattlemen. I saw it in the Pacific ports.

"A faith in the economic recov-

Roosevelt Carries Advisers And Fact-Finders on Tour

Two U. S. Senators, Two Economic Experts, One a Banker, in Group of Seven Close Friends of Candidate.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD ROOSEVELT SPECIAL, Sept. 24.—Seven men occupying compartments just ahead of the private car of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential candidate now touring the West, are not much in the public eye and some of them do not even go to hear the nominee's speeches, but they have access to New York's chief executive at all times and have long discussions with him when no one else is about.

They are his advisers and fact-finders, and their activities range from consulting him in the preparation of his major speeches to going out and mixing with the crowds to find out what people are thinking about in the various sections of the country. They are all close friends of Roosevelt and have been for years.

One of them is United States Senator Key Pittman of Nevada. Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, permanent chairman of two Democratic national conventions and another veteran of the United States Senate, is another.

There are two economic experts—an academician and a practical banker. Prof. Raymond Moley of Columbia University presents the academic viewpoint. He was one of the Governor's advisers from the beginning, all through the pre-convention campaign. Prof. Moley, who has had years of experience both as a teacher and a writer on political science and Government, keeps entirely out of the limelight. The banker is Joseph P. Kennedy, Boston and New York, and he, too, stays in the background, but, unlike Prof. Moley, he gets out and meets a lot of people.

Other members of the group are Judge Robert S. Mark, Cincinnati, who traveled over the country with Roosevelt in 1920, when the Governor ran for Vice-President; J. Brucer Kremer of Montana, from point of service the oldest member of the Democratic National Committee, and Breckinridge Long, third Assistant Secretary of State under Woodrow Wilson. All three are old friends of Gov. Roosevelt and he consults them frequently.

3 CONVICTS KIDNAP GUARD AND ESCAPE AT STATE PRISON

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 24.—Three long-term convicts, one a murderer from St. Louis, kidnaped a prison guard and escaped from the State penitentiary at 7:45 o'clock tonight in a State-owned automobile.

They were Joe Szwabo, 29 years old, St. Louis; George Kowertz, 52, and Alvin Hepzer, 26. Police departments of surrounding cities were notified at once.

Kowertz and Hetzer, attendants at the prison hospital, were sent in an automobile to the women's department just east of the main prison after the Warden's office had received a call that a woman was ill there. Szwabo, a chauffeur, was sent with them to drive the car. The three were guarded by Homer Yancey.

About half an hour later the automobile, a Chrysler sedan, was driven up in front of the Administration offices with the guard and the three convicts inside. It was seen to depart again and investigation at the prison garage disclosed that a message had been left there that the car was going to the new Intermediate Reformatory, about seven miles east of the penitentiary.

As the prisoners had been to the Reformatory on other occasions, this was not considered unusual and a search was not begun until nearly an hour later.

Authorities at the prison expressed the opinion that the convicts had in some manner convinced the guard that they had business at the Reformatory. The guard, however, was without authority to permit the visit, officials said.

Szwabo was chauffer for Parole Commissioner Dwight Brown.

No word had been received of the guard or his captors four hours after thei rescape.

Szwabo shot and killed Bart Vallosio Dec. 6, 1927, in an attempt to hold up Vallosio in his saloon at 2001 Morgan street. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary. Vallosio was shot after his brother, Vincent, opened fire on Szwabo. Police heard the shooting and captured Szwabo several blocks from the saloon.

Police records here show Kowertz was serving a term for bank robbery and state he had escaped from the penitentiary once before, in August, 1929.

FEDERAL JUDGE IN COURT SAYS PROHIBITION IS DOOMED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—The prohibition law is a failure and its days are numbered, Federal Judge William B. Shepherd said today in disposing of two cases of violation of this law.

"The people of America are seeking temperance," he said. "They want neither the saloon nor prohibition, and it is impossible to enforce a law which the people oppose.

3 HELD FOR TRYING TO 'FIX' JURYMAN IN GIDEON'S TRIAL

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 24.—Three Springfield men were arrested here today by a United States Deputy Marshal upon charges of conspiring to influence a member of the jury which tried former Mayor Thomas H. Gideon here in July.

Gideon was tried three times, the last time in July, on charges of conspiracy to violate the Federal prohibition laws. The first trial resulted in a conviction but this was reversed in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The others ended in jury disagreement.

The men arrested today were Paul Oliver, garage operator and Democratic nominee for County Treasurer; Rufus McVay, a bank officer and brother-in-law of Gideon, and Carey Weaver, radio salesman. The complaints, sworn out by United States Attorney W. L. Vandeventer, charges them with having entered into a conspiracy to attempt to influence a juror. An additional complaint accuses Oliver of making an attempt to influence the juror on July 3, the Sunday before the Gideon case was scheduled for trial, at Lebanon. Oliver and Weaver are alleged to have gone to Lebanon in a car owned by McVay.

Vandeventer said he had decided to dismiss the indictment against Gideon, and had obtained permission to do so from Attorney-General William Mitchell, when discovery of the alleged efforts to influence the juror caused him to change his mind.

"Now, of course, dismissal is unthinkable," he said. The case against McVay, Oliver and Weaver probably will be presented to the Federal grand jury that is scheduled to meet Friday at Kansas City, and, if indicted, they may be tried at the regular term of Federal Court which is to open here Oct. 3.

The charges were filed as a result of investigations made by John R. Bulger and C. Fletcher of the Department of Justice.

Homer Griffin of Lebanon was named as the juror whom the Springfield men are alleged to have conspired to influence.

Vandeventer refused to amplify the charges. It had been rumored here for some time that the Government sent Department of Justice agents into Southwest Missouri after the last Gideon trial and interviewed every member of the jury panel called for the Gideon trial.

PIGS SMUGGLED AS BABIES

Carried Into Austria From Hungary for Better Price.

VIENNA, Sept. 24.—Customs authorities disclosed tonight that suckling pigs dressed as babies were being smuggled across the Austrian border from Hungary because the price of pork there was far below the Austrian price.

Authorities said many women were resorting profitably to the scheme of dressing up the pigs as their babies. By first stupefying the animal with a swig of alcohol out of a nursing bottle they avoided a squeal at the border.

MISSING SPONSOR OF AUTO DRAWINGS FOUND SHOT DEAD

Body of Arthur Floescher Discovered in Thicket Near House Springs, New Shotgun Beside It.

OPEN VERDICT BY CORONER'S JURY

Award Called Off on Day of His Disappearance When Agency Was Not Paid for Machine.

Arthur Floescher, missing sponsor of the promotion scheme through which independent merchants of St. Louis gave away two Nash automobiles, was found shot to death yesterday in a thicket near House Springs, in Jefferson County. He had been shot through the head. Beside the body was a new single-barreled shotgun, and near it a note, torn to bits, which could not be deciphered. There were cuts and bruises over his eyes.

St. Louis detectives who went to the scene thought he had killed himself, but a Coroner's jury returned an open verdict.

Floescher had been missing since Friday. The third automobile was to have been given away that night, but the agency had not been paid for it and refused delivery, and no drawing was held.

Body Found by Hunter.

The body was found about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Louis Gartman, 230 East Clinton avenue, Kirkwood, who was hunting squirrels about two miles south of House Springs. On State Highway No. 30, about 200 yards away, was found an automobile which Floescher had borrowed Friday morning from his brother-in-law, Patrolman Lewis Rolf, 4547 Thrush avenue.

Coroner Gibson, who conducted the inquest in a House Springs undertaking establishment, said Floescher had been dead for about 24 hours.

There was no sign of a struggle at the scene, but investigators were at loss to explain the bruises above his eyes. These, it was said, were heavy enough to have rendered him unconscious.

Beside the shotgun was a small stick which the detectives thought Floescher had used to push the trigger of the weapon. The muzzle was in his mouth when the shot was fired.

Rolf testified at the inquest he knew of no reason why Floescher should have ended his life. Floescher, Rolf said, was 35 years old and lived at 4232 McPherson avenue. He was a public accountant before he undertook to promote the Independent Merchants' Sales Plan.

In this activity, police said, he was associated with Edward Dee, who shared an office with him in the Title Guaranty Building.

750 Stores Took Part in Scheme.

Persons familiar with the scheme said about 750 stores participated. These included drug stores, restaurants, filling stations, and various retail establishments. It had no connection with another promotion plan in which the Walgreen drug stores gave away a different make of automobile.

The participating merchants paid the promoters $3 a week as a service charge, and $1.60 for each 1000 coupons which they gave away with each purchase.

It was announced that each week a Nash sedan would be given away to the holder of a ticket to be drawn every Friday night at a moving picture theater. Neighborhood theaters of the St. Louis Amusement Co. participated in the plan and two weekly drawings were held at their theaters.

Last Friday night the drawing was to have been held at the Florissant Theater, but because of Floescher's disappearance, none was held.

Delivery of Auto Refused.

Floescher paid in advance for the two automobiles which were given to the holders of winning tickets, it was said by J. W. Richardson, sales manager of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co.

Fred Koenig, sales manager for the promoters, said last night before the body found near House Springs had been identified as Floescher's that the plan would be continued and that a drawing would be held early next week.

One of the original participants, who estimated the plan had increased his business by 20 per cent, said that he distributed 4000 tickets last week. He estimated that a total of about 1,000,000 tickets on the one car were taken last week but pointed out that all tickets were free, recipients not even being re-

DRIVER CAPTURED IN CHASE AFTER AUTO KILLS MAN

W. P. Lay, Watchman, Hit at Jefferson and Pestalozzi — Motorist Flees, Then Returns.

POLICE RECOGNIZE CAR, PURSUE IT

William P. Lay, a neighborhood watchman, was killed last night when struck by an automobile as he was crossing Jefferson avenue at Pestalozzi street.

The driver sped north, turned east at the next corner, and was lost from sight. Just as police arrived at the scene of the accident, however, the car returned, again speeding north.

A police car set out in pursuit and at Jefferson and Park avenues, a mile away, the driver was arrested. He said he was Edwin Horn, 22 years old, 4439 Nebraska avenue.

Horn, a clerk, was taken to City Hospital, where physicians said he was intoxicated. Police were unable to obtain a statement from him and held him for the Coroner.

Lay arrived at Jefferson and Pestalozzi about 8:30 o'clock in making his rounds. He was struck as he started across Jefferson. A motorist took him to City Hospital, where he was pronounced dead of a fractured skull.

Special Officers Haddad and Schaeffer, attached to the Wyoming Street Police Station, were cruising about in a police car when they got the first flash over the police radio that a pedestrian had been killed at Jefferson avenue and Pestalozzi street.

They were just coming to a stop at that intersection when there came the second broadcast, a description of the automobile which had killed Lay. It was a Chevrolet coupe, and the right headlight had been knocked out of position by the impact.

At that moment a Chevrolet coupe, with the right headlight out of position, drove by. Haddad and Schaeffer swung around after it. When they arrested Horn they found the watchman's flashlight lying between the fender and engine hood of his automobile.

Lay was about 40 years old. He was employed by merchants of the vicinity and lived at 3330 Iowa avenue.

Two men, one getting off a Cherokee street car at Twelfth boulevard and Chouteau avenue, and the other getting on, were struck by a motorist driving south who swerved his automobile into the safety zone and then sped away.

Clark Coutois, 1205 Chouteau avenue, who was getting off the car at the center exit, suffered a hip injury. Harry Cruncleton, who was getting on the car at the front entrance, suffered a skull injury. Both men, who were taken to City Hospital, were knocked against the side of the car by the automobile.

3,500,000 PROSPERITY TOKENS BRING JUST THAT—TO ONE FIRM

Republicans Order 2,000,000 "Hoover Charms," Democrats 1,500,000 "Happy Day" Reminders.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OWOSSO, Mich., Sept. 24.—Regardless of which party wins the national election there is one concern which is wishing that there were more parties and more elections. It is the Burwood carved Products Co. of Owosso.

Orders have been taken by this concern for 2,000,000 "Hoover charms" to be used by the Republicans during the campaign. On one side they bear the inscription, "Hoover Will Pilot Us Back to Prosperity." On the other side, "A New Pilot May Lead to Disaster."

Another order has been received from the Democratic National Committee for 1,500,000 "Happy Day" tokens. On one side of these is the inscription, "Vote for Roosevelt and Repeal" and on the other, "Bring Back the Good Old Days."

The latter side is made up to represent a clock underneath which is a schooner of beer.

NEAR DEATH; PEA IN WINDPIPE

A little green pea in the windpipe of 4-year-old Wanda McCulley, who lives on a farm near Bell City, Mo., menaced her life, Friday, but after a hurried automobile trip to St. Louis Children's Hospital the danger was removed by a simple operation.

Wanda went home yesterday. Doctors said that had the pea remained only a few hours longer the inflammation it caused would have made it impossible for the girl to breathe.

Soviets Levy on Peasants For Share of Their Meats

Moscow, Facing Shortage, Orders Producers to Deliver Up Specified Quantities for Next 15 Months.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 24.—As a result of the shortage in meat the Government issued an edict today under which supplies will be collected from the whole peasantry under a system like taxation.

For 15 months every peasant family must deliver to the Government at fixed prices a certain percentage of the meat produced.

The decree, signed by Joseph Stalin, head of the Communist party, and V. M. Molotov, president of the Council of Peoples Commissars, fixes a fine amounting to the market price of the undelivered meat for failure to obey.

The order was intended to prevent peasants from taking advantage of a recent decree permitting them to sell their surplus production in private markets. Its aim was to make it impossible for them to dispose of more than they should at the expense of their Government contracts.

The Government also canceled the July regulation which released all peasants within 50 kilometers (27 miles) of Moscow from the obligation of delivering their products to the Government and permitted them to sell in private markets, the reason being the enormous increase in speculation by illegal middlemen.

The new meat decree, which applies to the period from Oct. 1, 1932, to Jan. 1, 1934, provides that each individual peasant family must sell to the Government 40 to 50 kilograms (88 to 110 pounds) of meat, depending on the region, during the 15 months.

Each collective farm family must sell 15 to 32 kilograms (33 to 70 pounds) and those collective farms dealing with livestock must follow the following schedule: Dairy farms, 66 pounds of meat for every cow owned Oct. 1; cattle farms, the same standard; pig farms, 264 pounds for each sow; sheep farms, 22 pounds for each ewe.

The collection periods are divided into five quarters, providing for lower amounts at the beginning and increasing them each subsequent quarter. When peasants are unable to deliver beef, pork or mutton the decree stipulates that they may furnish chickens.

The decree also increased from 130,000 to 300,000 tons the meat production assigned state farms during the 15-month period.

Another Government decree refused a petition of certain collective farms which had asked the Government to supply seed grain for next spring. The decree held that all collective and individual farmers were responsible for providing their own seed. It was the lack of seed this spring, caused by the drouth of 1931, that prevented the planting of as much acreage in 1932 as the Government had planned.

TWO SLAIN, OTHERS SHOT IN CHURCH FIGHT

By the Associated Press.

LEESVILLE, La., Sept. 24.—Two men were killed, an infant shot through the head and an undetermined number of persons were wounded in a fight that broke up a revival meeting at a country church at Whiskachitta tonight.

Lee Johnson and Jesse Perkins, 38 years old, farmers, were killed by a fusillade of 40 or 50 shots fired at the church building, officers said. The infant son of Jim Carroll, a farmer, was shot in the head and physicians did not expect the child to recover.

Sheriff D. F. Turner and his deputies, who were investigating the outbreak, said they learned that, while at least 100 persons were listening to the sermon of an evangelist, shots were fired outside the building.

As Johnson's body slumped to the ground, guns blazed inside the church, which was lighted only by the yellow rays of kerosene lamps. The lamps were extinguished.

In the accompanying darkness, several persons started shooting, and the church meeting turned into a stampede. The screams of women and the discharge of the pistols were heard as the worshipers fled for safety.

Sheriff Turner said it probably would be Sunday before the cause of the shooting or the number of casualties were definitely known. He said he was looking for Everett Wisby, farmer, in connection with the shooting.

$45,000 STOLEN FROM BANK VAULT; TELLER DISAPPEARS

Police Seek Man Employed by Allenton (N. J.) Depository 30 Years.

By the Associated Press.

ALLENTOWN, N. J., Sept. 24.—Police broadcast an alarm tonight for the arrest of Morgan N. Buckalew, 47 years old, teller of the Farmers' National Bank in connection with an estimated $45,000 theft in cash and Liberty bonds from a safe in the bank's vaults.

The loss of the money was discovered this morning. Bank officials were perplexed when a time device failed to open the vault promptly at 8 o'clock as usual. The device operated at 9:15 o'clock, an hour after Buckalew was reported as last seen in the town.

State police said bank officials expressed the belief the money was removed last night. Buckalew had been an employe of the bank for 30 years. His duties included closing the vault every night.

The investigation by police today disclosed that Buckalew had signed a confession which he gave to Leon A. Nelson, secretary of the Allentown Building and Loan Association, admitting he had "doctored" records of the association during two years he served as treasurer, to cover a loss of $800. Officers of the Building and Loan Association said he had turned over to them his own shares to cover the loss.

ASHES OF DOG HERO IN WAR MEMORIAL CAUSE TOWN ROW

By the Associated Press.

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Sept. 24.—When Bing, a brindle bull pup, went overseas in an overcoat pocket, he started something which has risen to the proportions of a diplomatic problem for Mayor J. Wesley Lytle.

Bing, mascot of Company D, One Hundred and Thirty-sixth Machine Gun Battalion, grew up in France. He was decorated for bravery by the French Government, became a member of four military organizations and when the war was over, received an honorable discharge and a $60 bonus.

He died two years ago after an automobile accident. The body was cremated and the ashes placed in an urn in Uhrichsville's Memorial Building—the end of Bing, but the beginning of Mayor Lytle's trouble.

The building houses tablets, honor rolls and trophies of Tuscarawas County soldiers from the Civil, Spanish and World Wars. The Spanish and Civil War veterans insist that no dog's ashes, no matter what his war record, be preserved with their honor rolls. Veterans of Company D, recruited in this area, maintain Bing was a buddy and his remains belong where they are.

GANDHI TO END FAST IF BRITAIN WILL COMPROMISE

Mahatma Growing Weaker, Nods Assent to Indian Leaders' Proposal—Next Move Up to Premier MacDonald.

FEAR THAT REPLY MAY COME TOO LATE

Decision on Electoral Plan Hoped for Today—Patient Without Food Five Days — Life May be Endangered in 48 Hours.

By the Associated Press.

POONA, India, Sept. 24.—Lying on his cot under a mango tree in Yeroda jail yard, Mahatma Gandhi raised his weak body on his elbows today and gave a signal of assent to a compromise Indian electoral plan designed to put an end to his announced "fast unto death."

The compromise had been effected by leaders of the caste Hindus and the "untouchables" who had been striving for three days to reach an agreement acceptable to the Mahatma.

When Gandhi smiling weakly, signified his approval, he put the next move up to the British Government. The compromise was immediately cabled to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and on his decision depends whether the nationalist leader will put an end to his fast.

Physicians attending Gandhi tonight announced their patient's blood pressure had increased, and that continued abstention from food 48 hours longer might endanger the life of the 62-year-old Nationalist.

Steadily Growing Worse.

A specialist from Bombay today confirmed the opinion of local physicians that the Mahatma's condition was steadily growing worse, and that his vitality was ebbing rapidly, although there was no indication that the little leader's life was in immediate danger.

Gandhi was so weak today that after he had nodded approval to the agreement reached at Bombay he was not bothered with the detail of watching the formality of signatures.

But his slow nod of assent was none the less binding enough to put the next move up to the British Government, and the Indian leaders, uneasy as to whether the British Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald, would approve the plan soon enough to save the Mahatma, cabled London for a speedy decision.

Hope For Quick Action.

Some of these leaders said they hoped for action by noon tomorrow, the end of Gandhi's fifth day without food. Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, leader in the Indian Nationalist movement, declared the British Government would be making a graceful gesture if it released Gandhi from his fasting pledge by tacit assent and gave him an opportunity to recuperate.

Thus, upon the decision of MacDonald and British Cabinet Ministers rests the point as to whether the little Nationalist leader will put an end to his fast. It was noted today that the Mahatma demanded this approval before he would end his abstention. It was remarked that nearly five foodless days were not enough to impair the keen legal faculty of the former South African lawyer, and that he still appreciated the finer points of the problem he had posed.

Gandhi has taken no food since Tuesday noon. His fast was begun in protest against the separate electorates set up for untouchables under the plan drafted by the British Cabinet.

When this plan was announced some time ago by MacDonald it was made clear that, if the Indians themselves composed their differences and arrived at an electoral scheme which they preferred to the one proposed by Britain, their wishes would be respected. Today's compromise was intended to take advantage of that loophole.

The new agreement provides that 148 seats in Provincial Legislatures be allotted to the depressed classes, for whom a percentage of the seats in the Central Legislature, to be decided by general electorates, also would be reserved.

The selection of representatives would be by a system of primary elections. This system of reserved seats and primary elections would

G. O. P. TO SPREAD MESSAGE IN EAST OF BETTER TIMES

Trained Organizers to Carry Word to Rallies, Improvement in Business Has Set In.

'DON'T ROCK BOAT' WILL BE APPEAL

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Trained organizers will be sent through the Eastern states next month to spread a Republican message that there are "unmistakable signs of business recovery," it was announced tonight at the party's Eastern headquarters.

The plan was made after United States Representative John Q. Tilson, chairman of the Eastern speakers' bureau, had held a three-day conference with state chairmen.

"The purpose of the meeting," Tilson said, "was to allocate time for our various national speakers and to see what could be done to tighten our lines for the final weeks of the campaign.

Tilson Gives Message.

Tilson said the message is as follows:

"For the first time in three years we see unmistakable signs of business recovery. Progress is being made partly as a result of governmental agencies established by the present administration. The next month is vital because it is probable that nothing can now interfere with, or halt our march back to prosperity except a political upheaval.

"A change in administration, policies and measures will certainly delay recovery and postpone the return to their jobs of many millions now out of employment. The Democratic platform and the Democratic candidates stand for lowered tariff duties. Our factory workers who are now out of work or on part time know that such a program will make conditions worse than they are, instead of better. Those who are interested in holding the progress we have made, and in going forward, will not rock the boat at this critical time."

Many Rallies Planned.

Under the plans discussed at the conference, at least 12 public rallies will be held in New Jersey, 10 in Massachusetts, eight in Pennsylvania, while the New York schedule will be determined after the State convention.

To a long list of orators already enlisted in Republican service were added the following: James M. Beck, Representative from Pennsylvania; Mayor J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia; Prof. Robert McElroy, historian and former Princeton professor; Senator Frederick C. Walcott of Connecticut, member of the Senate Finance Committee; Senator Warren R. Austin of Vermont; George W. Wickersham, former United States Attorney-General; Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania; Arthur A. Ballantine, Under Secretary of the Treasury; Julius H. Barnes, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and William J. Mulligan, chairman of the War Committee of the Knights of Columbus.

Sons of two prominent Republicans, Elihu Root Jr. and Charles Evans Hughes Jr., were also placed on the "active list."

Work in Colleges.

Paul Orvis, chairman of the college division at Eastern headquarters, announced that Secretary of the Treasury Mills, Harvard alumnus, and Secretary of State Stimson, alumnus of Yale, had been asked to address Republican groups at their own colleges.

The college division has started to organize clubs in 162 colleges in the 17 Eastern states, and reported progress had been made at Bowdoin, Smith, Syracuse, Vassar, the University of Vermont, Wesleyan, Rollins and Wellesley.

Marshall W. Tuthill, director of the Foreign Language Bureau, on his return from a trip to Buffalo, Chicago and Detroit that "the danger of legislation, which will result in an inflated currency, is the paramount issue among American citizens of foreign birth."

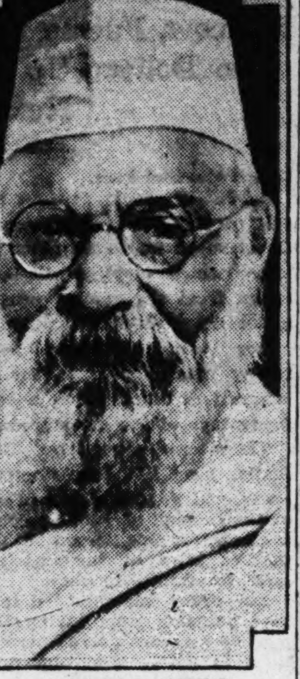
Gandhi's Envoy Issues Appeal To America on Behalf of India

V. J. Patel in Radio Address Refers to Ottawa Conference as "War Council," and Denounces "Curse of Imperialism."

GANDHI BACKER IN U. S.



VITHALBAI J. PATEL.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Vithalbhai J. Patel, envoy of Mahatma Gandhi's Indian Nationalists, appealed to the United States tonight to place India's freedom in the fore of future economic discussions, especially the forthcoming economic conference.

The president of the Indian Legislative Assembly and former Lord Mayor of Bombay, who arrived by steamer today, based a radio appeal, according to the text given out by the India National Congrass of America, on the charge that "indirectly the whole world suffers from the curses of imperialism."

Imperialism, he said, "is the disease whose poison is spreading through the whole world. It is the cause of the world depression."

Patel pointed to the Ottawa Conference, which he said was "really the meeting of a war council, planning ruthless economic war."

"Outwardly the conference proferred to be furthering a new ethical adjustment of empire relationships," he continued. "Its pure purpose was far different. First, it aimed at tightening the grip of exploitation on India. It was to strangle the anti-British trade movement there. And secondly, it was aimed against the United States, more than against any other non-British country."

Patel said that an independent India would increase by ten times its present trade with this country, which he placed at more than $55,000,000 for 1929.

"High tariffs do not frighten us," he declared. "You need no proof, for prison and guns have not frightened us. In spite of the Ottawa duties we are willing and eager to trade with you.

"But because we are not a free nation we cannot take the initiative.

"We cannot break through the wall built around our freedom. All the ships, banks, trade agencies and insurance offices are British, and we cannot have the freedom of trade as we desire.

"It is for you to take the initiative. There is no need to wait. You can take such action as might secure you a substantial customer. This can be done by direct trade arrangements, and we might thus lay the foundation of future economic co-operation between our two countries despite all the attempts of the Ottawa conference."

"Only Mahatma Gandhi stands between India and revolution," said the Indian statesman.

"I want to state India's case wherever I can in the United States," he said. "It will be hard to counteract Britain's propaganda but I will do what little I can."

HEARTY WELCOME FOR ROOSEVELT BY LOS ANGELES CROWDS

ery of the country. A recovery that cannot be made by sitting placidly by and waiting for it to come with the passage of the years."

He spoke of the value of water to the Southern California region. "I am glad that the Federal Government has taken steps to assure that you shall get ample water and in addition hydro-electric power."

Gov. Roosevelt listed the St. Lawrence River, Muscle Shoals, Boulder Dam and the Columbia River as "four great sources of power—all controlled by the people of the United States." "I intend to see to it," he said, "that this great Government's work is expedited to the fullest extent, and I guarantee that the protection thrown around your interest in it shall never be disturbed by selfish legislation."

"Judge me by the enemies I have made," he said, and the hillside audience sent cheers rolling down to him.

"Judge me by the selfish purposes of the Insulls and others who talked of radicalism while they were selling watered stock to the people and propagandizing our schools."

"I promise you an understanding heart. I promise you all my service. I promise you all that is in me. I ask you to help me to lead the United States, not just to a better day but to a higher standard of morality, higher standard of decency and a greater faith in God.

"I ask it not just for ourselves but for our children, our grandchildren and our great-grandchildren so that our land may be a happier, safer place to live. Give me your help."

Roosevelt spoke briefly before the Republican Garner-Roosvelt Club luncheon. "My friends," he said, "during the two weeks since I left Albany, I do not know of any official gathering that has moved me so much as this of my fellow Americans who call themselves Republicans.

"After all, there comes a time when country transcends party. In these difficult days, the solution of four problems depends upon trying to look upon them from a general point of view and not from a party point of view.

"My delay in getting down here to greet you is the fault of Los Angeles. It was to have taken 20 minutes to get from the station to the hotel and it took an hour and a half.

"Such a greeting I had never imagined possible. I am deeply grateful nad I only wish that I could stay among you many months instead of only one day."

Carl Ostrom, president of the organization, in introducing the nominee, said it was originally the Downtown Republican Club, but that a recent vote showed the club was "70 per cent for Roosevelt and we decided to do as Ramsay MacDonald did in England when he left his party to serve his country."

"Although my family for generations have been Democrats," Gov. Roosevelt said, "I cast my first presidential vote in 1904 for a Republican. That was Theodore Roosevelt."

On Gov. Roosevelt's arrival at Glendale, he spoke briefly of his pleasure at being in Southern California. He said: "I am happy to see a sign over there that says, 'Roosevelt G. O. P. Boosters.' If we keep that up, we will make the election pretty nearly unanimous." "You betcha!" shouted a voice in the crowd.

Mayor John C. Porter of Los Angeles was not at the train to welcome Gov. Roosevelt. Porter previously had said he had a speaking engagement that conflicted and that, also, Gov. Roosevelt was a wet and he was a dry. In the absence of the Mayor, Charles H. Randall, President of the City Council, and a Republican, greeted the Democratic nominee.

"We bid you a warm welcome, an enthusiastic welcome," he told Gov. Roosevelt, "and while the key to the city has been temporarily misplaced, we have taken off the gates and the town is yours.

"We have followed with profound interest your exposition of policies and principles on your tour of the nation. As the city which has built and guards with jealous care the nation's outstanding example of publicly-owned water power development, distributing electric light and power to its citizens at rates which are rapidly making Los Angeles a great industrial city, we are impressed and delighted with your attitude upon the issue now at the very forefront in American politics."

The route of the parade took the nominee twice past the City Mall and once the automobile of Gov. Roosevelt rolled close to the windows of Mayor Porter. The shades were tightly drawn. The machines stopped for a moment at the high steps leading into the City Hall, where many persons crowded to catch a glimpse of the New York Governor.

Someone shouted: "Where's Porter?"

Just then, hatless and breathless, the Mayor dashed down the City Hall steps.

Gov. Roosevelt's car was nearly half a block down the street before the Mayor, panting, caught up with it. Gov. Roosevelt stopped the car and extended his hand in warm greeting.

"I—I—I want to welcome you to Los Angeles," panted the Mayor. "I am glad to welcome you."

"Thank you. I am glad to be here," Gov. Roosevelt replied.

In the group that assembled at the train to welcome the nominee was Roy Robertson, disabled war veteran, who during the last days of the session of Congress led several hundred California veterans in their night and day march that continued for three days in front of the Capitol at Washington.

In the machine immediately behind the nominee rode the daughter of Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. William G. McAdoo, and her daughter, Ellen. As the parade passed along Broadway, one of Los Angeles' principal thoroughfares, paper streamed down from the office buildings, and the roar of the crowd echoed back from the walls.

At another point, however, there was a cheer: "Hooray for Hoover."

District Attorney, Postal, Revenue and Other Bureau Heads Are Delving Into the Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Satisfied by a preliminary glance that the collapse of the Insull Investment Trust companies warranted an investigation, United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green today ordered the Government's forces of inquiry to assemble next week and plunge into the task.

The District Attorney summoned as a board of strategy the several chiefs of investigative bureaus to determine "whether any statutes of the United States have been violated" in the Insull financing.

The State has already begun its own inquiry, and hearings by a United States Senate Committee were promised by Senator Peter Norbeck, who announced that the Banking Committee, of which he is chairman, would seek evidences of misrepresentations in the sales of Insull stock.

U. S. Attorney's Statement.

Green issued the following statement:

"I have made a preliminary study of the Insull matters and am convinced they warrant a thorough investigation by the United States Attorney's office with a view to determining whether any statutes of the United States have been violated.

"In order to complete this investigation as quickly as possible, I have called a meeting of the chiefs of several investigative branches of the Government to meet with me to decide what steps should be taken by each department."

One phase of the several investigations is expected to focus on the Insull accounting systems.

Auditors, rendering their preliminary accounting of Middle West Utility Co., had asserted that reports of earnings were inflated by addition of stock dividends and "profits from the sale of securities" which were, in fact, not profits at all but exchanges with subsidiaries. A proper system of accounting would have shown, the auditors said, an actual loss from operations.

Middle West, however, has a hope of salvage through reorganization. It was not thrown into bankruptcy when that action was taken yesterday against two investment concerns, Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities Co.

Seek to Recover Assets.

The referees in bankruptcy began a study of the question of recovering assets, one possible source being the collection of balances due on the purchase of stock by subscribers who never finished payments.

Two receivers for the investment concerns were dropped. They are Patrick J. Lucey and George A. Cooke, who were buyers of Insull utility investment stock with 203 others let in on the "ground floor" by the Insull organization at $12 a share before the stock was put on the market at $27. Many who purchased at the privileged price lost in the subsequent market collapse, although at one time the utility stock reached $149.

District Attorney Green did not elaborate on the trend his investigation would follow. It was generally assumed, however, the postal inspectors, Bureau of Investigation and the Internal Revenue Bureau (the unit which ran down Al Capone), would co-operate in seeking evidence of the use of the mails by the Insull companies in the dissemination of financial statements.

Judge Lindley, who has issued his orders by mail from his home at Danville, Ill., will return to court at Chicago next week. He is scheduled to open bankruptcy hearings on Wednesday for the two investment trusts in which the public lost $300,000,000. Meanwhile the receivers will begin assembling creditors, studying priority of claims and hunting assets, work that will require several months to complete.

TOKIO WITHOUT WORD IN 30 HOURS FROM NOME PLANE

Violent Storm in Bering Sea Reported in Path of Three Japanese Flyers, Bound for U. S.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Sept 25 (Sunday). — Anxiety increased today over the safety of three Japanese aviators headed for Nome and San Francisco on a good will flight, after nearly 30 hours had elapsed without definite news of their progress.

Early today the last accurate advice at hand was timed at 10:16 a. m. yesterday (7:16 p. m. Friday, St. Louis time). The radio station at Ochiishi picked up a message from the plane at that time giving the position as 20 miles off the southern end of Etorofu Island in the Kuriles, 750 miles northeast of Tokio.

The three aviators, Eiichiro Baba, pilot; Kiyoshi Honma, navigator, and Tomoyoshi Ishita, radio operator, hopped off at 5:35 a. m. yesterday from Samushiro in a single motored plane. The flight was sponsored by the Tokio newspaper, Hochi Shimbun, sponsor of two earlier flights that came to grief last year.

A factor that served to heighten anxiety was a report from the American freighter Northland of a violent storm in the Bering Sea.

SEATTLE, WASH., Sept. 24.—A storm was reported on the Bering Sea late today in the path of the Japanese good will plane due in Nome, Alaska. Rain and wind was reported from St. Paul Island, off the Alaska mainland, and from the freighter Northland, east of St Lawrence Island.

All radio stations in the region—American, Russian and Japanese—were attempting to establish communication with the plane, which should have passed Petropavlovsk, on the southern end of Kamchatka Peninsula, at midnight.

Japanese radio stations contacted the plane at 6 o'clock last night about five hours after the takeoff from Samushiro Beach in Northern Japan.

Ships plying the North Pacific were asked to keep a sharp watch for the plane, which carried fuel for about 40 hours.

The United States Weather Bureau here reported the storm was moving eastward toward the Alaska mainland, giving hope that the flyers would have fair weather if they get as far as Bering Sea.

The most hazardous stretch of the flight was before the flyers today. The region from Kamchatka to Bering Sea frequently is stormy.

Von Gronau Off for Hongkong.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 25 (Sunday)—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and his three companions en route leisurely around the world from Germany in an amphibian plane, hopped off today for Hongkong.

Campaign Sidelights

—By—

PAUL Y. ANDERSON

Of the Post-Dispatch Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.

WILL it be necessary to oil up the tanks and lay in a fresh supply of tear gas? The question was thrust before the eyes of the War Department today by the disturbing announcement that Washington is soon to be invaded by a "Farmers' Expeditionary Force." The idea of marching on the Capital to demand relief originated in a meeting of farmers at Sioux City, Ia., two weeks ago, and was an outcome of the farm "strike" in that region.

An official statement by the Farmers' National Relief Conference, issued here today, declares that the march will start simultaneously from more than 20 states, including such widely separated ones as Iowa and Pennsylvania, Nebraska and New Jersey. The farmers plan to make the journey in motor trucks, and to recruit marchers all along the various routes. Arriving here, they will, according to the announcement, "demand that all foreclosures, tax sales and evictions be stopped forthwith." Whether they will come equipped with gas masks is not disclosed.

Hurley Not Welcome in South Dakota.

INCIDENTALLY, the administration continues to hear unwelcome echoes of the eviction of the veterans on the night of July 28. Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican National Committee, has received a letter from the Ex-Service Men's Voters' League of South Dakota, curtly demanding that Secretary of War Hurley be kept out of that State during the presidential campaign.

Hurley is champing at the bit for permission to take the stump. He says he is not afraid of any crowd. Although most of his colleagues are willing to agree to that, they dread the unpleasant publicity which would result from the inevitable heckling. They do not believe it would be politically profitable to have a member of the Cabinet conducting a succession of angry altercations with audiences throughout the country.

Doubt About Mills and Effect in West.

SIMILARLY, there is a deep rift over whether Treasury Secretary Mills should tour the West. Mills seems determined to go, although many Western party leaders are against it. Mills is a forceful speaker, but he is also a perfect specimen of the wealthy Eastern aristocrat. How he would go with the Iowa and Nebraska farmers is an interesting question. My surmise is that Mills will do exactly as he chooses, regardless of outside advice.

Garner Muzzled and Under Control.

THE Democratic strategists seem definitely determined to muzzle John Garner, the party nominee for Vice-President. While protesting the injustice of it, they confess privately that the Republican press has succeeded in selling the public on the idea that Garner is "a wild man" and "a dangerous radical," and that the less the public hears about him during the campaign the better it will be. As I have heretofore remarked, the suggestion that banker Garner is "radical" is rather amusing to Washingtonians—but then, Washingtonians do not vote in presidential elections—except in straw ballots.

That the Democratic chieftains themselves are somewhat uneasy over the possibility that Jack might cut loose in his characteristic vein, is indicated by their unusual course in appointing an unoffical censor to accompany him at all times. The censor is Charley Hand, formerly a New York political reporter and one of the smoothest propositions that ever wrote a political story or managed a campaign. It is a cinch that none of Garner's speeches or statements will contain any inflammatory matter while Charley is wielding the blue pencil.

Smoot Reported in Danger in Utah.

ALTHOUGH still incredulous, the local soothsayers are increasingly impressed by reports from Utah that Reed Smoot, the venerable beet sugar papa, is in danger of losing the Senate seat which he has occupied for the last 20 years. Due to his pervasive influence in many Republican administrations Utah probably has more citizens on the Federal payroll, in proportion to population, than any State in the Union. It has long been accepted by those who love him and those who don't, that he would continue to adorn the Senate as long as he lived.

Nevertheless, virtually every political correspondent visiting Utah has reported that the odds are in favor of Prof. Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah University, the Democrat opposing the tall sycamore of Provo. Smelters are idle, the sheep-raising industry is on its back, and Utah farmers are suffering from the same ills that afflict farmers elsewhere. There is widespread dissatisfaction over the failure of the administration to revive the ailing silver industry. Although Smoot seemed a fixture, a number of seeming senatorial fixtures are being replaced this year.

Thomas' Attacks Alarm Democrats.

DEMOCRATS are genuinely alarmed over the effectiveness of the attacks which Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, is making on Gov. Roosevelt. Some of them have gone to the length of hinting publicity that the Republicans are subsidizing the Socialist campaign—an idea which will hardly find lodgment with those who appreciate the dreadful time the Republicans are having in financing their own campaign. Privately, however, the Democrats comment rather bitterly on the advantage which rests with a candidate who knows he cannot be elected, and consequently is free to say exactly what he thinks.

The Governor, they contend, could be just as frank and forceful as the Socialist if it were not for the necessity of avoiding anything that might alienate votes.

HOOVER, IOWA LEADER CONFER ON ADDRESS

H. E. Spangler Doubts Farmers' Parade at Des Moines Will Be On Big Scale.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. — A guest at the White House for the weekend, Harrison E. Spangler, Republican National Committeeman for Iowa, today told newspapermen he expected the announced demonstration by striking farmers during President Hoover's campaign appearance in Iowa would not materialize on any big scale. Spangler was here to go over plans for the President's address Oct. 4 in Des Moines.

Later, in Des Moines, Milo Reno, head of the Farmers' Holiday movement, said every effort would be made to make the demonstration "an orderly parade of farmers." He added that "there is no intention to insult the dignity of the office of the President of the United States."

Hoover on Monday will speak at the cornerstone laying of the new Federal Postoffice Building here. On Oct. 7, after his return from Des Moines. He will deliver a nationwide radio broadcast as part of a program arranged by Republican women observing it as "Hoover day."

In between other conferences today he had opportunity for discussions with Spangler about his Des Moines address. With Mrs. Spangler, the Iowa committeeman had been invited to come to the President's Rapidan camp, but Hoover canceled plans for this trip to remain in closer touch with affairs.

The Iowan had announced in Chicago yesterday that the President would deliver his Des Moines address in the Iowa State Fair Grounds amphiteater, but said today either the Des Moines Coliseum or the Shrine Temple would be used. Whichever is decided on Spangler said, the other hall will be fitted with loud speakers to serve the overflow crowd. The two auditoriums together will hold about 16,000 people, he said, while the amphitheater accommodates about 26,000.

Tentative plans for Hoover's trip call for him to leave the capital Monday afternoon, Oct. 3, and arrive in Des Moines just a short time before he is to speak. Gov. Dan W. Turner of Iowa, Spangler said, probably will meet the President near the State line.

$225,000 RELIEF LOANS BY R. F. C. TO MISSOURI CENTERS

Largest Allotment Is $189,000 to Kansas City to Meet Deficit In Its Fund to Oct. 31.

MOBERLY AND JOPLIN PROVIDED FOR, TOO

St. Francois, Callaway, Marion and Pike Counties Also Receive From $925 to $14,000 Each.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—On application of Gov. Caulfield, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation today made available the following amounts for current emergency relief needs in Missouri communities:

Kansas City, $189,890; St. Francois County, $6008; Callaway County, $650; City of Joplin, $7300; Marion County, $14,000; City of Moberly, $6250; Pike County, $925.

The Kansas City fund is for the period to Oct. 31 and the funds for the other communities to Dec. 31.

"It is understood," said the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in its announcement, "that the Federal funds will supplement funds made available or to be made available within the State of Missouri, and that the local communities and the State will make every effort to develop and maintain local responsibility."

Covers Kansas City Deficit.

In making the advance for Kansas City, the board acted on data showing that $234,254 was required for relief for September and October, with only $44,364 on hand. The Federal fund is intended to cover the deficit. The board was informed that a campaign for private contributions for direct relief would be conducted in Kansas City in October.

"Legal limitations in Kansas City," the board stated, "do not permit the levying of taxes for relief or work relief, but the city government has from the proceeds of bond issues carried on an extensive work relief program. During 1931, $1,475,626 was spent for direct relief and work relief in Kansas City. During the first seven months of 1932, a total of $2,417,485 was expended for these purposes, $1,676,659 from local public funds for work relief only, $737,326 for direct relief from private contributions and $13,500 from the Red Cross.

"The Governor further advised the board that Jackson County, in which Kansas City is located, has reached the limit of its power to levy taxes and borrow money or incur any debt for the purpose of furnishing relief."

As to St. Francois County, the Governor was quoted as having reported that its resources were near exhaustion. This county is in the depressed lead mining belt.

County Needs Met.

Data on Pike and Callaway counties, in both of which local taxes as well as private gifts have been used for relief, showed that unemployment had brought about a need beyond the means of local communities.

With reference to Marion County, the board was informed that during the first seven months of this year, the local government spent $43,142 for work relief and private sources contributed $15,735. Hannibal, the principal city in the county, has no charter provision for bonds for relief purposes. A report on Moberly showed it would have no government funds available for relief until the payment of taxes in December, when it was estimated there would be a deficit of $15,000. Private contributions for relief in Moberly for 1932 were estimated at $5871 as compared with $4794 in 1931, and funds available from taxes were estimated at $6054, as compared with 1906 last year.

As to Joplin, it was stated that the city during the first seven months of this year spent $18,275 for relief from private contributions. Joplin was described as the center of a large lead mining area in which large numbers of miners were idle.

The board was informed that on account of constitutional or legal limitations, State funds could not be made available in time to relieve immediate needs in the communities mentioned.

$9,020,000 Lent to Five States on Reports of Destitution.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today made available loans totaling $9,020,573 to Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, Michigan and Kentucky. Forty-one Kentucky counties, seven Missouri cities and counties, two Michigan cities, one Ohio city and county and the entire State of Illinois will receive funds.

Widespread destitution was reported to the corporation by Governors of these states. Absolute exhaustion of private and municipal and county funds for relief were repeatedly reported. In many instances public officials told of diverting public funds to aid in preventing starvation.

The loans authorized today bring

Largest Allotment Is $189,000 to Kansas City to Meet Deficit In Its Fund to Oct. 31.

MOBERLY AND JOPLIN PROVIDED FOR, TOO

St. Francois, Callaway, Marion and Pike Counties Also Receive From $925 to $14,000 Each.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—On application of Gov. Caulfield, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation today made available the following amounts for current emergency relief needs in Missouri communities:

Kansas City, $189,890; St. Francois County, $6008; Callaway County, $650; City of Joplin, $7300; Marion County, $14,000; City of Moberly, $6250; Pike County, $925.

The Kansas City fund is for the period to Oct. 31 and the funds for the other communities to Dec. 31.

"It is understood," said the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in its announcement, "that the Federal funds will supplement funds made available or to be made available within the State of Missouri, and that the local communities and the State will make every effort to develop and maintain local responsibility."

Covers Kansas City Deficit.

In making the advance for Kansas City, the board acted on data showing that $234,254 was required for relief for September and October, with only $44,364 on hand. The Federal fund is intended to cover the deficit. The board was informed that a campaign for private contributions for direct relief would be conducted in Kansas City in October.

"Legal limitations in Kansas City," the board stated, "do not permit the levying of taxes for relief or work relief, but the city government has from the proceeds of bond issues carried on an extensive work relief program. During 1931, $1,475,626 was spent for direct relief and work relief in Kansas City. During the first seven months of 1932, a total of $2,417,485 was expended for these purposes, $1,676,659 from local public funds for work relief only, $737,326 for direct relief from private contributions and $13,500 from the Red Cross.

"The Governor further advised the board that Jackson County, in which Kansas City is located, has reached the limit of its power to levy taxes and borrow money or incur any debt for the purpose of furnishing relief."

As to St. Francois County, the Governor was quoted as having reported that its resources were near exhaustion. This county is in the depressed lead mining belt.

County Needs Met.

Data on Pike and Callaway counties, in both of which local taxes as well as private gifts have been used for relief, showed that unemployment had brought about a need beyond the means of local communities.

With reference to Marion County, the board was informed that during the first seven months of this year, the local government spent $43,142 for work relief and private sources contributed $15,335. Hannibal, the principal city in the county, has no charter provision for bonds for relief purposes.

A report on Moberly showed it would have no government funds available for relief until the payment of taxes in December, when it was estimated there would be a deficit of $15,000. Private contributions for relief in Moberly for 1932 were estimated at $5871 as compared with $4794 in 1931, and funds available from taxes were estimated at $6054, as compared with [illegible]306 last year.

As to Joplin, it was stated that the city during the first seven months of this year spent $18,275 for relief from private contributions. Joplin was described as the center of a large lead mining area in which large numbers of miners were idle.

The board was informed that on account of constitutional or legal limitations, State funds could not be made available in time to relieve immediate needs in the communities mentioned.

$9,020,000 Lent to Five States on Reports of Destitution.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today made available loans totaling $9,020,573 to Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, Michigan and Kentucky. Forty-one Kentucky counties, seven Missouri cities and counties, two Michigan cities, one Ohio city and county and the entire State of Illinois will receive funds.

Widespread destitution was reported to the corporation by Governors of these states. Absolute exhaustion of private and municipal and county funds for relief were repeatedly reported. In many instances public officials told of diverting public funds to aid in preventing starvation.

The loans authorized today bring the total so far allowed for relief under the Garner-Wagner law to $33,001,959. Twenty-two states have benefited. The corporation has $266,998,041 still available.

The loans authorized today include: Ohio—For Cleveland and Cuyahoga County, $2,807,000. Illinois, $5,000,000; Kentucky, for 41 counties, $672,550; Michigan, for Flint, $296,000; Muskegon Heights, $20,000.

Illinois, which already had received $9,000,000 of loans, got quick action. Only yesterday a committee appeared to report that most of the relief stations in the State would have to close by Monday if the money were not forthcoming and that the special relief session of the State Legislature could not act in time to care for the situation. The State will vote on a $20,000,000 bond issue in November.

The Governor of Kentucky asked for $1,107,094 to care for the situation in 108 counties. Sufficient supporting data was lacking from 67 counties but the corporation found it could lend $672,550 to care for the other 41.

Cleveland had attempted unsuccessfully to sell $470,000 of relief bonds. The corporation bought them and made available $2,377,000 more to be spent in equal monthly installments over the next four months.

MRS. ELEANOR BAKER RULER.

SUICIDE VERDICT RETURNED IN WOMAN'S DEATH BY GAS

Mrs. Eleanor Baker Ruler Left Note Describing Sensations as She Succumbs.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide was returned yesterday in the death of Mrs. Eleanor Baker Ruler, a 30-year-old divorcee, who ended her life with gas Friday at her bungalow at 1543 Highland avenue, Wellston.

Mrs. Ruler, who divorced William E. Ruler five years ago partly because he neglected her for his banjo, left a note ascribing her act to financial worry and describing her sensations as she succumbed slowly to the gas. She is survived by a six-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Charles Hanlon, a friend, 1601 Highland avenue, to whom Mrs. Ruler made a small bequest in her note, testified at the inquest that she went to Mrs. Ruler's home at 9:45 a. m. but did not ring the bell when she observed the cat was outside and the milk had not been taken in.

Returning three hours later, she said, she detected the odor of gas as she approached the door and notified the Sheriff's office. Deputy Sheriff Litzinger, who responded, told of forcing an entrance and finding Mrs. Ruler's body on the kitchen floor. Four stove burners were turned on, but not ignited, he said, while the note, some playing cards and some cigarette stubs were on a table nearby.

3 YEARS FOR BIGAMIST ON HIS GUILTY PLEA

By the Associated Press.

FULTON, Mo., Sept. 24.—Carl White, St. Louis truck driver, who married Miss Lena Belle Oliver of Mexico, Mo., without obtaining a divorce from his legal wife, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary today when he pleaded guilty of bigamy before Judge North Gentry.

White said he had married Miss Oliver after his wife told him she intended to get a divorce. He thought she had carried out her threat, he testified. Mrs. White denied that she and her husband had discussed divorce and said that the first she knew of his second marriage was on seeing a news account of it in a Mexico newspaper The second marriage took place here.

White's wife, Charlotte, and their 7-month-old son reside at 2728 Caroline street. She told authorities that her husband left her with relatives Sept. 1 at Bowling Green, Mo., promising to return for her. When he failed she began an investigation of his disappearance, found he had remarried Sept. 3, and caused his arrest.

CHARGES AGAINST GIRL WHO STOLE $1100 DISMISSED

Mae Bruss Who Came to St. Louis Back at Home of Foster Father.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CEDARBURG, Wis., Sept. 24.—Formal charges against 11-year-old Mae Bruss, who helped herself to $1100 from her foster father's bank and went on a trip to St. Louis, have been dismissed and she was back at her home today.

No official complaint had been filed against her but a hearing in juvenile court at West Bend, Wis., was necessitated by her admission she had taken the money. The bank is the Citizens' Bank of Germantown, Wis., of which her foster father, Albert Bruss, is president.

She and a chum, Paula Dunst, 15 years old, spent most of the money in their 17-day trip to St. Louis. They were found in an apartment house by detectives who heard of Mae giving a $5 tip for a 60-cent taxicab ride. The Dunst girl is receiving medical treatment in St. Louis.

LAWYER TESTIFIES THOMASSON IS AS SANE AS HIMSELF

E. W. Banister Declines to Pass on Idiosyncrasies — 'Some People Do Differently From Others.'

E. W. Banister, an attorney, testified yesterday he thought Hugh W. Thomasson was a man mentally his equal. He was a witness for Thomasson at the sanity hearing in Circuit Judge Hoffmeister's court.

Addressing Patrick H. Cullen, counsel for Thomasson's cousin, Miss Elmira Townsend, who brought the action, Banister said, "I think he has as good sense as you or I. I don't claim any right to criticise and I am not going to pass on the idiosyncrasies of people. Some people do differently from others."

The witness had been telling how, in January and February, 1931, Thomasson and his wife complained of the harassment of lawyers. "They said they could get along happily if the lawyers were out of the picture," he testified. "They told me they had been trying to get out of the hands of the lawyers but the lawyers wouldn't quit."

"If Thomasson had good sense, why didn't he tell that in court?" Cullen asked.

"Lived Life of Hermit."

"I did tell him to go to court," Banister replied, "but he was one of those reticent persons who shuns notoriety. He had lived the life of a hermit and he said he had rather lose his property than go into court."

"You think that indicated good sense?" Cullen asked. The witness said he thought Thomasson had good sense.

"He was not a man of many words," the lawyer testified, "but his brain was active. He knew what his legal rights were."

Banister previously had testified about going to the Thomasson home in Clayton to arrange for deeds to put Thomasson's $750,000 worth of real estate in joint ownership of Thomasson and his wife. He said Thomasson seemed to have a clear idea of the legal effect of changing his property from his own to the joint title.

"And how about Mrs. Thomasson?" Cullen asked. "Was she a silent sister?"

"She was not garrulous," Banister answered. "She was very ladylike and dignified."

The Second Marriage.

Although his second visit to the Thomasson home, in February, 1931, was less than 24 hours after Thomasson had gone through his second marriage ceremony with Mrs. Thomasson, 44 years his junior, Banister said he had not heard of the marriage or of the trip to Joliet, Ill., where it took place.

Banister said he received only $25 as a fee from Thomasson, although he made an attempt for Thomasson to settle the claims of all lawyers in the case. He gave up the effort, he said, when Stephen C. Rogers, Thomasson's original attorney, asked for $40,000 alone, and Edward W. Foristel, one of Mrs. Thomasson's lawyers, $150,000 with which to settle with everybody.

He said Thomasson advised him, "Don't give Rogers more than $6. I've paid him as we went along."

The sanity hearing will be continued tomorrow in its seventh week. The sole question to be determined by the jury is whether Thomasson is legally a resident of St. Louis and whether he had mental capacity sufficient to decide where he will reside. His attorneys say he is now in Colorado.

MRS. HANNA LEONORI'S WILL IS UPHELD BY JUDGE RYAN

Contest Filed by Nieces Said to Have Been Amicably Settled Out of Court.

The will of Mrs. Hannah Frances Leonori, who died June 14, 1931, leaving an estate valued at $80,000, was formally upheld by Circuit Judge Ryan yesterday.

The document had been contested by Miss Anna Haggerty, Miss Julia Haggerty and Mrs. Emma Collins, nieces, who alleged Mrs. Leonori was unduly influenced in disposing of her property.

The principal beneficiaries were her son-in-law, Ernest A. Collins, and a niece, Miss Rufinia Leonori. It was said the suit had been amicably adjusted out of court.

Collins died recently, leaving his estate to two sisters and a brother. Mrs. Leonori lived at 3507 Lafayette avenue. In May a claim was filed in Probate Court against her estate by Mrs. Nellie Sullivan, 4966 Pernod avenue, for $15,000 based on services as a companion and taking charge of Mrs. Leonori's household and personal matters. Mrs. Leonori was a widow, 85 years old.

SERUM HELPS MRS. BORAH

Friends Not Optimistic, However, in View of Earlier Report.

By the Associated Press.

BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 24. — Improvement in the condition of Mrs. William E. Borah after administration of serum to counteract an attack of psittacosis, or parrot fever, was reported this afternoon by Dr. Ralph Falk, her physician. "Since receiving the first dose of convalescent serum early this morning," the bulletin said, "Mrs. Borah's condition has improved."

Friends of the family were not inclined to be optimistic, in view of a statement earlier in the day indicating her condition was growing worse. The 9:30 bulletin said: "Mrs. Borah has grown progressively worse since midnight. Her heart weakness continues and her condition is critical." The first supply of serum came early today by air mail from Washington. Mrs. Borah has been in frail health for many years. Senator Borah was at her bedside last night.

The police gambling squad which investigated the scheme obtained an opinion from Associate City Counselor Senti that the plan was within the law because tickets were given away without charge. Police then submitted a report of their investigation to the Circuit Attorney's office, which has had the matter under advisement since the first of the month.

INVENTOR WINS AGAIN IN STEEL PATENT RULING

U. S. Appellate Court Upholds Decision Favoring Andrew F. Howe Over Commonwealth Co.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—The United States Court of Appeals has upheld a decision by Federal Judge Louis FitzHenry granting Andrew F. Howe, University City, Mo., inventor, an accounting from the Commonwealth Steel Co., for the use of his steel mold and sand mill patents.

The decision, now affirmed, held that Howe's patents were mainly responsible for the rise of the company from a small concern to one that was sold three years ago to the General Steel Castings Co. for about $35,000,000.

Howe contended that the company and its officers, including the late Clarence H. Howard, its president, induced him to assign two patents to the company without "any consideration." Attorneys for the company endeavored unsuccessfully to establish that his patents belonged automatically to the company because he was an employe of the concern at the time he developed them.

Action of the Appellate Court in sustaining the ruling requiring an accounting refers the case automatically to a Master-in-Chancery who will endeavor to ascertain the actual value to the firm of the devices patented by Howe. The inventor's attorneys estimated it to be at least $1,000,000. The referee was appointed when Judge FitzHenry gave his decision at Springfield, Ill., Sept. 12, 1930, but could not assume his duties pending the outcome of the appeal filed by attorneys for the company.

Company Will Seek Rehearing, Attorney Says.

Daniel N. Kirby, one of the attorneys for the company, said yesterday a motion would be filed for a rehearing. Other attorneys representing the appellants were Delos G. Hayes of St. Louis and Horace Kent Tenney and Cornelius Lynde of Chicago.

The inventor's attorneys, who announced they would present written and oral evidence in facilitating the accounting, are Lawrence C. Kingsland and Joseph T. Davis, both of St. Louis, and Bruce A. Campbell of East St. Louis.

Michael Riegler, 54 years old, a carpenter, 7611 Polk street, fell 75 feet to his death in a quarry at the foot of Steins street last night.

Riegler often sat at the edge of the quarry in the evenings, according to his son, John, who expressed the opinion that his father had been attacked by dizziness. Riegler fell into shallow water.

DEARMONT, HAWES MAKE THEIR PEACE WITH PENDERGAST

Chairman Curtis of Republican State Committee Says They Sacrificed Pride to Do So.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 24.—Opponents of the Pendergast Democratic organization in the primary made their peace with it today and were assailed for doing so by the Republican State Committee chairman.

Pendergast's callers included United States Senator Harry B. Hawes, whom the Pendergast forces at the State convention in St. Louis prevented from being elected a delegate-at-large to the national convention, and State Senator Russell L. Dearmont of Cape Girardeau. Dearmont made Pendergast and "bossism" the issue of his unsuccessful campaign for Governor.

Upon hearing of the visits, Arthur M. Curtis, chairman of the Republican State Committee, commented:

"I noticed that Hawes and Dearmont, who was defeated for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, today bowed their knees to bossism, and I suppose at considerable sacrifice to pride they agreed to support the same Pendergast they so recently denounced from the hill tops and the market places . . .

"I suppose Tom can safely count on Hawes and Dearmont for their individual votes, but from what I hear there are tens of thousands of substantial Democrats and independent voters who are not going to suffer the humiliation borne by Hawes and Dearmont today.

Campaign "a Crusade."

"The Republican campaign is a crusade to keep Missouri free from the Pendergast whip. The people of Missouri will not choose gangster government. Our fight is for decent government, one in which we invite all citizens to participate."

Leaders of both parties met to discuss plans in a city which rolled up approximately 190,000 Democratic votes in the primary and which is headquarters for the organization on which the Republicans will concentrate their attack.

While the Republicans conferred with Curtis, Democrats held numerous conferences with Rubey M. Hulen of Columbia, chairman of their party's state committee.

Hulen said that "while we expect to carry Missouri by 200,000, we are going to fight in this campaign on the theory that 100 votes might decide the outcome."

Pendergast and Dearmont.

The Kansas City Star says that at today's meeting there were "plain words spoken by Pendergast to the effect that Dearmont was within his rights in making any kind of campaign he saw fit."

"In the course of the conversation, Dearmont is said to have made it known to Pendergast that he had no further political ambitions," according to the article, "but would give support to Francis M. Wilson, who defeated him for the nomination for Governor and the party's ticket in general."

Clark attacked the Republican administration for its attitude toward economic developments of the last four years.

"Mr. Hoover's own repeated declarations throughout the period of depression," said Clark, "convict him of being a lazy opportunist, a Mr. Micawber, just hoping that 'something would turn up.'"

REPUBLICAN SPLIT IN NEW MEXICO WITH THIRD TICKET

Progressives Bolt State Convention; Senator Cutting Quits as G. O. P. National Committeeman.

By the Associated Press.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 24.—Progressive Republicans of New Mexico, following a bolt of the State convention, announced today that a third ticket would be placed in the field for the fall election.

At the meeting of the dissenters, Senator Bronson Cutting, a leader, said: "If the Democrats nominate a ticket which represents the rank and file of the people, we might decide to support the Democratic ticket wholeheartedly."

The split in the convention last night was climaxed by the resignation of Senator Cutting as Republican National Committeeman.

Cutting's resignation directly followed a contest between progressives and the element of the party known as "the Old Guard," for seats in the convention. The Progressives lost several contested county delegations.

Albert Simms, former Congressman and husband of Ruth Hannah McCormick, former Congresswoman-at-Large of Illinois, is among the Republicans discussed as a successor to Senator Cutting as National Committeeman. H. O. Bursum, former United States Senator, also was mentioned.

Mrs. Fall Addresses Meeting.

Mrs. A. B. Fall of Three Rivers, N. M., wife of the former Senator and Cabinet officer, addressed today's meeting of Progressive delegates.

"I suggest men who will run or withdraw as a future convention may decide," Senator Cutting said. It was agreed that any person placed on the third party ticket would agree that his name be withdrawn in the event the candidates on the regular Democratic and Republicans tickets for the same office were agreeable to the Progressives.

After leaving the State convention last night, the Progressives announced they probably would not file a third State ticket in the coming election as the deadline for candidacies is Sept. 28. This decision was reversed today and it was decided the executive committee of a permanent organization which was completed last night would name the candidates.

"Spirit of the Spanish."

Mrs. Fall praised Senator Cutting and referred to similar battles of her husband years ago, stating, "I see the spirit of the Spanish people here today the same as I saw it 40 years ago."

Prager Miller of Roswell, who had been a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, also spoke to the Progressives.

"If we are going to succeed in the Republican party, it must be brought up to date and have the confidence of the people," he said.

PLAN APPROVED BY GANDHI IS PUT UP TO M'DONALD

cease at the end of 10 years. The plan also includes provision for representation of the depressed classes in the public service.

Gandhi's Objections.

Gandhi's objection to the plan drawn up by the British Cabinet was that its separate electorates would make permanent the gulf between caste Hindus and "untouchables." Under the Cabinet's plan the separate electorates would exist for 20 years.

The compromise was presented to Gandhi after a physician summoned from Bombay had declared that he should not be subjected to further strain in connection with political discussions. Gandhi had grown much weaker and his voice fainter. He suffered recurrent attacks of exhaustion which prevented him from drinking water, his only sustenance during his fast. Mrs. Gandhi was in constant attendance.

Decision of MacDonald May Be Delayed Several Days.

LONDON, Sept. 24. — Mahatma Gandhi's "fast unto death" has become a race between the Nationalist leader's rapidly wasting strength and the slow moving machinery of Government.

If Gandhi holds to his decision not to break his fast until Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald approves the peace agreement reached at Poona today, several days may elapse before the Prime Minister can act, for his decision is understood to necessitate negotiations and an agreement involving the British Government and the Government of India.

Numerous telegrams from the leaders of the Caste Hindus and the depressed classes urging action tonight prompted a long telephone conversation between Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary for India, and MacDonald. The secretary spoke from Cromer, the Norfolk watering place.

None the less it was said there was no possibility that MacDonald would answer these appeals tonight.

The Prime Minister received news of the Poona peace just before going to attend the funeral of his 84-year-old aunt, Miss Isabella Ramsay, who died on Joan MacDonald's wedding day.

It is expected that MacDonald will confer tomorrow with Sir Samuel Hoare, and, while it is the unofficial opinion that the British Government will approve the Poona peace and cut all red tape to clear the way for a quick settlement, certain delays may be unavoidable in complying with the routine of communications with the Indian Government.

"Delay would be dangerous to the Mahatma's life and would affect the public mind greatly," the Indian leaders declared in their message to MacDonald.

How Peace Was Made.

They also described how the peace was arrived at: "Pursuant to the wishes of all India, a conference consisting of caste Hindus and depressed classes has been held at Bombay. We have come to a mutual settlement regarding representation of the depressed classes in the legislatures, and are furnishing a copy to the Bombay Government for transmission to the Government of India and yourself.

"We have seen the Mahatma Gandhi in jail during the last four days. Today is the fifth day of his fast, and his conditon is steadily getting worse and his vitality is ebbing.

"His doctors advise us the danger point may be reached in 48 hours. We are most anxious to prevent disaster, not merely for his sake but in the national interest, and we would urge it on you to withdraw your decision providing for separate electorates for the depressed classes and so enable him to break his fast."

East St. Louis Man Discovers Theft After Noticing Cut in Screen.

A metal strong-box containing $300 in gold coins, $100 in currency and $2000 in bonds was stolen from Frank Aichele, who had secreted it in the basement of his home, 628 Post place, East St. Louis. Aichele discovered yesterday.

Aichele told East St. Louis police he did not miss the box until he investigated after noticing a basement window screen in his home had been cut open. Aichele said he was unable to understand how the robbers found the box, as only he and his wife knew where it was hidden.

He is owner of an automobile service station.

Karleton F. Macklin of Decatur, Ill., reported to East St. Louis police last night that he had been kidnaped in Decatur by a Negro, armed with a revolver, who forced him to drive 128 miles to East St. Louis, where the Negro robbed him of $45. The Negro told him he wanted to go to the races at the Fairmount track, Macklin said. He is manager of the Peoria Cartage Co., Inc.

Libby Holman Demands Apology With Acquittal

Smith Reynolds' Widow, Accused of Killing Him, Says She Wants to Leave No Doubt of Her Innocence.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Libby Holman Reynolds, the Broadway blues singer facing trial for killing her 20-year-old multimillionaire husband, wants "not only acquittal, but complete apology," she told Ward Morehouse, theatrical columnish and playwright, in a copyrighted interview published in the New York Sun today.

"The fact that within four months I will have a child—his child—makes me strong enough to fight for a complete and absolute vindiation," she was quoted as saying.

The interview took place in a secluded retreat, described by the Sun writer as "a remote and beautiful estate." It was the first the singer has granted since Julyi 6, when the heir to the tobacco fortune of the late R. J. Reynolds was found dying of a bullet wound at Reynolda, the family estate at Winston-Salem, N. C.

Says She Didn't Shoot Reynolds.

"I didn't shoot Smith," the interview quoted Libby. "God in heaven knows that. The Reynolds family know it in their hearts.

"I loved Smith as I never loved anyone before or ever will again. The fullest and richest hours of my life were spent with that dear boy. I loved him tenderly and dearly and completely, and to him I meant everything, everything. He was utterly dependent on me.

"When I realized that he was gone, that he was dead, that after that visit to the cemetery I was never, never to see him again, I didn't want to live. To learn that I, his wife, was actually suspected of murdering him stunned and horrified me—but it didn't matter.

"The fact that he was dead had caused nothing to matter—until I knew positively that I was to have a child. With that knowledge, with that gleam of happiness, I had something to live for, something to fight for.

"Now I want to go through with the trial. I want no strings left, no doubts left in people's minds as to my innocence. I don't only want acquittal: I want a complete apology."

The Sun writer said the singer was "aware, of course, of the 'she-married-him-for-his-money' impression in the minds of the many who have followed the strange Reynolds tragedy."

"Let them say it," he quoted her as saying. "It's all right. I can't help it. It will be hard to convince most people that I married Smith Reynolds because I loved him. But there were times when I pleaded with him to get himself disinherited. I told him we could get along, and he knew it. During my married life I paid my own way. I saw nothing of the Reynolds' money. Why, I had much more money than Smith had—much more. I paid my own bills."

Tells of Suicide Threats.

Many times young Reynolds threatened suicide, Morehouse said Libby told him, and always he carried a pistol.

"Many, many times I'd see him holding the pistol to his head," she was quoted as saying. "Smith was morbid. I'd often sit up with him until 6 o'clock in the morning, arguing and pleading."

Of the tragic night, she told her interviewer:

"It was about 12:30 o'clock, I believe, when I heard Smith call out my name. 'Libby!' he cried. I saw him standing beside the bed, our bed, with a pistol to his temple. I remember nothing more, though I had the feeling of holding his head in my arms and having the warm blood pouring through my nightdress. I don't remember going to the hospital later."

About Ab Walker, indicted with her in connection with Reynolds' death, she said: "Ab worshipped Smith. If Smith had said, 'Ab, go shoot yourself,' Ab would have done it."

"I've got to be cheerful," she went on, "for it's the only way. It's the waiting that's hard. If the trial were tonight, right now, it would be easier."

THOMAS FOR FEDERAL AID AND LOCAL DISTRIBUTION

Socialist Has Little Hope for Recovery This Winter; Expects Food Riots.

By the Associated Press.

SAGINAW, Mich., Sept. 24.—Unemployment relief by Federal funds, distributed locally, was advocated by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, in a speech here tonight.

"When a society is so cruel or so stupid as not to provide jobs for unemployed, it at least should provide maintenance," Thomas declared. "This can best be done by the Federal Government that controls currency and credit, but the distribution should be by local agencies. There are many jobs to provide and when these are provided, maintenance can stop. It is by making purchasing power possible that business will improve."

Thomas said he had little hope for any great recovery this winter and expected the number of unemployed to increase from 13,000,000 to 20,000,000. Food riots would be prevalent in many cities, he declared.

"It has been said by Republicans that socialism is not practical," he said, "but here are just a few of the things socialism is saying can be done: Cleaning out of the slums, electrification of the countryside and reforestation."

FOUR HELD AFTER ATTEMPTS TO PASS COUNTERFEIT COINS

Two men and two women are being held for Federal agents after attempts to pass counterfeit coins to street car conductors.

The men, who said they were brothers, were arrested on a Jefferson street car Friday night after they had been traced by police summoned by the operator of a Natural Bridge car. The operator of the Natural Bridge car said they had given him a counterfeit half dollar and the conductor of the Jefferson car said they had offered him a counterfeit quarter, which he refused.

The wife of one man was arrested at her home on West Park avenue and her mother was arrested at an address on Crittenden street. The women said the counterfeit coins, seven half dollars and a quarter, had come from Forest Park, where they and the husband of the younger woman had found them. The mother gave police three half dollars which she had. Both the men and women denied knowing the coins were counterfeit. A number of persons reported finding counterfeit coins in Forest Park last week end.

AVIATOR HELD AS SMUGGLER

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 24.—Charges of smuggling 450 beaver skins from British Columbia to the San Juan Islands last July were filed here today against Frank Dorbandt, well known Alaska aviator. His plane was seized.

Dorbandt was pilot for Father Bernard Hubbard, the "Glacier Priest," during his scientific activities in Alaska. Dorbandt said he had not engaged in any smuggling at any time and he was "mystified" by the seizure of his plane.

FATHER COX 'BROKE' BUT STILL IN FIGHT

Leader of 'Blue Shirts' Determined to Continue Campaign for President.

Announcing he is "absolutely broke" but determined to continue his Presidential campaign "if I have to hitch-hike," the Rev. James R. Cox, militant Catholic priest of Pittsburgh and leader of the "Blue Shirts" stopped at Lambert-St. Louis flying field for 10 minutes yesterday on his way home by plane.

Father Cox and nine of his campaign advisers were stranded last week in Albuquerque, N. M., when they ran out of funds as they drove from town to town in a bus equipped with a loud speaker. The generosity of a parishioner enabled Father Cox to return to Pittsburgh where he will endeavor to obtain funds with which to assist his companions and resume his campaign.

"I just know I will get money," Father Cox, his pink face as jovial as ever, declared as he stepped from the plane, "and I'm going to talk over the radio in Pittsburgh Sunday morning and ask for help. It's my usual Sunday morning broadcast, which I have conducted for several years, and it only reaches local listeners but they are all my friends. They've never failed me and they won't let me down now."

Father Cox said he planned to fly to Los Angeles next Wednesday and begin campaigning on the West Coast. Later, he asserted, he intends to "swing down through New England."

Father Cox declared that "by the time four more years roll around the Blue Shirts will have a powerful nation-wide organization."

"I don't mean that I'll be the nominee then," he continued, "but my party will be powerful. But I'm not quitting now. That's something I've never done. I'm taking my campaign right to the people.

"Campaign funds? Oh, I don't need so much. Just enough for food and gasoline. Ten of us ate for $1.40 the other day. That's just 14 cents a meal.

"No I'm not giving up my parochial duties. This campaign is just something that has developed recently. It won't last so long. Besides, I'll be right there in my church tomorrow."

Father Cox recalled his Creve Coeur race track "nominating convention" last month, which was heralded by announcements of thousands of delegates but turned out to resemble a parish picnic, and said he was used to "tough breaks."

"Tough breaks make life interesting," he said as the motors of the plane roared into life again, "and I'm leading a very interesting life."

BANK EMPLOYE INDICTED FOR $11,000 EMBEZZLEMENT

Three indictments charging embezzlement were returned by the St. Clair County grand jury Friday against Clarence A. Hagarty, collector for the Illinois State Trust Co., investment subsidiary of the First National Bank of East St. Louis.

The charges are based on Hagarty's admission, according to bank officers, that he took $11,000 from his accounts in the last four years, losing the money on the stock market. The shortage was discovered last month. Hagarty, who is 29 years old and live at 2807 State stret, h asbeen released on bond.

Collecting $40,000 or $50,000 a day, according to bank officers, Hagarty was able to concela his peculations by withholding for a time acknowledgement of part of the money he collected.

SENATOR LONG CANCELS TOUR IN BEHALF OF ROOSEVELT

He Will Be Busy at Home With Investigation of Recent Primary Election.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 24.—A senatorial investigation of the recent Democratic primary in Louisiana will claim the time of Senator Huey P. Long, and he has canceled a campaign tour of the West in behalf of Gov. Roosevelt's presidential candidacy.

The investigation is to be made on complaint of Senator Edwin S. Broussard, who was defeated for re-nomination by Representative John H. Overton, with the support of Senator Long's political organization.

Broussard asked the Senate Campaign Funds Committee to have the ballot boxes in New Orleans sealed and Senator Howell (Rep.), Nebraska, chairman of the committee, announced yesterday hearings would begin in New Orleans Oct. 5. They will be conducted by Senators Connally (Dem.), Texas, and Bratton (Dem.), New Mexico.

The Broussard complaint has not been made public, but Senator Howell said he charged the primary was not conducted "legally and properly." Long was at odds with Broussard for a long while and threw all his influence behind Overton's senatorial candidacy.

LOOKS TO FORMING OF LIBERAL PARTY AFTER ELECTION

Prof. Douglas, Chicago U. Head of Thomas' 'Committee of 100,000,' Makes Prediction.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Formation after the election of a new Liberal party, which will include the Socialists was predicted last night by Paul Douglas, University of Chicago professor.

Douglas, who is not a Socialist, is chairman of the "Committee of 100,000" supporting Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President. He is vice-chairman also of the League for Independent Political Action, of which John Dewey is head.

"If Thomas polls a large vote, regardless of who is elected President, Liberals can expect some concessions," he said. "I think we will get more concessions if Hoover is elected and Thomas polls a big vote, than if Roosevelt wins and Thomas gets a small vote."

"Roosevelt is about 2 per cent better than Hoover, but Thomas is 50 per cent better than either of them."

Hopes for Big Socialist Vote.

"It will be a great victory if the Socialists break all records by poling 1,000,000 votes, but I really look for more than 2,000,000."

"There is no chance that the Democratic or Republican party will become the Liberal party of the future.

"For the purposes of this campaign, there is only one party Liberals can support, the Socialist party, but after the election there is a great possibility of a new group, a Farm-Labor party, coming into being.

"The Socialists may be this party themselves, but I doubt it. If not, they will be a strong wing in the new group. They will galvanize the rest to action and keep the party honest.

"There are three reasons why the Socialist party may not be this new force. First, there is a prejudice against the word Socialist. Second, the encyclicals of Pope Leo XIII and Pope Pius IX make it difficult for Catholics to support the Socialist party while it retains that name. Third, Socialism has a record of apparent failures in other countries and people are tired of tying up with a party credited with failures.

"Must Smash Democratic Party."

"We must smash the Democratic party before we can get a liberal lineup.

"We need one conservative party. The Republicans, naturally, are it. We don't need another. The existence of the Democratic party prevents clear issues. The way to force a coalition of the two old parties is to smash the Democratic party and bring about an amalgamation.

"When that happens there will be a good chance for us to draw such good men as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic Governor of New York, and Gifford Pinchot, Republican Governor of Pennsylvania.

"Intellectually I am fond of both Roosevelt and Pinchot, but they are in parties where they haven't any support for their liberal ideas, and they get driven into all sorts of practical alliances. Men like that won't be caught in the amalgamation."

He said a big Thomas vote would "consolidate sentiment for a third party and throw fear into the old parties so we can get come concessions after election."

Among such possible "concessions" he listed: "Unemployment insurance; public ownership of public utilities; more chance for direct unemployment relief, and increased public works such as slum clearance, grade crossing elimination, schools and playgrounds."

Douglas said his committee now had 10,000 members but hoped to have 100,000 by election day.

DRY AGENT SLAIN AFTER RAID ON STILL IN MINNESOTA WOODS

Federal Officer Missing 20 Hours Before Body Is Found; Posse Hunts Two Suspects.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 24.—Missing 20 hours after raiding a still in the Minnesota woods, James G. Harney, Federal prohibition agent, was found shot to death today. His body, pierced by a rifle bullet, was found in the brush near Tamarack, partly concelaed beneath a fresh layer of moss. He was a brother of M. L. Harney, Chicago district prohibition chief, who has been in this area directing a series of raids, one of which resulted in 60 arrests in nearby Superior, Wis.

M. L. Harney, in Duluth when notified of the shooting, chartered a plane, flew 60 miles westward to Tamarack and then raced to St. Paul to organize a search for two suspects. The body was found on the land of Harry Hedstrom, 42 years old, a settler. He and Emil Giving, 20, were sought for questioning.

The victmi was one of four agents who found the still in the sparsely settled brush country. Scattering in the belief that the operators had just fled, the agents proceeded through the brush. That was at 2 p. m. Friday. The three other agents reassembled two hours later and shortly afterward began the search for Harney, which lasted until the body was found shortly after noon today. Possemen searched the brush country for two suspects tonight.

RIVALRY OF ANCIENT TOWNS ON NILE FLARES INTO CLASH

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 24.—The rivalry between the two ancient towns of Egypt, Akhmin and Sohag, which lie directly across the Nile from each other, 200 miles south of Cairo, flared into a fight today. Skirmishes led to 13 deaths by drowning and injuries to more than 100 persons.

Three thousand residents of Ahkmin went in boats to Sohag, on the west bank, where fighting ensued. The Governor of Girgeh Province, whose capital is Sohag, sent 150 police to the waterfront. On arrival, the officers started firing into the air, and the warning shots led to headlong flight of all the combatants. Many of them jumped into the Nile in a stampede for the boats and 13 were drowned.

Akhmin, or Akhmym, and Sohag, or Suhág, are not far from the ruins of Thebes. Both had their places in ancient history. Akhmin was the ancient city Chemmis, or Panopolis. It is a steamboat and mail town of 30,000 population. Suhag lies on the railroad to Cairo.

16 BALLOONS TO START IN BENNETT CUP RACE

First Bag Will Released at 4 P. M. Today — Two Entries From U. S.

By the Associated Press.

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 24.—Two American balloons, one of which will be piloted by Ward T. Van Orman, thrice winner of the James Gordon Bennett trophy, will start from Basel tomorrow in the 1932 edition of the world's best known balloon contest.

The gas bags will begin to take the air at 4 p. m. from the gas company works. Unless a rare wind blows, the balloons will head southward over the treacherous Alps taking almost the same course that Professor Auguste Piccard's stratosphere balloon followed. The weather bureau announced, however, that there was a possibility the wind direction would be toward southern France and the Mediterranean Sea.

The American entries for the Gordon trophy are the "Goodyear 8," piloted by Van Orman and R. J. Blair, and the "U. S. Navy," which won the American national balloon race last year, piloted by Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle and Wilfred Bushnell.

Germany, France, Austria, Poland, Switzerland, Belgium and Spain will compete for the cup. There will be sixteen balloons in all.

Americans Handicapped.

Van Orman not only will have to reckon with the champion "U. S. Navy" bag, but he will have to steer better than the veteran balloonist, Ernest Demuyter, the Belgian who has won the race four times.

The Americans will be greatly handicapped by the unfamiliar topography of the Alps, which makes landing a delicate task.

The balloons will be brought on the field early tomorrow and inflation will start at 9 o'clock. The first ropes will be loosened seven hours later.

One Swiss and one German balloon are new types for this race. The "Zurich," piloted by Lieutenant Colonel Valo Gerber and Dr. Erick Tilgencamp, is fashioned after Professor Piccard's stratosphere balloon. The new German model is called the "Deutschland," and is piloted by Erick Leimkugel and Richard Schutze.

World's Smallest Balloon.

The noted French aeronaut, Charles Dollfus, will fly what is described as the world's smallest balloon—170 cubic meters—as a stunt attraction.

United States—"Goodyear 8," W. T. Van Orman, R. J. Blair, "U. S. Navy," Lieut. Commander T. G. W. Settle, Wilfred Bushnell.

Belgium—"Belgica," Ernest Demuyter.

France — "Lafayette," Georges Blanchet, Georges Cormier; "L'Aventure," Marius Marquant, Maurice de Brucker; "Petiti Mousse," Georges Ravaine, Rene de Grain.

Switzerland—"Zurich," Lieutenant-Colonel Valo Gerber, Dr. Erick Tilgencamp; "Victor de Beauclair," Capt. Huber, Lieut. Lochinger; "Basel," Dr. A. Van Baerle, Dr. Dietschi.

Spain—"14 de Abril," Captain Antonio Nunez, Lieutenant Francisco Carrasco.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Lack of funds was the cause of the withdrawal of the American Army balloon from the James Gordon Bennett balloon race which is to start tomorrow at Basel, Switzerland.

Lieut. Wilfred J. Paul was entered for the race, but the Secretary of War felt that under present economic conditions the War Department should not finance American participation in the race.

CHARGES ROOSEVELT WITH 'INTELLECTUAL DISHONESTY'

E. L. Jahncke Says Statements Are Either Willfully False or "Due to Ignorance."

By the Associated Press.

FLEMINGSBURG, Ky., Sept. 24.—Assistant Secretary Ernest Lee Jahncke of the Navy, in a Republican campaign address tonight, said Franklin D. Roosevelt "has made his campaign from its inception one of intellectual dishonesty."

"He (Roosevelt) has sacrificed principle to political ambition. He has abandoned ideals which he once professed to cherish. He has hunted out and embraced all those factors of sectionalism, of class prejudice and of jingoism whose support might aid his candidacy.

"The Democratic candidate, since he procured his nomination, has made a number of addresses. In nearly all of these he has wilfully made false statements. I say nearly all because in one or two of his speeches I think his remarks were due to ignorance rather than an intention to deceive."

SAYS G. O. P. BEER CRY IS MEANT TO DECEIVE

St. Louis Democratic Spokesman Cites Republican National and State Platforms.

A reply to the St. Louis Republican organizations' promise of "real beer, right now," was issued yesterday at Democratic State Committee headquarters by former Judge Daniel G. Taylor, director of the committee's finance bureau.

"St. Louis Republican leaders," Judge Taylor said, "have deluded their constituents for so many years they apparently feel that they can continue ad infinitum. They are trying to make the St. Louis voters think the beer stein, like their assertions of prosperity, is 'just around the corner.'

"The inconsistency of their statement demanding beer is obvious. These champions of beer are supporting a party whose national and State platforms cannot be construed as even suggesting a genuine wet sentiment. If the local Republicans are sincere in their wet statement, then they are asking all St. Louis to vote the Democratic ticket, because the Democratic national and State platforms are unequivocal on the prohibition question. They are asking the voters to vote the Democratic ticket, because the Democratic candidates for national and state legislative offices have pledged themselves over their signatures to vote for repeal, something the Republican candidates for the same offices have not done.

"Mr. Hoover who would like to give America four more years of his peculiar brand of prosperity, recently wrote to Dr. Poling, head of the allied drys, that their sentiments on the prohibition question were the same, and we read in Friday's paper a dispatch from Washington, that Dr. Poling is going to make an airplane campaign of 31 states, making 200 speeches for Mr. Hoover. Every newspaper reader with an iota of common sense knows that in the past few years, the Democratic party has progressively become the party of the Wets, while the G. O. P. has been adopted by the Drys as their standard bearer.

"Mr. Kiel, their candidate for Senator, claims to be a wet, and yet claims to stand by the expression of the Republican State Convention, which expressly refused to insert a wet plank in its platform, the wet plank having been proposed by Mr. Sacks and turned down.

"Why don't the Republican leaders of St. Louis explain why the Republicans, who have been in control of our national government for 12 years, failed to act on this question?"

INDIA STOPS HOARDING, FREES FLOOD OF GOLD

Sends $273,062,000 to Britain and U. S. in 10-Month Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—With a lavish hand, India now is distributing gold among other nations. Once the despair of Occidental economists who feared that in time she would deplete the world's monetary gold stocks because of her historic practice of draining the metal from other countries and sinking it in the coffers of Indian princes and in her sacred buildings, India now has reversed herself.

Not because she has relinquished her love of the ornamental and valuable metal, but because she can realize a substantial profit on its sale in the world markets, India has ceased to be the world's greatest hoarder of gold.

Due to the severe depreciation of her silver rupee, which however still commands a high value within the Indian boundaries, the nation's owners of gold are selling the metal for British pound sterling, American dollars and other currencies. Such proceeds, in turn, are used to buy silver rupees at home—and, measured in terms of domestic purchasing power, the bargain represents a handsome profit for the seller.

The latest Federal Reserve bulletin shows that India has sent, in the first eight months of this year, $213,243,000 in gold to England and $8,302,000 to the United States. The movement, in its present volume, began last November. In the last two months of 1931, she shipped $43,457,000 to England and $8,060,000 to the United States.

Thus, for the ten months ended last Aug. 31, India bolstered the gold stocks of England by $256,700,000 and sent $16,362,000 to the United States—a total of $273,062,000, or a monthly average of $27,306,200.

With Indian gold now leaving that country at an approximate average flow of $300,000,000 a year, considerable conjecture has arisen as to how much longer the movement may continue. Some estimates have gone as high as $1,000,000,000, but this seems high to many bankers.

Accurate figures are not available as to the probable gold holdings of India. They have been estimated at $1,500,000,000, but no one knows because so much of it is outside of the Indian banks. However, India probably ranks third only to the United States with its $4,000,000,000 of gold and to France which holds upward of $3,000,000,000.

Total world holdings of monetary gold are placed at about $11,000,000,000.

WRECKAGE OF SCHOONER FOUND

Feared It Is Gloucester Boat, Which Carried Eight Men.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 24.—Little hope was held today for safety of the schooner Patara, largest and one of the last three vessels sailing out of Gloucester under canvas alone, as reports of wreckage sighted reached her home port. She carried a crew of seven commanded by Capt. Matt Critchell. Informed that the British steamer Hazelwood had passed the wooden superstructure of a schooner off Southern Labrador, Capt. Ben Pine, noted racing skipper and part owner of the Patara, said that would have been the Patara's approximate position.

The Patara left Domino Run, Labrador, about three weeks ago with a cargo of fish and cod liver oil. Yesterday one of the schooner's wrecked dories was found at Drum Head, N. S., and today Capt. Pine was advised two barrels of oil and a barrel of water had been found in the same vicinity.

All Citizens Must Register This Week to Vote on Nov. 8

Four Days of Enrollment to Start Tomorrow With Record of 400,000 Expected in City.

A record registration of voters is expected in St. Louis this week, in preparation for the presidential and general election of Nov. 8. The quadrennial registration, forming the basis of the electoral lists for the next four years, will be conducted tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Polling places in 669 precincts will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. on each of these days. There is one other precinct officially established but inactive. All persons desiring to vote hereafter must register this week, as the old lists have been discarded.

Those who are enrolled this week will not have to register again until 1936, but any who move within the city must be transferred on the poll books before voting.

A registration of about 400,000 is anticipated by Miss Emma J. Bobb, chairman of the Election Board. The previous record registration was four years ago, when 362,215 persons were eligible to cast ballots in the Hoover-Smith contest, and 93 per cent of them did vote. Interest in the Roosevelt-Hoover fight and in the economic and prohibition issues of the day are the reasons for the expectation of a new record. Some informed observers think 98 per cent of those who register this week may vote on Nov. 8.

The registration for the primary of last Aug. 2 was 321,429 and the vote was 63 per cent of this figure. The largest registrations and votes always are for presidential elections.

No difficulty in handling the heavy registration this week or the vote in November is anticipated by Miss Bobb.

Revision of Precincts.

Virtually all the precinct boundaries in the city have been revised since the primary election, to equalize the voting populations. The number of precincts in several growing wards has been enlarged, while the number in downtown wards, where population has dwindled, has been decreased. The only precincts whose boundaries were not changed are a few which cannot be altered without upsetting the State senatorial and Justice of the Peace districts fixed by law.

A map showing the new precinct boundaries was published in yesterday's Post-Dispatch. A list of the precinct polling places was published as an Election Board advertisement in newspapers on Sept. 16. Persons desiring to learn the designation of their precincts and of polling places may telephone the Election Board—MAin 5560 (City Hall exchange) or CHestnut 6515. —or the League of Women Voters —ROsedale 3737 or ROsedale 1800.

The one inactive precinct is the fourth precinct of the Sixth Ward, bounded by Twelfth boulevard and Market, Pine and Fourteenth streets. It is in the site cleared for Memorial Plaza, but cannot be eliminated because it is the only precinct in the Sixth Ward which is part of the Fifth Justice of the Peace District.

Those eligible to register are citizens, men or women, who are more than 21 years old, or will be 21 by Nov. 8, and who have no special disqualification. They must have resided in St. Louis for at least 60 days and in Missouri for at least one year before Nov. 8.

Judges Pass on Status.

Anyone applying for registration must be registered, but the precinct judges will mark "disqualified" on the books after the names of any not qualified. Those who are disqualified include foreigners who have obtained only "declaration" or first papers of citizenship; persons kept in any poorhouse at public expense, insane persons, persons confined in prisons, persons convicted of various serious crimes, unless they were less than 20 when convicted or unless pardoned by the Governor. There are certain additional provisions as to the right to vote of those who have been convicted of crime, and there are varying rules as to the status of women in connection with the citizenship laws.

Naturalized citizens must insist that precinct judges register them, even if they fail to exhibit all required papers. The Election Board cannot register them. They may make affidavit, if papers are lacking, and then may complete their registration by showing the papers at the board's office up to Nov. 2. The office is at 208 South Twelfth street.

Persons who change their residence after registering may apply at the board's office up to Oct. 29 to be transferred on the books. Any who move after that date may vote at the precincts in which they registered.

Absentee Registration.

In case of illness or absence from the city during the registration period, voters may obtain registration by filing proper affidavits at the board's office between Sept. 30 and Oct. 25. An absentee must send his own affidavit and supporting affidavits by two registered voters of his precinct. An invalid must send his affidavit and that of his physician. Persons seeking registration as invalids or absentees must, after filing the affidavits, appear before the board in person on Oct. 31, Nov. 1 or Nov. 2.

Under a new rule, persons waiting in line at 9 p. m., the hour of closing the polls on each day of registration, will be registered, but none will be permitted to join the line after that hour. If the line cannot be accommodated indoors its end will be blocked by the policemen on duty at the place.

REGISTRATION DAYS

City of St. Louis
Tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

St. Louis County
Oct. 11, 15 and 18.

East St. Louis
Oct. 8 and 18.

A rule requires applicants for registration to "state, as nearly as they can, their 'exact age.'" This permits women—or men—who are sensitive about their age to give approximations. The age record is required for identification.

The only precinct officials on duty for registration will be the two Democratic and two Republican judges. The precinct clerk of each party will take part in the subsequent canvass on Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. The clerks will not aid in the registration, as an economy measure.

The registration will cost the city about $97,660. This includes $64,224 for the pay of the 2676 judges, at $6 a day each; $13,380 for rental of the polling places, at $5 a day each; $16,056 for the pay of the clerks for two days in the subsequent canvass of registrants, at $6 a day each, and about $4000 for miscellaneous expenses. There is a comparatively small amount, in addition, for registration and canvass books which will be used for the next four years.

Agencies Aid Enrollment.

The Republican and Democratic city committees, the League of Women Voters, the young men's division of the Chamber of Commerce, The Public, Inc., and business houses are among the agencies seeking to bring out a large registration. Miss Bobb declared the Public Service Co. was requiring all its employes to register and that she understood that some other concerns had issued similar orders. The League of Women Voters will have a billboard at the southwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Olive street, on which the daily progress of registration in each of the 28 wards will be shown.

A parade to remind the people to register will be held Tuesday noon by the young men's division of the Chamber of Commerce. It will form at Twelfth and Walnut streets and march over Twelfth, Washington avenue, Broadway, Olive street and Twelfth, to the Civil Courts Building, where a man dressed as George Washington will deliver an address from the steps.

Mayor Miller, in a letter to heads of city departments, said that all city employes should register and should urge their friends and relatives to register.

Superintendent of Instruction Gerling reminded public school principals and teachers of the opportunity to register, in a circular yesterday. He also said the occasion offered an opportunity to give instruction about the duties of citizens to the state and to suggest that children remind their parents of the registration.

The last available figures on the division of voters, for the city election of 1931, showed: White men, 151,674; white women, 107,402; Negro men, 17,389; Negro women, 10,804; total, 287,269.

County Registration Estimated as High as 90,000.

In St. Louis County, the quadrennial general registration of voters will be on Oct. 11, 15 and 18. The number of precincts has been increased since the primary from 144 to 170 because of the growth of some suburbs. The registration in the county for the primary was 83,803. For the presidential election of 1928 it was 82,057. Election officials anticipate that it will be increased to possibly 90,000 or more next month.

In East St. Louis the quadrennial registration will take place Oct. 8 and 18. The number registered for the presidential election of 1928 was 34,947 and officials look for the registration next month to be more than this by several thousand. There are 82 precincts.

James M. Curley to Make Address at Jefferson Club Dinner at 6:30 P. M.

James J. Barrett, Republican nominee for Lieutenant-Governor, made a speech at a political rally Friday night at the Clayton High School, where Lieutenant-Governor Edward H. Winter, the party's candidate for Governor, followed as the principal advertised speaker.

Before his nomination in the primary Aug. 2, Barrett was virtually unknown in State political circles. In the minds of many voters he was confused with Jesse W. Barrett, St. Louis lawyer, and former State Attorney-General. James J. Barrett, who resides at 4941 Neosho street, is listed in the city directory as an "investigator." He formerly conducted a private detective agency and did work for St. Louis law firms.

As one of several State candidates present, Barrett was asked to speak at the Clayton meeting. His talk covered the wide field of politics from the presidency to county offices.

Time after time he issued the challenge "to anybody to point to one thing that President Hoover might have done to relieve the depression that he has not done."

"Furthermore," he said, "the cause of this depression is found back in the last Democratic administration, 16 years ago, when President Wilson 'kept us out of war.'"

It was late when Lieutenant-Governor Winter arose to speak. The other State candidates had preceded him and many county candidates had been presented.

After extending a friendly greeting to his "neighbors in St. Louis County," and remarking upon the lateness of the hour, Winter said:

"Sometimes I think that when I am elected Governor I shall recommend the abolition of the primary. Perhaps I shall not do so. It may be that we can devise a new system of nominations, combining the best of the primary system with the best of the old convention system. That is just a passing thought."

West Missouri Democratic Rally.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 23.—Party leaders announced today an all-day picnic and rally for Democrats of Western Missouri will be held Saturday, Oct. 8, at Odessa. Messages have been sent by State leaders and by T. J. Pendergast, head of the Kansas City Democratic organization, to James A. Farley, national chairman, suggesting that Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana be sent to speak.

SAYS FARMERS WILL DEMAND MORATORIUM ON THEIR DEBTS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Lem Harris, executive secretary of the Farmers' National Conference, an outgrowth of the agricultural holiday movement in the Mid-West, said in a statement today that at least 500 farmers would assemble here in December to demand of Congress a moratorium on their debts.

Harris said caravans bringing disgruntled tillers of the soil have been called to start their march to the capital in time to arrive here with the convening of Congress.

Harris emphasized, however, that they would come only as accredited delegates for a conference extending from Dec. 7 to 10 and then would depart.

SENTENCED TO WORKHOUSE AS INTOXICATED DRIVER

Unemployed Salesman Appeals From 60-Day Term and $250 Fine Imposed.

Anthony Schumert, 5868 De Giverville avenue, an unemployed salesman, was sentenced to 60 days in the Workhouse and fined $250 by Police Judge Blaine yesterday on a charge of driving when intoxicated. He appealed.

James Brislane, 3731 North Broadway, was sentenced to 10 days in the Workhouse and fined $40 for speeding. He pleaded guilty of driving 40 miles an hour near Skinker and Forsythe boulevards.

IRONWORKERS TO FIGHT FURTHER WAGE CUTS

Resolution Adopted at Closing Session of 6-Day Convention Here.

A resolution condemning further wage cuts to ironworkers and empowering union officers to oppose such action, was adopted yesterday at the final meeting of the 6-day convention of the International Association of Bridge, Structural & Ornamental Iron Workers at Hotel Jefferson.

A recommendation to campaign for a shorter working day was referred to the Executive Committee for perfecting a detailed plan upon which action may be taken.

All officers, with the exception of three vice presidents, were reelected. The officers, to serve for a term of four years, are: P. J. Morrin, St. Louis, president; W. J. McCain, Kansas City; secretary, and J. H. Lyons, Cleveland, treasurer. Vice-presidents: William P. McGinn, Charleston; D. M. Gayton, Allentown, Pa.; George McTague, San Francisco; J. A. Evensen, Chicago; William H. Pope, Boston; B. C. Pitts, Houston, Tex.; J. M. Schilling, New York; J. T. Fitzpatrick, Atlanta, Ga.; and William Bauers, Buffalo, N. Y.

Hereafter a per capita tax of $3 will be assessed against each member, $1 of which will be turned into the pension and disability fund of the association. Because of increasing unemployment, term of grace before suspension for delinquency in payment is extended from 30 days to one year. About 250 delegates attended the convention.

35TH DIVISION REUNION HEAD RAKES BONUS ARMY'S EJECTION

Eustice Smith, Also a G. O. P. Candidate, Says Troops Were Not Needed.

SEDALIA, Mo., Sept. 24.—Eustice Smith of Hutchinson, Kan., newly elected president of the Thirty-fifth Division reunion, in a talk at tonight's banquet, said "the bonus army could have been cleared from the dilapidated buildings in Washington in short order and without firing a gun, striking a blow or insulting a citizen." He said he considered it a grave mistake that the "administration deemed it necessary to call troops to quell a riot that was not a riot."

Smith, who said he was a candidate on the Republican ticket, added, "It is a very difficult thing for us to understand that approximately $3,800,000,000 advanced for the large interest of the country does not inflate the currency, but $2,240,000,000 given soldiers or ex-soldiers to pay an indebtedness due in 1945 does inflate the currency when we know the latter payments will be circulated among the smaller taxpayers."

Col. Bennett C. Clark, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, who was in the 140th Infantry, made an address.

Officers elected in addition to Smith were: Neal D. Williams, Excelsior Springs, first vice-president; Frank Barr, Wichita, second vice-president; Gen. W. A. Raupp, Pierce City, third vice-president; Walter Stevenson, Kansas City, Kan., fourth vice-president; Kenneth G. Lewis, Topeka, Kan., secretary; Frank Powers, Nevada, Mo., assistant secretary; the Rev. Earl A. Blackman, Kansas City, was chaplain; Fred Nesbitt, Webb City, was sergeant-at-arms. The reunion in 1933 will be held at Wichita, Kan., Sept. 22, 23, 24.

POLICE THINK ARTIST'S MODEL TOOK OWN LIFE ON HOUSEBOAT

Both Her Sister and Fiance Said to Have Killed Selves; Companion Still Held.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Many sorrows in the life of Sylvia Rochkin today led police to the partial conclusion the artists' model took her own life aboard the houseboat of an artist-clerk on the Potomac River

Police continued to question George B. Speidel, 30 years old, amateur artist and city postoffice clerk, who told police he found the body of the 23-year-old woman hanging from a rafter of his boat Thursday night.

Officers said Speidel, who had been with the young woman throughout the summer after meeting her at the Corcoran Art Gallery, continued to insist he had nothing to do with her death.

Relatives who identified the body said Miss Rochkin's sister took her life by hanging in New York City in 1928. Speidel told police that the woman was nervous and despondent, and that she told him her finance, known only to him as "Phillips," committed suicide several years ago in Greenwich Village.

The Coroner, after an autopsy, said the young woman died of strangulation and recently had undergone an illegal operation.

Player's Mother Football Victim.

FINDLAY, O., Sept. 24.—Mrs. C. C. Latham was among the season's first football casualties today, the result of being struck by her own son, Rawson High School's star halfback, as he rolled from the field into a crowd of spectators during a play. Mrs. Latham, standing on the sidelines with other spectators, suffered a broken ankle.

Visitation Kindergarten Opened.

A kindergarten for children of pre-school age has been opened at Visitation Academy, Cabanne and Belt avenues. The regular school day is from 8 until 5 o'clock, the short day from 9 until 3 o'clock. Registration will continue until Oct. 1.

..slipping ..slipping ..slipping

it's ASTHENIA

● PLUTO WATER ends *ASTHENIA—the want or loss of strength . . debility . . diminution of the vital forces—often due to intestinal micro-organisms. Pluto Water—the biggest selling Laxative Mineral Water in the world—is recommended by doctors everywhere. It is bottled and sealed at French Lick Springs Hotel, French Lick, Indiana—America's Greatest Health Resort. In 2 sizes—20c and 45c.

He had been half expecting it . . and now it had happened!

Men have to "deliver the goods" these days! There are too many others waiting to take their places.

He knew he was slipping . . and he had tried to prevent it. But something inside him seemed to be holding him down . . sapping his vitality He couldn't imagine what was wrong. Yet it was pathetically simple.

His body was being doped by accumulated poisons. Without knowing it, he had fallen victim to that insidious modern malady which doctors call ASTHENIA*.

Without knowing it—that's the disarming thing about ASTHENIA. It drags you down . . it slows your mind . . it robs you of your joys and pleasures. Yet all the while you hardly realize you are slipping.

Millions are in just that plight today. They toss and turn at night . . wake up with a headache . . drag through the day feeling dull, depressed and in constant fear that something serious is wrong.

Are you a victim of this health-destroying blight? Don't think because you're "regular" that you're immune. Physicians will tell you that daily elimination not only must be "regular" . . it must be complete. Otherwise poisons gradually accumulate . . bred by millions of micro-organisms in the digestive tract. Little by little these poisons seep into the blood stream. Then comes that half-alive feeling . . the danger signal of ASTHENIA.

GENTLE EFFECTIVE AGREEABLE

When taken as directed—one-fifth glass Pluto to four-fifths glass hot water . . Pluto Water is virtually tasteless. It is non-irritating and non-habit-forming.

If you feel tired, listless, irritable . . if your work weighs you down like an unbearable burden, decide today to rid yourself of Asthenia. You can do so easily in 10 days' time.

Buy a bottle of Pluto Water and take it as directed—one-fifth glass in four-fifths glass of hot water—every morning for 10 mornings. Don't miss a day—for 10 days. You'll be amazed how this gentle treatment will change your entire viewpoint . . make you see a new world in ten days!

After that—take Pluto Water every Sunday morning regularly, and you'll find that you do everything with new vim and pleasure.

Then you'll understand why for nearly 90 years, from all over the world, people have traveled to French Lick Springs for this famous 10-day Pluto Water treatment . . why physicians everywhere recommend Pluto Water as a mild, agreeable and effective laxative—non-irritating and non-habit-forming. Economical too . . for by actual comparison Pluto Water is the least expensive laxative you can take.

Take PLUTO WATER and see a NEW WORLD in 10 Days!

WIFE DEFENDS MAN ACCUSED OF KILLING BABY STEPSON

Says She Would Rather See Child Dead Than Disobedient—To Be Questioned.

By the Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Ark., Sept. 24.—Mrs. Herman Ledbetter who officers said would rather see her child dead than disobedient today prepared to go to the defense of her husband who is charged with beating his 2-year-old stepson to death.

Ledbetter said the child had been killed in a fall from a wagon, but officers asserted he had been beaten to death and they charged the step-father with murder. Ledbetter was taken to the Jonesboro jail for safekeeping because, Chief Deputy Sheriff C. T. Sullivan said, "of public feeling which is running high."

Mrs. Ledbetter said the child "was not obedient and she would rather see him dead than disobedient," Sullivan said. "She also told us she believed her husband's story that the child fell from Ledbetter's wagon and was killed while he was being whipped for disobedience."

Neighbors brought about Ledbetter's arrest, Sullivan said. "We also learned from neighbors that both Ledbetter and his wife had been cruel to the boy, Mrs. Ledbetter's child by another husband, since the birth recently of another child." The deputy said Mrs. Ledbetter would be questioned tomorrow or Monday and the matter presented to the grand jury in October.

P. S. CO. ORDERED TO ANSWER FOR ITS ONE-MAN CARS

State Public Service Board Allows 10 Days for Reply to Charge Safety Devices Are Missing.

The Public Service Co. has been given 10 days to file with the State Public Service Commission at Jefferson City an answer to a complaint that one-man street cars in St. Louis are not equipped with proper safety devices.

The complaint was filed by H. M. Nelson, president of Local Union No. 788 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, and was based on the recent placing in service in St. Louis a number of converted cars which lack some of the devices previously advertised by the company as contributing to the safety of one-man cars.

Chairman Milton R. Stahl of the Public Service Commission said the complaint would be set for hearing after the company's answer has been filed.

The fact that cars without certain safety devices were being installed on the City Limits line and were to be used on other lines was published in the Post-Dispatch Aug. 31. Safety devices omitted were automatic treadle steps for opening and closing exit doors, foot operated brakes, rear-end back-up control and electric heaters. These and a number of other features were listed by the St. Louis Safety Council a year ago as contributing to the comparative safety of one-man cars as then operated in St. Louis.

When the change to one-man cars was begun about two years ago the company called particular attention to the treadle steps and foot brake controls as safety features. In recent conversion of two-man cars for one-man operation the company saves $1500 to $1800 on each car by omitting these features, and General Manager Samuel W. Greenland said the light traffic on the lines where the cars are used does not justify the expenditure.

Since the introduction of one-man cars about two years ago there have been eight deaths and 29 serious injuries from accidents involving cars of that type. The company's accident record for last year, however, was somewhat better than for the preceding year.

One-man operation is now in effect on 17 of the 28 car lines in the city, although on most lines two-man cars also are operated in the rush hours.

As of Jan. 1, 32.6 per cent of the company's railway mileage was under one-man operation. Rapid extension of one-man operation has been for the purpose of reducing operating expenses in line with the sharp decline in revenue.

ROTARIANS START CAMPAIGN AGAINST 'BUYING WHOLESALE'

Spurred by Theme Song and Speaker Who Said Practice Put Him Out of Business.

The Rotary Club has appointed a committee, has decided to have its own members sign a pledge and to try to enlist the co-operation of other business men's groups all as the result of a depression theme song announced by an after-luncheon speaker at last week's meeting: "I Can Buy it for You Wholesale."

"When Tin Pan Alley starts poking fun at our business shortcomings," commented the speaker, Julian E. Sampson, president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, "it's high time to do something about it."

Sampson, past president of the National Association of Radio Retailers but now a manufacturer, declared that the growing practice of "buying it wholesale" drove him out of the retail business, and not only himself but dozens of others. He was appointed chairman of the committee to do something about it, along with Fred A. Kehl, treasurer of the Electrical Board of Trade, and William K. Norris, head of the McQuay-Norris Manufacturing Co.

25 RESCUED FROM MERAMEC THIS SUMMER BY PATROL

Red Cross Corps Assisted 51 Others Whose Lives Were in Danger.

Twenty-five persons were rescued from the Meramec River this summer by members of the Red Cross Meramec River Patrol and 51 others whose lives were in danger were assisted to safety, Lawrence Cohn, president of the patrol, reported yesterday. The patrol served 2591 hours' duty.

Persons whose lives would have been lost except for rescues by the patrol totaled 24, Cohn reported. Increase of motor craft on the river added to the problems of the patrol, Cohn said. Another source of danger was found to be in the use of inflated inner tubes, which tend to elude the bather, leaving him helpless, the report stated.

Every member of the patrol scored at least one assist or rescue. Raymond Pfeil scored five assists and two rescues. Others who made two or more rescues are Roy Davids, Harold Hubele, Winston Weseloh and John Singer.

Refuses to Enjoin Truck Law.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 24.—An application by the Missouri Motor Distribution Corporation for a temporary injunction to prevent enforcement of the truck length law passed by the last Legislature, was denied today in Kansas City by Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves. Judge Reeves set the case for hearing before a three-Judge court on Nov. 12. This hearing will determine whether a permanent injunction should be granted. The Missouri Distribution Corporation contends that the law, which limits the length of trucks to 40 feet, is unconstitutional.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Security markets assumed a more optimistic attitude this week, charting their courses on widening evidence of business recovery, however seasonal the latter may prove to be.

Wall Street has been noticeably impressed by the contrast between this fall's happenings in the business world and those of a year ago. The country approached the autumn of 1931 with high hopes that the influences which normally make for trade improvement would be felt, and when they were not the disappointment was great. This year, however, there has been tangible improvement. It is recognized, nevertheless that the real test of markets' relatively advanced positions will come when the effects of these gains begin to wear off.

Stocks closed the week with a net average improvement of 8 points on the basis of the Associated Press-Standard Statistics composite. This rise was mostly contributed by Wednesday's robust rally when the market jumped 7 points, its best single-day performance in nearly a year. Thursday witnessed what Wall Street likes to call a "consolidation of the advance," but prices further improved both yesterday and today.

Rail News Prominent.

Railroad news was prominent this week. In addition to the Eastern trunk line agreement with its favorable long-term implications, movement of goods on the carriers continued to expand and freight loadings for the week ended Sept. 17 revealed a jump over the Labor day period, a rise that approached the most optimistic advance estimates.

Statistics on the banking position provided support for the belief that financial confidence had been bolstered some. Currency circulation was down $26,000,000; member banks of the Federal Reserve System reduced their borrowings to the lowest point in a year; and the steady accretion of our gold stocks was maintained. Reports on retail and wholesale trade indicated that buying by the public had expanded, another measure of the appreciation in morale.

Weed-End Trade Quiet.

Rail news provided most of the lifting power under today's higher stock market. Advances, however, were of a moderate nature, even at best, and it appeared that both the large gain in car loadings and the Eastern considation agreement had in market parlance, been largely "discounted."

Improvement of one to two points was general during the first hour and into the second, although trading was quiet. Profit-taking cut down the rise somewhat, leaving an average appreciation for the day of about a point. Turnover totaled 1,336,170 shares.

Several specialties ran considerably ahead of the market, among them Homestake, Mack Truck, Norfolk & Western and Case. The railroad mentioned had a gain of seven points, while Mack reached a new high for the year on its move.

For United States Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Sears-Roebuck, Harvester, North American, American & Foreign Power, International Telephone and Union Carbide net gains amounted to around a point, and there was a similar range for numerous carrier issues. Delaware & Hudson and Lackawanna, in the latter group, lagged. Motors quieted down while the recently depressed oils were a little steadier.

Wall Street was pleased by word that the four Eastern trunk lines had composed their differences over the I. C. C. plan, although it was readily apparent that actual unification was still some distance in the future. However, eventual consolidation, with its resultant advantages was taken for granted.

Meanwhile the four major roads will be confronted with problems arising from the adjustments involved. One point frequently stressed was that the way had been opened to consolidations in other parts of the country.

Freight Loadings.

Firmness of steel shares reflected gossip to the effect that mill operations may be on a slightly more favorable basis by the middle of next week.

Freight loadings in the week ended Sept. 17 reached the year's highest level, thanks to rebound after the Labor day letdown. The rise was 85,478 cars, or 17 per cent, against last year's comparable recovery of approximately 12 per cent.

Wheat and cotton, lately affected by hedge selling, firmed and domestic bonds were steady. Foreign loans, especially Argentines and Australians, improved.

Dry Goods Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Textile markets were generally quiet today. Silk markets in Japan were closed in observance of a holiday. Demand for cotton goods was slow and prices were unchanged. Silk fabrics are moving in fair volume. Men's wear wool fabrics continued in active demand. Burlap markets were quiet.

TRADE SLACKENS, PRICES FIRM ON THE CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Trading slackened on the curb market today, sales totaling 130,000 shares, but prices were firm. Some utilities were up as much as 2½ points and industrials showed many gains of fractions to a maximum of 5½ points.

Electric Bond and Share resumed its advance, rising more than 2 points. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore was up a point. Cities Service and United Light ond Power "A" gained fractionally.

The oils slid off some more under influence of production gains in crude oil and lowered prices for gasoline. Gulf yielded more than a point and Standard of Indiana was off a substantial fraction.

Ford issues were firm. Singer Manufacturing showed further selling, following its recent 1931 annual report, and lost 2 points. The volatile Aluminum Co. stock gained 5½.

By the Associated Press.

The total for the week of Sept. 17 was 85,478 cars above the preceding week when loadings were reduced because of Labor day but was 155,312 cars under the same week in 1931 and 365,259 cars under the same week two years ago.

This was the fifth week out of the last six that car loadings have increased. The week ended Sept. 10 showed a decrease because of Labor day.

Miscellaneous freight loaded during the week of Sept. 17 totaled 217,630 cars, a decrease of 57,947 cars under the corresponding week in 1931; less than car lot merchandise 177,349 cars, decrease 40,563; grain and grain products 35,865, decrease 4325; coal 106,790, decrease 16,215; forest products 17,936, decrease 8627; ore 6558, decrease 23,297; coke 3472, decrease 1134, and livestock 21,702, decrease 3204.

RAILS AND UTILITIES FEATURE BOND LIST

Trading on Exchange Is Most Active for Short Session in Several Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Strength of rail and utility loans acted as a rejuvenative influence on the bond market today.

Trading was the most active for a short session in the past several weeks, sales totaling $6,789,000, par value. The average for 60 corporate securities advanced two-tenths of a point.

The carriers generally reflected the anticipated increase in freight car loadings. The merger agreement, reached yesterday by officials of Eastern lines, also was received cheerfully.

Gains of 1 to around 3 points were recorded by some loans of Allegheny Corp., Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., Chicago & Northwestern, Erie, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania, Reading, Southern, Western Maryland and Western Pacific. Santa Fe general 4s advanced ⅝ of a point to a new year's high and several of the Canadian Nationals reached new 1932 tops.

Among the utilities American Telephone debenture 5s of 1960 moved up ⅝ of a point to 103, a peak figure for the year. Consolidated Gas 4½s and 5s also achieved new year's records and gains of 1 to 3 or more points were registered by issues of Columbia Gas, International Telephone, Postal Telegraph, Laclede Gas, Utah Power & Light, Kansas City Power & Light and Western Union.

The industrials were somewhat ragged, but Otis Steel 6s advanced 3¼ points and improvement was shown by Chile Copper 5s, Liggett & Myers 5s and Vanadium 5s.

In the foreign group the Argentines again were up from 1 to around 4 points and the Australians were in demand at gains of more than a point. Strength was shown by loans of Denmark, erlin, Norway and Queensland.

The United States Government section was moderately firm.

TRADE BUYING AND COVERING LIFT PRICES OF COTTON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. — Cotton was higher today on trade buying and covering promoted by reports of small offerings from the South and firmness in the stock market.

December sold up from 7.29c to 7.47c and closed at 7.43c, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 11 to 14 points.

The opening was 3 points lower to 1 point higher. Comparatively small offerings from Southern or local sources were absorbed by a fairly good trade demand, which appeared to come partly from abroad and the market soon turned steadier on covering.

The late advance reflected covering or rebuying by early sellers as well as a continued trade demand. October sold up to 7.34c and March to 7.60c, or about 15 to 20 points net higher on the active months. The close was slightly off from the best under realizing.

There was considerable switching from October to later deliveries in preparation for the possibility of notices next Tuesday, but trade interests were said to be buying near months at the prevailing differences as compared with later deliveries. The firmness of the near positions seemed to help the tone of the general market.

Some further rains were reported in Texas and unfavorable crop accounts from that section were again in evidence during the day. Houses with Liverpool connections were among the early buyers here and the English market was slightly better than due on the New York close of yesterday.

Private cables said hedging and liquidation had been absorbed by scattered buying and trade calling in Liverpool and reported freer buying of cotton cloths by India and China.

The amount of cotton on shipboard at United States ports awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 139,000 bales, against 81,000 last year. Exports of cotton to the Orient so far this season are about 124,000 bales less than last year, but the movement to Europe has shown an increase of approximately 486,000 bales, as compared with last year's figures.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Expansion in steel demand has been slow this week, but gains in orders, though small, have included a variety of products and steel ingot production increased slightly to about 15½ per cent of capacity, according to trade estimates. Rolled products, tin plate and sheets were in better demands. Prices held steady. Pig iron sales have been spotty, but slight improvement is noted in some districts at unchanged prices.

Copper remained quiet as producers maintained their asking prices at 6¼c for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley and consumers held off purchases. The foreign markets fluctuated irregularly and only moderate export sales were reported.

Tin was steadier in sympathy with firmness at London, but domestic demand was quiet. Consumers were said to have filled nearby needs on the buying movement earlier this month but importers were hopeful of renewed demand, based partly on increasing activity in tin plate mills.

Lead eased owing to restricted demand from consumers who were said to be generally covered into October. Buying improved moderately, however, at the lower level, although sales were said to be smaller than smelter intake.

Zinc was easier as resale offerings were pressed on the market without attracting buying interest. Late in the week there was said to be no apparent disposition to make further concessions, although consumers who had covered needs were still looking on.

Antimony remained quiet. Recent slight concessions reflected absence of demand, but quotations were largely nominal.

World lead output in August totaled 104,202 short tons, against 99,904 in July, says the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. Production in the United States was 17,118 tons, an increase of about 1300 tons for the month.

It is reported in steel circles that plant operations in the Youngstown district during the coming week will begin at a shade under 20 per cent, against the past week's average of 19 per cent and an operating rate of 19 per cent a week ago.

Futures on the New York Cocoa Exchange declined about ¼ cent a pound last week on hedge selling against the new accra crop from the African gold coast.

For the second consecutive week highway construction awards amounted to more than all other types of heavy construction combined, the "Engineering News-Record" reports. Road contracts reported for the week ended Sept. 19 totaled $14,500,000, compared with $16,000,000 in the previous week. Other heavy engineering contracts brought the week's total up to $24,300,000, compared with a September weekly avreage of $22,800,000.

Exports of American cotton last week totaled 129,000 bales, against 82,000 in the corresponding week last year, the New York Cotton Exchange service reports. Total exports for the season to date were 932,000 bales, against 573,000 last year. Movement of American cotton into sight totaled 467,000 bales in the past week, against 463,000 bales last year.

Spot rubber fell below the 4-cent level during the week, but firmed up near the close of the period. Purchases of nearby and forward shipment rubber by manufacturers were reported light in volume.

Heavier standard men's hosiery in rayon and cotton is reported in better demand. It is said that the general improvement in the rayon situation has enabled knitters to contract more freely for their requirements and at the same time strengthen their position on prices.

LEAD AND ZINC ORE PRICES LOWER IN JOPLIN DISTRICT

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 24.—Weakness in the slab zinc market this week was reflected in a drop of $1 a ton in zinc concentrates to a basis of $19 for coarse grades and $18 for floats. Lead prices slumped $2.50 a ton to $32.50 a ton for small lots, and $35 for carlot shipments.

Purchases by smelters totaled 2410 tons of zinc, a drop of 376 tons from the previous week but still well above the week's production. Unwillingness of the producers to sell restricted the total tonnage. Value of zinc shipments was the largest of any week this year. Surplus stocks were reduced to less than 65,000 tons, the lowest figures since May, 1931.

WHEAT MARKET SCORES GAIN IN WEEK-END TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 24.—Foreign takings of North American wheat and tone of securities were credited with lifting wheat prices at the final session of week. The close was down from top but ¾ to ⅞c net higher. There was also comment on world visible. An Argentine crop report also came in for consideration.

Liverpool closed ¼ to ⅜c lower. Winnipeg wheat closed ¼c net higher.

December wheat opened at 53⅛ and May wheat at 59.

EXPORT BUSINESS HELP TO WHEAT IN CHICAGO TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Brisk buying hoisted wheat almost 2 cents a bushel today, largely as a result of augmented export business and of stock market strength.

Some overseas purchasing of United States hard winter wheat was noted, presumably for Greece, and it was estimated Canada had disposed of 1,500,000 bushels abroad, partly to China. Domestic millers in some sections reported improved demand for flour.

Influenced by spread selling, selling from Winnipeg, Minneapolis and Kansas City, wheat reacted somewhat in the late dealings, but closed firm ⅝@1 cent above yesterday's finish, corn ¼ off to ¼ up, oats ⅛@¼ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

There was an official report that the condition of the wheat crop in North Argentina ranged from medium to bad. It was also announced the world's wheat visible supply totaled but 435,000,000 bushels against 533,000,000 a year ago, with the decreases largely in Europe and the United States. Predictions were current, too, that the quantity of wheat on passage to Europe would not show any material increase, a large proportion of this week's shipment being destined to China.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength, but were handicapped by active rural selling of corn to arrive here, 1,300,000 bushels in the last four days.

Provisions were responsive to action of cereals despite hog market weakness.

Cash wheat was ¼c higher today, with the basis firm. Receipts, 32 cars; shipping sales, 12,000 bu; deliveries, 25,000; canceled, 5101; estimated export sales, 1,500,000 bu.

Cash corn was unchanged, with the basis steady to ¼c firmer. Receipts, 329 cars; booked, 405,000 bu; deliveries, 37,000; canceled, 136,987.

Cash oats were unchanged, with the basis steady to ¼c firmer. Receipts, 33 cars; shipping sales, 17,000 bu; deliveries, 10,000.

EXPORT BUSINESS HELP TO WHEAT IN CHICAGO TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Brisk buying hoisted wheat almost 2 cents a bushel today, largely as a result of augmented export business and of stock market strength.

Some overseas purchasing of United States hard winter wheat was noted, presumably for Greece, and it was estimated Canada had disposed of 1,500,000 bushels abroad, partly to China. Domestic millers in some sections reported improved demand for flour.

Influenced by spread selling, selling from Winnipeg, Minneapolis and Kansas City, wheat reacted somewhat in the late dealings, but closed firm ⅝@1 cent above yesterday's finish, corn ¼ off to ¼ up, oats ⅛@¼ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

There was an official report that the condition of the wheat crop in North Argentina ranged from medium to bad. It was also announced the world's wheat visible supply totaled but 435,000,000 bushels against 533,000,000 a year ago, with the decreases largely in Europe and the United States. Predictions were current, too, that the quantity of wheat on passage to Europe would not show any material increase, a large proportion of this week's shipment being destined to China.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength, but were handicapped by active rural selling of corn to arrive here, 1,300,000 bushels in the last four days.

Provisions were responsive to action of cereals despite hog market weakness.

Cash fheat was ¼c higher today, with the basis firm. Receipts, 32 cars; shipping sales, 12,000 bu; deliveries, 25,000; canceled, 5101; estimated export sales, 1,500,000 bu.

Cash corn was unchanged, with the basis steady to ¼c firmer. Receipts, 329 cars; booked, 405,000 bu; deliveries, 37,000; canceled, 136,987.

Cash oats were unchanged, with the basis steady to ¼c firmer. Receipts, 39 cars; shipping sales, 17,000 bu; deliveries, 10,000.

KATY' HAD PROFIT IN AUGUST, FIRST FOR ANY MONTH OF 1932

The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad August net income resulted in a profit, the first month in 1932 to show any, M. H. Cahill, president and chairman of the board stated yesterday.

After deductions for fixed charges the net income was $9404. It was less than that of August of last year.

President Cahill said the Katy's improved showing for August was due more to improvement in general business than to any seasonal freight movement and also to the fact that the Katy has made adjustment between operating revenue and operating expense.

"Carloadings during August showed a substantial gain over July and September carloadings to date show an improvement over the same period during August," the president said.

Dr. Ray Hall, Discharged in Row With Grosvenor Jones, Criticises Commerce Department.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Suppression and distortion of facts in an important economic publication of the Commerce Department was charged today for a second time by Dr. Ray O. Hall, an economist, whose discharge by the department a year ago caused a tempest in statistical circles.

Dr. Hall made public a letter written by him to Secretary Chapin, and an accompanying critique of "The Balance of International Payments of the United States for 1931," the latest edition of the publication which figured in his dismissal and an ensuing investigation by the American Economic Association.

"The critique adduces evidence of the suppressing or distorting of fact in the interest of political expediency—for which your department became so notorious under ex-Secretary Hoover and Dr. Julius Klein," he wrote the Secretary.

Besides this, he charged errors of arithmetic running into hundreds of millions and "an amazing heterogeny of blunders in fact, theory and methodology."

Hall was assistant chief of the Commerce Department's division of Finance and Investment, when in June, 1931, a row with Dr. Grosvenor M. Jones over preparation of "The Balance" led to his discharge.

A month after his dismissal, he wrote to Secretary Lamont, charging the Department with suppression of facts and falsification of figures. Deletion of his references to the effect of the American tariffs and prohibition upon trade figured in the accusations.

Lamont asked the Economic Association to make an investigation. A committee of economists in December reported Hall's charges were not justified. They declined, however, to pass on the "propriety" of Hall's dismissal, and criticised "a disposition of the department to show undue timidity in giving full publicity to factual material that will shed light on some of our national policies, such as the protective tariff."

MANAGER OF TENT FIRM HELD FOR RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

Owners of Avalon Club Identify as Theirs Two Lamps in East St. Louis Concern.

Thomas Carten, 53 years old, 435 North Tenth street, East St. Louis, was arrested last night on a warrant charging him with receiving stolen property, after Mr. and Mrs. Erving Rothschild, accompanied by St. Louis detectives, had identified two table lamps in Carten's place of business at 428 North Tenth street, East St. Louis, as having been stolen recently from the Avalon Supper Club, 4460 Delmar boulevard, which they operate. Carten is a bondsman and manager of the East St. Louis Tent and Awning Co.

A vacuum sweeper, which was recovered from the pastor of an East St. Louis church, also was identified by the Rothschilds as their property. Carten told police he had sold it to the minister and had bought the articles from two men whose names he did not know. He was released on bond.

MISSING BANKER BELIEVED TO HAVE HIDDEN IN BARN

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 24. — Belief that Henry C. Doherty, missing Burlington, Ok., banker, remained near his abandoned car two days, sleeping in a hayloft at the farm home of Mrs. Charles Keller, was expressed today by officers investigating his disappearance.

Investigators said there is a strong indication the banker was near Oklahoma City as late as Wednesday, despite word from a sister at Wichita, Kan.,—Mrs. Agnes J. Jordan—that the mysterious person who telephoned the Wichita home of a brother Tuesday night was Doherty.

Doherty's car was abandoned near the Keller farm, on the road between Oklahoma City and Newcastle, Monday night. Tuesday at noon, a man answering Doherty's description talked with Mrs. Keller at her house, she told Deputy Sheriff W. I. Eads. Eads reported there was evidence someone slept in the Keller hayloft Tuesday night.

Doherty left, presumably for Dumas, Tex., to collect notes held by his bank, which was closed recently due to lack of funds. No irregularities were found by a state examiner who went over the bank books.

The distinguished work in which Ortega has sought, as he says, to "produce an organic doctrine concerning the most important fact of our time" presents an argument so closely and delicately woven that no summary can hope to capture its subtleties and shades of meaning. There are, however, bright strands of thought—they adorn almost every page—to which attention may be called without doing violence to the author's thesis.

What is meant by the title of the book? The author explains in his opening sentences:

"There is one fact which, whether for good or ill, is of utmost importance in the public life of Europe at the present moment. This fact is the accession of the masses to complete social power. As the masses, by definition, neither should nor can direct their own personal existence, and still less rule society in general, this fact means that actually Europe is suffering from the greatest crisis that can afflict peoples, nations and civilization. Such a crisis has occurred more than once in history. Its characteristics and its consequences are well known. So also is its name. It is called the rebellion of the masses.

"In order to understand this formidable fact, it is important from the start to avoid giving to the words 'rebellion,' 'masses' and 'social power' a meaning exclusively or primarily political. Public life is not solely political, but equally, and even primarily, intellectual, moral, economic, religious; it comprises all our collective habits, including our fashions both of dress and of amusement."

It is indeed essential to an understanding of Ortega, as he points out, to remember that he is not speaking in any strictly political or governmental sense when he talks of the domination of the masses. He means the domination of the "mass mind" over the whole structure of civilization. This "mass mind" has come to set itself up as superior to "select minorities." His definition of the "select man" is "the man who demands more of himself than the rest, even though he may not fulfill in his person those higher exigencies."

The Classes of Men.

"The division of society into masses and select minorities is, then," he explains, "not a division into social classes, but into classes of men, and cannot coincide with the hierarchic separation of 'upper' and 'lower' classes.

Spanish Philosopher Diagnoses The World's Disease; Chief Ailment Is Rule of Mass Mind, He Says

Prof. Ortega Sees New Need of Liberalism, "the Determination to Share Existence With Weak Enemy."

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Among the many books inspired by the present confused and disturbing state of world affairs, "The Revolt of the Masses," by Jose Ortega y Gasset, must be given high rank for its profundity and its thought-provoking qualities. Judging by the reviews, the book has created a stir in Europe, and its recent publication in this country, in an excellent translation from the Spanish, has brought forth a wealth of commendatory superlatives from thoughtful critics. The Wall Street Journal, quoted on the jacket, has hailed it as one of the books "of the first importance in aiding the reader to an understanding of the fundamental causes of the world's distress," and Nicholas Murray Butler has called it "a powerful and searching analysis of public opinion and its operation."

Ortega, the author, is professor of methaphysics in the University of Madrid; he is also a member of the Spanish Parliament, and, according to a note by his anonymous translator, "will probably be spoken of as one of the Fathers of the Republic, though his part has been that of an intellectual rather than a political leader."

The distinguished work in which Ortega has sought, as he says, to "produce an organic doctrine concerning the most important fact of our time" presents an argument so closely and delicately woven that no summary can hope to capture its subtleties and shades of meaning. There are, however, bright strands of thought—they adorn almost every page—to which attention may be called without doing violence to the author's thesis.

Explanation of Title.

What is meant by the title of the book? The author explains in his opening sentences:

"There is one fact which, whether for good or ill, is of utmost importance in the public life of Europe at the present moment. This fact is the accession of the masses to complete social power. As the masses, by definition, neither should nor can direct their own personal existence, and still less rule society in general, this fact means that actually Europe is suffering from the greatest crisis that can afflict peoples, nations and civilization. Such a crisis has occurred more than once in history. Its characteristics and its consequences are well known. So also is its name. It is called the rebellion of the masses.

"In order to understand this formidable fact, it is important from the start to avoid giving to the words 'rebellion,' 'masses' and 'social power' a meaning exclusively or primarily political. Public life is not solely political, but equally, and even primarily, intellectual, moral, economic, religious; it comprises all our collective habits, including our fashions both of dress and of amusement."

It is indeed essential to an understanding of Ortega, as he points out, to remember that he is not speaking in any strictly political or governmental sense when he talks of the domination of the masses. He means the domination of the "mass mind" over the whole structure of civilization. This "mass mind" has come to set itself up as superior to "select minorities." His definition of the "select man" is "the man who demands more of himself than the rest, even though he may not fulfill in his person those higher exigencies."

The Classes of Men.

"The division of society into masses and select minorities is, then," he explains, "not a division into social classes, but into classes of men, and cannot coincide with the hierarchic separation of 'upper' and 'lower' classes.

"It is, of course, plain that in these 'upper' classes, when and as long as they really are so, there is much more likelihood of finding men who adopt the 'great vehicle,' whereas the 'lower' classes normally comprise individuals of minus quality. But, strictly speaking, within both these social classes there are to be found mass and genuine minority. . . . A characteristic of our times is the predominance, even in groups traditionally selective, of the mass and the vulgar. Thus, in the intellectual life, which of its essence requires and presupposes qualification, one can note the progressive triumph of the pseudo-intellectual, unqualified, unqualifiable, and, by their very mental texture, disqualified. Similarly, in the surviving groups of the 'nobility,' male and female.

"On the other hand, it is not rare to find today amongst working men, who before might be taken as the best example of what we are calling 'mass,' nobly disciplined minds."

"Aristocratic Organization."

It would seem, then, to be plain (though it has not been so to all the reviewers) that Ortega is not arguing for an "aristocratic" organization of society in the usual meaning of that word. Elsewhere he makes his thought even clearer:

"It is annoying to see the degeneration suffered in ordinary speech by a word so inspiring as 'nobility.' For, by coming to mean for many people hereditary 'noble blood,' it is changed into something similar to common rights, into a static, passive quality which is received and transmitted like something inert. But the strict sense, the etymon, of the word 'nobility' is essentially dynamic. Noble means the 'well known,' that is, known by everyone, famous, he who has made himself known by excelling the anonymous mass. It implies an unusual effort as the cause of his fame. Noble, then, is equivalent to effortful, excellent. . . .

" 'Nobility' does not appear as a formal expression until the Roman Empire, and then precisely in opposition to the hereditary nobles, then in decadence.

"For me, then, nobility is synonymous with a life of effort, ever set on excelling one's self, in passing beyond what one is to what one sets up as a duty and an obligation. In this way the noble life stands opposed to the common or inert life, which reclines statically upon itself, condemned to perpetual immobility, unless an external force compels it to come out of itself. Hence we apply the term mass to this kind of man—not so much because of his multitude as because of his inertia."

We begin to see now the drift of Ortega's argument: that the fundamental trouble with the world today is not that hereditary nobles have been displaced, but that the world is being ruled by a "mass mind" whose predominating quality is a complacent inertia. This rule prevails not only in politics but in all the departments of life. Ortega states the case himself much more precisely:

"If the individuals who make up the mass believed themselves specially qualified, it would be a case merely of personal error, not a sociological subversion.

"The characteristic of the hour," he continues, putting this sentence in italics, "is that the commonplace mind, knowing itself to be commonplace, has the assurance to proclaim the rights of the commonplace and to impose them wherever it will.

"As they say in the United States, 'To be different is to be indecent.' The mass crushes beneath

Radical Change From Present Conception of Democracy Proposed to Avert Its Failure

W. Jett Lauck, Noted Economist, Holds Government Must Regulate Prices and Hours of Labor, if Country Is to Survive the Depression.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.

ABANDONMENT of individualism in business, a fundamental in the ordinary conception of democracy in government, was advocated by W. Jett Lauck, president of the Bureau of Applied Economics of Washington, in a recent address before the National Citizens' League for Economic Recovery in New York City.

In the place of the liberty of individuals and corporations to engage in business and enter into free competition, the latter right guarded by anti-trust laws, Lauck suggested a series of governmental boards to license all basic industrial enterprises, assign quotas of production, fix prices and hours of work and supervise wage arrangements.

He did not discuss the obvious constitutional barriers standing in the way of enactment of so radical a proposal into law. He described the plan of stabilization of prices and production under Federal control as the "only practical method for economic recovery which can now be adopted," and justified it on the ground that under changed conditions in the United States the individual worker is helpless to improve his own economic status. He cited the transition of the country from a predominantly agricultural nation to one in which industry leads, with free or cheap lands no longer available to the man who has no other place to turn for a livelihood.

W. JETT LAUCK.

Tracing the Depression.

The goal sought, as set forth in Lauck's address, is shorter hours and higher wages for labor in order to maintain a balance between production and purchasing power. To the unbalancing of these factors he attributes the depression, which he thinks would not have occurred had labor received its due proportion of the increasing profits of industry.

The plan could be successful, he thought, only if applied nationally and under Federal supervision, conditions which he said were contemplated in the proposal for stabilization of employment made by President Gerard Swope of the General Electric Co.

Lauck asserted that rapid recovery from the depression was necessary to avoid still greater calamity. As background for the plan he believes will accomplish the revival he presented a searching analysis of causes leading up to the present situation which he believes "marks our transition to a new economic epoch."

New Order in Business.

Stating his view that our position is more favorable for overcoming the depression than that of other nations because we normally consume more than nine-tenths of our production, he listed various causes of the economic collapse, saying, in part:

"It will be recalled that in 1923, following the 1920-1921 depression, a bold change was made in our industrial and commercial policies. The leaders of the new order advocated the elimination of waste from industry, the standardization of output, the increased use of labor-saving machines to expand mass production methods and to reduce unit costs of production.

"As a result of this new program it was claimed during the period of 1923 to 1929 that wages and salary rates might be indeterminately increased, greater purchasing power and higher standards of living developed, and, simultaneously, prices to consumers reduced and generous margins of profits maintained.

Where the Trouble Lay.

"All would have been well had the practices of our business life been made to conform to these widely proclaimed principles. But the hope of a new economic era in which the volume of capital gains would be unparalleled, and the welfare of humanity would attain to unprecedented heights, was destroyed through a short-sighted desire for immediate profits.

"First, prices were reduced, but not to the extent which might have been done.

"Second, wages and salaries were not advanced commensurately with lower costs and increased productive efficiency.

"Third, hours of work were not reduced sufficiently to absorb those displaced by new methods and labor-saving machinery. In the beginning of 1929 at the height of our prosperity, it was estimated that 2,500,000 workers had been permanently displaced through technological improvements.

"Fourth, a too large and unjustifiable proportion of output in the light of objectives sought was reserved for profits.

"Fifth, due to uncontrolled competition, there was a lack of planning and of the coordination of production and consumption within industries and as between different industries.

"Under these conditions, disaster was inevitable. Failure properly to increase wages and reduce hours prevented the development of the purchasing power essential to the absorption of accelerated mass output. Unemployment, therefore, gradually increased and production decreased.

"Insane Speculative Orgy."

"Moreover, excessive profits which accrued to industrial corporations were capitalized by investment bankers under the theory that they would be permanent and the securities thus issued during 1928-1929 became the basis for one of the most insane speculative orgies in the history of the country. After industry was forced to slow down in the summer of 1929, inflated security prices could no longer be maintained and the disastrous collapse of stock market speculation soon followed.

"This was distressing enough in itself had it been permitted to stop at this point. But it was not. Our investment bankers and financiers added another fundamental error to their unenviable record.

"In the latter part of 1929 inflated and fictitious security and real estate values should undoubtedly have been deflated. Wages and prices, however, should not have been deflated, because they had never been inflated. As a matter of fact, wage and salary advances from 1923 to 1929 had averaged only 6 per cent.

Purchasing Power Cut Down.

"But those in control of our industrial, financial and credit resources, taking their cue from experience with what they misguidedly thought similar industrial breakdowns in the past, in 1930 decreed, as a condition to revival, reductions in wages, salaries and prices, with the result that the demand for goods was further decreased, unemployment and property losses grew by leaps and bounds, and the most critical situation in the history of our country was precipitated. During the next two years, it is estimated, more than $150,000,000,000 in property values crumbled away, and 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 men were thrown out of employment with a loss of at least $50,000,000,000 in purchasing power.

"Within the past eight months these same financial leaders have been attempting to undo these results of their own folly. Late in 1931, it became evident that the avalanche of deflation which they had precipitated, had passed beyond their control and threatened to destroy everything in its path. Through the co-operation of Congress and the President, all the vast credit and resources of the country were brought into action by bankers and business men in an effort to stop the overwhelming forces of deflation.

"At the present time, the devastation of property values seems to have been checked, at least temporarily. Its permanence depends on whether prices can be stabilized and forced upward. To accomplish this, we must at once develop purchasing power by making it possible for our millions of unemployed to return to work. Quick and comprehensive action is fundamentally necessary. Otherwise a complete economic and social debacle is inevitable. Reason, therefore, admonishes us to let our minds be bold and our action courageous even though it may run counter to convention and precedent.

Loss Through Unemployment.

"As reluctant as we may be to acknowledge it, a careful appraisal of the present situation does not show the existence of any forces or policies upon which we may now rely for hope. An active stock market, reflecting unsupported forecasts of future conditions, is not helpful. Deflation and unemployment have gone too far to permit the slow process of public work appropriations to be of any real value now even if 10 or 15 billion dollars were available. Neither does the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's $1,500,000,000 authorization for self-liquidating projects afford fundamental encouragement.

"If we reduce the potential payroll embodied in the outlay of $1,500,000,000 for self-liquidating projects to a monthly basis, and make the very reasonable assumption that it will be spread over 24 months, the additional monthly payments for wages and salaries would be only about $31,000,000. How little this increased payroll would go towards stabilizing prices and reviving industry may be comprehended when it is recalled that each month we are losing 25 times that amount of our normal payroll through unemployment.

"Our present conservative and traditional policies and proposals, therefore, may be said to contemplate nothing more than a gradual, agonizing upward movement towards prosperous conditions, with the unemployed as the residual sufferers. Aside from humanitarian considerations, such a program is impractical for the manifest reason that human endurance, so far as unemployment is concerned, has already reached its limit."

Lauck explained in some detail his plan for Government boards to control production, prices and wages, admitting that the suggested measures "contemplate a complete reversal of our traditional policies as to the free play of competition in production and distribution."

"The traditional and unreasoning opposition among certain groups of people to governmental intervention in industry," he said in explaining the reasons for his proposal, "is as obsolete as the economic conditions under which extreme individualism or laissez-faire were born and flourished.

Nation Becomes Urban.

"When our self-governing republic was founded, the United States was an agricultural, sparsely-settled country with vast reaches of land available to the needy, the dissatisfied, and the ambitious. Manufactured articles were imported. Our wage earners were handicraftsmen. We remained thus predominantly an agricultural country with frontiers open for settlement until the last decade of the nineteenth century.

"During the past 40 years, however, this dominant characteristic of our country has disappeared. Manufacturing, mining and commerce have been marvelously expanded—we have sought foreign markets—we are the leading financial and creditor nation of the world—the greater part of our population lives in cities or highly congested industrial areas. When industries are dislocated, as at present, or when wage and salaried workers meet with economic disaster, there are no vacant lands to which they can turn, or no frontiers offering the prospect of a better life. They are dependent on industry and commerce. As their incomes create the market for the products of the farm, adversity or the lack of proper well-being among industrial workers also results in commensurate economic losses to the farmers.

Advises Readjustment.

"In connection with the present controversy as to the relations between government and business, therefore, the most significant fact to bear constantly in mind is that the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution were written by an agricultural and individualistic people, and our self-governing institutions, ideals and aspirations must now be adjusted to the changed industrial conditions of the present day. Democratic institutions must not be subordinated to industrial and financial institutions. The spirit of our democracy recognizes the pre-eminence of humanity—that man was not made for industry, but industry for man. If the free play of competitive or individualistic forces is against the public interest; if it results in recurring dislocation and unemployment; if it produces an unequal distribution of wealth and an unfair diffusion of economic well-being; if it degrades instead of exalting humanity, it is manifest that the spirit of our democracy requires that individualism or competition must, by governmental action, be restrained. It cannot be permitted to impair our traditional democratic and human standards and ideals.

"If our original exponent of individualism, and the greatest democrat and humanitarian of our history, Thomas Jefferson, were living today, he would undoubtedly subscribe to this conclusion. Under the changed economic conditions of our times, he would realize, as we all are forced to realize, that our political democracy unless supplemented by sound measures of industrial democracy will be a failure. And this is a possibility, to use the words of one of Jefferson's contemporaries, which we, if need be, must give 'our lives and our fortunes' to prevent."

French View of Germany's Non-Participation Policy Toward Arms Conference

Henri Berenger Says Attitude Is a Blow to Reviving Confidence and a Step Toward War for Revenge.

By HENRI BERENGER,
Former French Ambassador to the United States and Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the French Senate.)

PARIS, Sept. 24.

AT the very moment when the world economic crisis began to diminish and the disarmament conference was on the point of resuming work in Geneva, the German Government indulged in a series of manifestations of which the least one can say is that they have seriously troubled the rebirth of confidence which was assuming form in the world.

Immediately a sharp decline was noticed in European stock markets. Once again money is being hoarded, owing to fears of impending wars, the uneasiness has spread everywhere, like a cloud of deleterious gases over the pacific activity of men.

However well-founded its ultimatum may be concerning equality of rights in armaments it can be said that once again the Government of the Reich has been lacking in the sense of what is opportune, and has shown a want of psychology in choosing for throwing this bomb the very moment when there is a resumption of business and a rebirth of confidence.

No Sympathy Gained.

If it were only for this reason, Germany has derived no benefit from any atmosphere of sympathy, for she has appeared more solicitous for her own personal interest than for the necessary co-operation between nations.

No doubt Germany answers that her demand for equality of rights does not date from yesterday, and that Chancellor Von Papen formulated it in July at Lausanne.

It is fair to recognize that Germany has only confirmed the position she had taken in regard to disarmament, but it is none the less certain that she has not known how to go about her insistence, and that she has merely succeeded in alienating international opinion instead of conciliating it.

It is always to be regretted that Generals should indulge in declarations to the press. Experience has shown that the army should remain silent and that Generals should not turn journalists.

Gen. Kurt von Schleicher did not belie this experience, alas, he confirmed it.

Only One Explanation.

How can one explain such a clumsy, provocative attitude, except by the internal difficulties by which the Reich was faced? While fear of being attacked is being aggravated among the masses of Germany, the desire to attack and to take back from other nations the territory lost in 1919 is being aroused. Thus a veritable fever heat of revenge and rearmament is being fostered among a population of 70,000,000 people.

To this attitude of Germany, further aggravated by internal strife in the Reichstag government, France's reply has reflected unanimity of level-headedness and prudence.

While maintaining the necessity of respecting and the sanctity of international contracts, and without permitting any one nation to violate existing treaties, the French Premier has not refused to envisage possible readjustment of the German military situation.

World public opinion has acknowledged and appreciated the moderation and serenity of such language. It is indeed the reply of the qualified representative of peace-loving democracy. Herriot took care to remind Germany that first one must "respect contracts." No peace would be possible if one or two of the contracting parties permitted modification by their own will of contracts signed by several.

A Dangerous Attitude.

As to stating that the disarmament conference has done nothing and has come to no conclusions, it is a questionable argument of questionable elegance with respect to the 64 nations which have taken part. Is it at the very moment that the conference is going to meet again that it can suit Germany to be absent from the work of peace and to announce that she is going to rearm?

If from threats the Reich intended passing to acts it would be assuming a terrible responsibility, a responsibility analagous to that undertaken by the Kaiser and Admiral von Tirpitz when they had the Lusitania torpedoed. Do they forget that lesson?

To rearm immediately would be to violate yet another contract and they would be ostracizing themselves from the whole world. It would be admitting that Germany has not ceased rearming in secret for many years and that she wished to cover by act of force the clandestine restoration of her army, navy and air force, it would be bringing into question not only the Versailles treaty and the Locarno pact, but even the Washington naval conference.

It would, in short, be the signal for anarchial resumption of the armaments race throughout the world.

At the Crossroads.

Germany, or at any rate the government which pretends to represent it, is today at the crossroads of disarmament and rearmament, that is, of peace and war.

If she wishes disarmaments, in other words peace, she will return to the Geneva conference as well as to the League of Nations and there practice the collaboration that France offers her under the auspices of free international discussion.

If, on the other hand, Germany wants rearmament, that is, a war of revenge, she will leave, as she says she will, the disarmament conference and the league, and she will deliberately put herself outside the pale of treaties and international law; she will again appeal to might against right.

But the experience of 1914 shows that bloodstained roads are catastrophic, even for national existences, and each of us should sincerely hope that the rulers of the Reich will renounce this step in good time and will prefer more reasonable courses of international collaboration.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Democratic candidate for President is out to establish a new record for human endeavor. He is going to assist the movement of population. He intends to embark the Government on a crusade to foster the "readjustment of the distribution of population in general." This is another way of saying, "I favor governmental interference with natural economic laws," as if we don't have enough of this already.

He further states that he wants the Federal Government to eliminate from actual farming marginal lands of cultivation, and use such lands for planting of trees for lumber and pulp. Of course, it only cost New York State $10,000,000, and since marginal lands of cultivation exist in every state of the Union, what a nice sum of money it will take to carry out the program. Furthermore, the direct benefit to agriculture would be questionable, since it does not strike at the root of the farm problem, which is one of surplus and not cost of production. While the Governor's plan may possess some merit, the cost is not worth the experiment, if judged in the light of effect.

The Governor contends that practically nothing has been done toward removing the destructive menace of debt from farm homes. This statement can be challenged. The appropriation of additional capital for the Federal Land Bank System, the allocation of additional funds to agricultural credit corporations and the conferring of greater privileges of rediscount under the Federal Reserve System to intermediate banks have helped to alleviate this unfortunate situation. Mr. Roosevelt asserts that credit must be extended to corporations holding farm paper on the express condition that "every reasonable assistance be given to the mortgagees where the loans are sound, with the purpose of preventing foreclosures."

Is the Governor not aware of two facts: 1. A sound loan offers no problem as to foreclosure. 2. Banks, insurance companies and other corporations holding farm mortgages have, ever since the collapse of values, made extreme sacrifices in favor of the mortgagor. Let the Governor work in a financial institution during times such as these and witness the indulgence of the institution in the circumstances of the mortgagor, who evidences a willingness to co-operate.

The Governor accuses the Republican party of implicable opposition to any plan to raise the price of farm products. Demoralization of prices of farm products is the result of violation of economic laws. Here again Roosevelt's program is tantamount to the proposition, "I favor governmental interference with natural economic laws." Government attempts at price fixing and price adjustment will not work.

The Governor defines his position as favoring a reduced tariff so that the farmer's customers could pay for his surplus with goods the farmer can use. Does the Governor know that by far the greater majority of the purchases of the American farmer are made in the domestic market? As to the increase of the farm export market, does the Governor think it wise to endeavor to increase our 10 per cent foreign trade and risk jeopardization of our 90 per cent domestic market? Furthermore, the Governor's tariff proposals are general and contain no specific data as to proposed changes in our present schedule.

Mr. Roosevelt speaks of Mr. Hoover, while discussing his record as Secretary of Commerce and as President, in a manner such as severely to question the President's sympathy for the distressed farmer. No one, mindful of the President's identification throughout his public career with relief projects, can question his desire really to assist the farmer and to relieve human misery. Friends of the Governor claim for him a character tempered by politeness and the qualities of a gentleman. The people of the nation would like to see some evidence of it in his discussion of the President.

Mr. Roosevelt's program calls for a tariff benefit to the producer of surplus staples over world prices equivalent to the benefit extended to industry, and the application of the differential benefit—whatever that is—in a manner such that the "increase in farm income, purchasing and debt-paying power will not stimulate further production." If we have crop surpluses, as we have had during a period of declining agricultural prices and reduced income to the farmer, how in the name of common sense does the Governor expect to reduce these surpluses by increasing the price of agricultural products?

When the Governor sets the farmer against the manufacturer, he does not assist agriculture or contribute one thing to the economic welfare of the nation. His speech, like his campaign, becomes a mere appeal to class prejudice. However, it is at least consistent with previous utterances and is to be expected when viewed in the light of the purpose of such attractive phrases as "the forgotten man" and making "industrial fodder" out of labor. His "forgotten man" pits the little fellow against the big fellow; his "industrial fodder" sets labor against capital, and his farm speech places agriculture against industry. This is not economic betterment; it is economic disintegration.

S. NELSON TAYLOR.

THE ALTERNATIVE.

In his speech on the utilities Gov. Roosevelt singled out the toppled "Insull Empire" for special mention. He called it a "monstrosity," which is, perhaps, as good a term as the dictionary supplies. He sketched the vicious practices of the Power Trust, such as the subsidizing of the press; the hiring of college professors who compounded the deceit by appearing before audiences and lecturing as disinterested authorities concerned solely with spreading the truth; the "doctoring" of textbooks in the high schools.

The public has been familiar with the shabby, sordid story, through the disclosures of the Federal Trade Commission's investigation, but the facts can stand repetition. "A lie can only be young but once," but the truth never grows old.

Meantime, the collapse of the Insull principality drags its tortuous way through the news of the receivership proceedings. For most of us, it is the tale of a weird adventure in finance which we follow, gropingly and dazed, encountering a revelation occasionally which we can comprehend.

The latest revelation of that category has to do with a special privilege for getting richer bestowed by the Insull organization on a chosen group. There were 205 of those "favored" investors who were permitted to buy 250,000 shares of Insull Utility Investments at $12 a share before the stock had been listed. Some weeks later, when the stock was offered to the public on the Chicago Stock Exchange, the price was $27 a share. The "favored investors," therefore, started off from scratch, so to speak, with a handsome profit, since the stock for which they had paid $3,000,000 was worth, at the market price, $6,375,000 the morning it first opened its wondering eyes on this charming world.

Names distinguished in the marts and the arts appear among the "favored investors," but the most illustrious is that of Owen D. Young, whose participation was reported to be 4000 shares, which would have netted him an unearned increment of $60,000. Such a sum, manifestly, could mean little to a man of Mr. Young's fortune and earning capacity. It is the privilege itself that public opinion is concerned with—the permission secretly extended to a selected few to buy a security at a bargain price denied the investing public. Public opinion has looked with contempt on the behavior of the recently deposed Mayor of New York for receiving handouts from wealthy benefactors, yet there was little, if any, moral difference, it seems to us, between the action of the group that accepted Insull's potential largess and Jimmie Walker's deportment.

Then there is the unfairness in this transaction to the investing public which provides the capital for corporate enterprise. Here is the investing public obliged to pay $27 for a stock which "insiders" obtained for $12. True, the people who bought it for $27 saw it advance swiftly and could themselves have disposed of it to fine advantage. Even so, the two major Insull holding companies, the receivership has ascertained, were "wild cat" projects, "insolvent from the outset," according to one judgment.

Well, where do we go from here? That is the question raised by the wretched history of the Insull "monstrosity." Mr. Roosevelt put it squarely up to our captains of industry in his Portland speech. As regards hydro-electric power, he believes its transmission and distribution should be left to private initiative, if possible, but unless private interests can, and will, deal honestly with the public, then there will be no recourse left but for the Government to take over the entire business.

Such decision, if it is forced upon us, will be another step along the socialistic path. That we are headed in that direction is undeniable. But it ought to be clear that, if public opinion is inclining to socialism, it is not the beguiling visions of that Utopian school that are persuading us. It can hardly be doubted that the sincerity and intellectual caliber of an advocate like Norman Thomas are influencing public thought, but the forces that are driving us on to socialism are the corruption and greed of business as exposed in oil, yesterday, by the Continental Trading Co.; in electric power, today, by Insullism.

NEW ENGLAND CAUTION.

This November, Massachusetts voters will pass on the Norris amendment to abolish the lame duck session of Congress. Since the Legislature will take final action afterward, the decision of the voters will be merely advisory. While the Massachusetts lawmakers could easily have approved the proposed amendment when it was presented to the Legislature, they decided to make use of a State statute providing for an optional advisory referendum on constitutional amendments. That this procedure would be desirable in some cases cannot be doubted. In the case of the Norris amendment, it seems wholly unnecessary. There is not the slightest doubt as to public sentiment. In the six months that it has been available for ratification, 15 states, or almost half the required number, have registered virtually unanimous approval. It only remains for the Massachusetts voters to return a popular rebuke for the seven Senators, including Roscoe Conkling Patterson of Missouri, who voted against submitting the amendment. Meanwhile, the Bay State Legislature carries on its traditional caution.

PAYING FOR THE "VICTORY CRUISE."

Not the least marvelous feature of the recent cruise of Republican leaders on the more important rivers of Illinois was the wide range of versatility its sponsors displayed. Originally, the tour was announced as a "victory cruise," to handshake the voters and sell them on the Republican candidates and issues. When the Democrats questioned the propriety of using a Government barge on such a trip, it instantaneously became a waterways booster tour, positively non-partisan, to stimulate the people with zeal for river improvement. Originally, it also was announced the barge was supplied "through the kindness of Secretary Hurley." This gracious gesture now has been transmuted into a strictly business proposition, for Congressman Hull has remitted $200 to settle in full for rental of the craft.

Now that the Illinois public has viewed the regatta's strictly non-partisan performance, and the Peoria lame-duck Congressman has footed the bill, there should no longer be any doubt as to its purpose. Ex-Gov. Small kissed the babies in the noble cause of river improvement. The candidates dispensed handshakes at the rate of 50 a minute solely to stimulate interest in the great aquatic highway. Speakers shouted denunciations of Roosevelt and Garner, Horner and Cermak, to bolster sentiment for the Lakes-to-Gulf project. If the campaign was mentioned, it was a side issue.

Now the barge is tied up at its wharf, the candidates, after their holiday from politics, have returned to the stump, and Mr. Hull, without even waiting for the first of the month, has closed the account on the books of the Inland Waterways Corporation. But the Illinois river towns, uplifted by the brief contact with unselfish statesmanship, will not soon forget the experience.

A RESURRECTION OF J. Q. A.

It may be true Adamses are always with us, but there is one member of the distinguished family who has been unaccountably neglected by the historians, though he had a profound influence in American history. Certainly it is for no dearth of material that this is true, for Adams left a diary which, after stern abridgment, still comprises 12 bulky volumes. Upon browsing through this rich pasturage and discovering that nearly 50 years had elapsed since Adams' biography was last written, it is no wonder that Bennett Champ Clark, Democratic candidate for United States Senator from Missouri, could not resist the temptation to undertake the task. His "John Quincy Adams, 'Old Man Eloquent,'" just published by Little, Brown & Co., is a scholarly and dramatic presentation of the sixth President's distinguished career.

With few interruptions, J. Q. A. was in the public service from 1781 when, at the age of 14, he became secretary to Francis Dana, accredited but never received as Minister to Russia, until 1848, when he died at his desk in the House of Representatives. Adams had many unpleasant personal traits and a positive genius for making enemies, but his fiery patriotism, his intense solicitude for American rights in all international disputes and his great devotion to duty were qualities sorely needed in the formative period of our country. A lone wolf in politics, contemptuous of party ties, his election as President was somewhat of a miracle, explained by his foes to be the result of a bargain with Henry Clay. The bargain, strongly indicated but not conclusively proved, caused his defeat by Andrew Jackson after he had served one term.

Among Adams' achievements is the acquisition of Florida from Spain, following Jackson's ruthless invasion of Florida, in violation, it was contended, of international law. Jackson's action brought the United States to the brink of war with both Spain and England, but it was characteristic of Adams that, as Secretary of State, he defended Jackson to the utmost and refused to be bluffed by foreign diplomats. As Monroe's chief Cabinet officer, Adams played a highly important role in the formulation of the Monroe Doctrine. Another side of his character was displayed in his fight for the acceptance of the Smithson bequest, later embodied in the Smithsonian Institution, though he would have made use of the money for astronomical observatories. But it was not until the shadows began to fall over Adams' embittered life that he fought and won, almost single-handedly, the greatest victory of his career.

Sitting in the lower House of Congress as the slavery issue became intense, Adams occupied a neutral position in that he was neither an abolitionist nor a pro-slavery man. But at that time Congress was being deluged with anti-slavery petitions and the Southern members, alarmed at the spread of abolitionist sentiment, adopted a gag rule, providing that all such petitions shall be "laid upon the table, and that no further action whatever shall be had thereon." Adams indignantly protested against this infringement of a fundamental right of citizens, and began a campaign against the gag rule which ended victoriously only after 10 years' of acrimonious debate, rising sometimes to almost riotous proportions. Through it all, "Old Man Eloquent" held his ground with an almost superhuman pertinacity.

It proved to be the turning point in the slavery question and, in the midst of it, J. Q. A. laid the constitutional ground for Abraham Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation by declaring that, in the event of "war, civil, servile, or foreign, from that instant the war powers of Congress extend to interference with the institution of slavery in every way by which it can be interfered with . . ." This was a flat contradiction of the Southern position that Congress had no such right. It caused a furore almost unparalleled in American legislative annals, and it gave J. Q. A. a niche in the hall of fame alongside William Lloyd Garrison and Abraham Lincoln.

We are indebted to Mr. Clark for resurrecting J. Q. A., and portraying him, warts and all.

SHE LIKED FLOWERS.

Mrs. Emma Foss, the St. Louis widow who won the $4330 daily double at Fairmount, has a racing formula all her own. She picked "J. George" in the second race because he was the favorite, and "Lilac Bloom" in the third because she had always liked flowers. In other words, you mix dope and sentiment in equal parts. Her scheme may be unscientific, it may be frowned on by the students of the form sheets. Yet who will be so bold as to say so? It won the highest price a $2 daily double has ever paid, and racing returns speak louder, yea, infinitely louder than disparaging words. Mrs. Foss said it with flowers and "Lilac Bloom" responded with the long green.

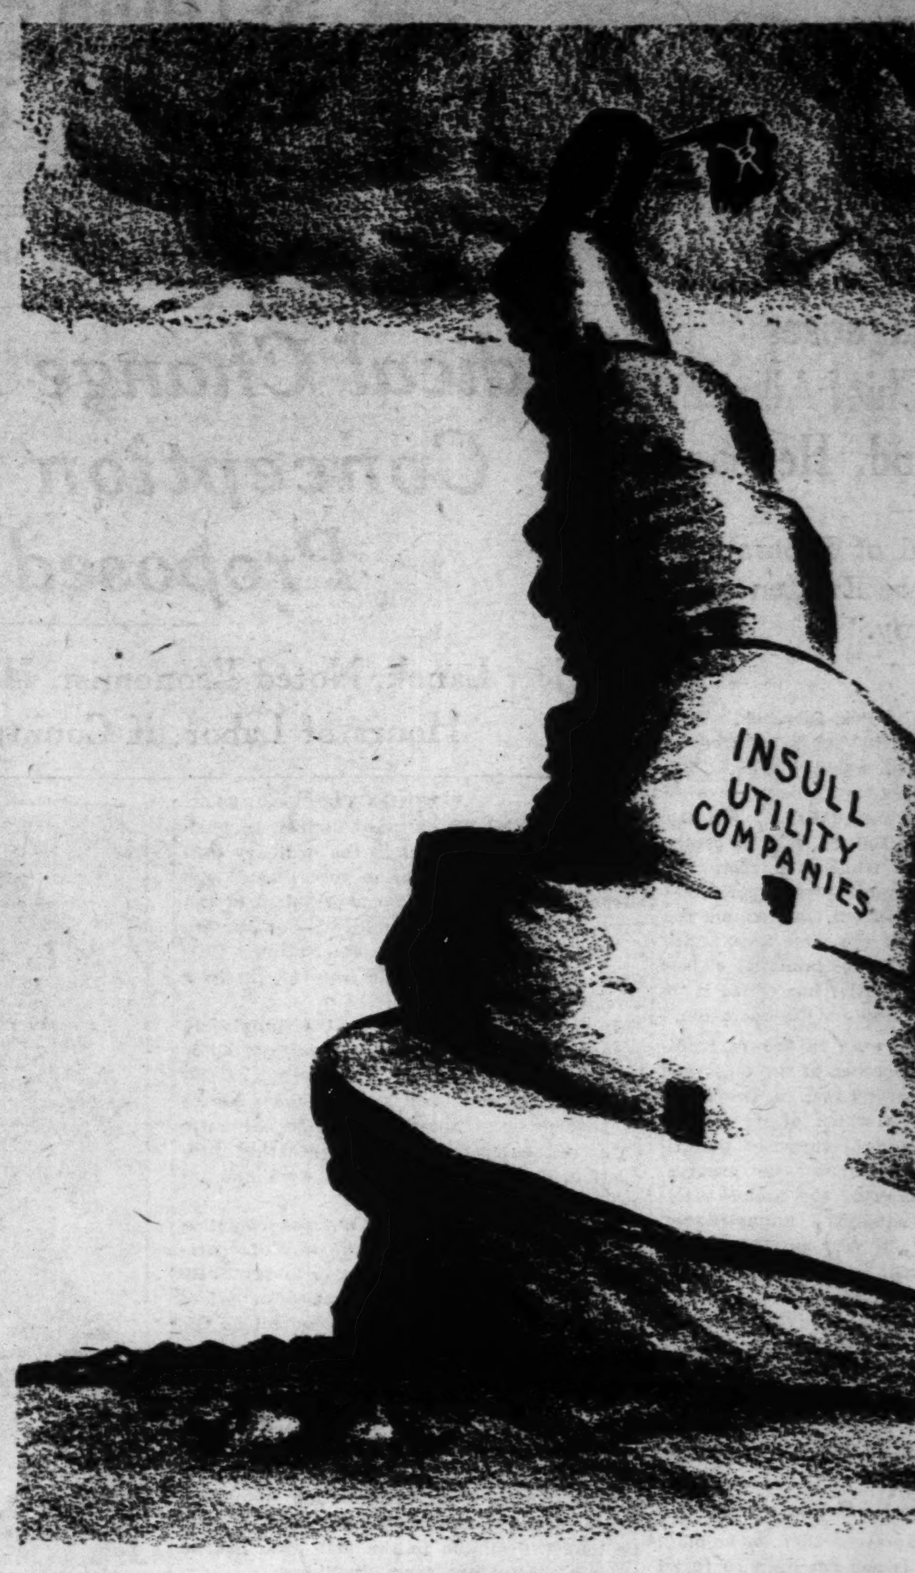
TRANSPORTATION TEARS.

The passing of the Frisco's old Sunnyland and the Illinois Central's Panama Limited, belatedly but artistically noted by the Associated Press, has gone hard on the South. Two of the finest trains that ever crossed the Mason and Dixon line, they were institutions, deep-seated in the life of the hamlets and countryside through which they passed. The Sunnyland went down on the Missouri and Arkansas side of the river, and the stories about its exploits will live long among the Ozark folk who listened for its coming and going. The friends of the Panama were more numerous, but only because of its longer run. South from Chicago it raced, splitting the Illinois prairie like a new plow, across the Ohio and into the Bluegrass State with nightfall. When it whistled, clocks were checked in the old Kentucky home. Some parts of the valley put out lights when it tore through, others knew midnight had come if they heard it rattling out of the hills, others, rubbing their eyes, got ready for another day. No wonder there is lamentation along the bayous and on the plantations. Trusted friends are no more. And so it goes. One generation mourns the passing of the picturesque stage coach. Another watches the romantic river packet disappear for the last time around the bend. Now the Sunnyland and Panama leave an aching void. Some tomorrow the absence of the mail plane's familiar hum in the night sky will grieve an age that has found a swifter way.



MONUMENT TO RUGGED INDIVIDUALISM.

Market Gambling by "Insiders"

Officers and directors who use inside information to speculate in stocks of their own companies are called "disgraces to American business"; Senate inquiry barely lifted curtain on the practice; such breaches of trust should be made criminal at law, writer says; calls for full publicity and higher standard of commercial ethics.

PUBLIC attention should most properly be directed to the persons who take advantage of their privileged position, either as officers or directors of a corporation, in order to play the market. The Senate inquiry of 1932 has thus far barely lifted the curtain upon performances which merit the utmost condemnation. Be they shorts, seeking to smash quotations, or operators for the rise, who would skyrocket prices, the ignominy is the same.

A peculiarly aggravated and disgraceful instance was the speculative pool in Gillette safety razor stock, in which John E. Aldred, chairman of the board of directors, and an inside knot of associates took part. It is not quite clear who was the chief engineer, but the crew has been positively identified. Suits for the recovery of large sums on behalf of the corporation were filed in the Massachusetts courts, and recently settled by substantial payments on the part of the 1930 directors.

Participants in such pieces of business are essentially false to their fiduciary responsibility, whether officers employed at high salaries, with or without undisclosed bonuses—Bethlehem Steel Co. or Electric Bond & Share, for example—or directors. Their immediate interest is the procurement and use of advance information for gambling purposes. The obloquy is indisputable.

The brazen appearance before the Senate Committee of the president of the American International Corporation, or of the notorious plungers in the motion picture stocks, are disgraces to American manhood and business. Openly acknowledging directorships sometimes in from 50 to almost 100 different corporations, they confessed, apparently without shame, to speculative dealings which depended for their profit upon the ups and downs of the market. And little distinction may be drawn in this regard as to whether this market was in effect either a free and open one or manipulated. It is against all such disgraceful breaches of trust that every possible engine of legislation and of public condemnation should be directed.

There is another class of operations having to do with dividend policy which offers a peculiar temptation to insiders for speculative profits. Properties may be unostentatiously fattened through a term of years by means of a conservative policy, which permits ample reinvestment of undistributed earnings in improvement or expansion of facilities. Such a process of fattening—American Can and National Biscuit are striking examples—may or may not be effected openly and straightforwardly. If it be undisclosed, it is bound, just as in the case of livestock, to head up in a "killing." This used to be a favorite indoor sport in the days of unregulated railroad management.

Speculation by insiders is so contemptible as a breach of trust that it should be made criminal at law. The only effective legislation, to my thinking, would follow from the imposition by the Federal Government of such standardized and properly devised systems of corporate accounts that speculation which feeds upon secrecy and mystery shall be shriveled up in face of it. Moreover, such accounts should be currently filed at such frequent intervals as shall lessen the advantage which unscrupulous insiders now derive from the possession of advance knowledge.

It will be objected that the general public is too inexpert to benefit by such information. The answer to this contention is that a cloud of professional statistical locusts hovers over Wall Street, ever ready to devour and to digest such information immediately it sprouts above ground. That is what happens month by month with our great railways under accounting supervision by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Columns in the newspapers are currently filled with these returns, strictly comparable because of necessity compiled upon a uniform basis. How can short-selling, pools or manipulation occur in face of such publicity?

Railroad experience is highly significant as affording proof of the worthwhileness of corporate publicity in checking discreditable speculative manipulation. Nothing like those events, which were notorious for two decades, has now occurred for almost a quarter-century. Not even the recent adventures in holding companies by the Van Sweringens and the Pennroad Co. have been accompanied by such scandals, speculatively, as dotted the railroad map 25 years ago.

For the most reprehensible group of speculators, officers and directors of great corporations engaged in interstate commerce and widely owned, yet further publicity, thus far untried, should be imposed by act of Congress. A scandal, never more in evidence than since 1929, has been the operations in stocks of those who were responsible for management of these companies.

I have in mind the president of a great concern who to my personal knowledge owned several hundred thousand shares of common stock in his company three years ago. The fact was recently disclosed that his present holdings amount to a paltry few thousands. The company is doing business as usual. The market value of these selfsame shares is now less than one-fiftieth of what it was in 1929. When did this chief executive desert the ship and take to the lifeboat? Did he resign as chief officer; or did he continue to steer the ship by radio? Did he notify his "employers," as he customarily called the shareholders, that he was selling out; or did he permit the impression of a continued personal interest to linger, just as if nothing was happening?

The basic remedy for such performances—all too prevalent, unfortunately—is of course a higher standard of business ethics. What manly feats of courage and endurance have not been witnessed by the adoption of an apposite code of honor at sea! But on land—bad cess to it—something far more drastic seems requisite. I would demand the same publicity as to stock holdings by officers and directors at frequent intervals as should obtain by law in respect of corporate financial statements. Senator Couzens of Michigan has recently introduced a bill to this effect. What matter if dummy and fictitious names might be employed? A criminal penalty might do something to discourage such evasion. But best of all would be the moral effect of thus indelibly stamping public condemnation upon all such pieces of business.

Throwing Votes Away

Claude G. Bowers in the San Francisco Call-Bulletin.

SOME time ago Heywood Broun, the popular columnist, who is a Socialist, wrote that "this is a good year to throw your vote away." This is a year that no one can afford to throw his or her vote away.

What Broun was aiming at, of course, was to persuade the reader to vote for Norman Thomas or some other candidate—if there be any—rather than vote for either Hoover or Roosevelt.

Mr. Broun says frankly that, were he forced to vote for one or the other of these, he unhesitatingly would vote for Roosevelt. There are many like him who feel that conditions almost force them to make this choice.

The brilliant essayist admits that there is not the slightest chance in the world to elect Norman Thomas. A vote for him is a "vote thrown away," according to Broun's admission. But there is something more than that—it is a vote indirectly for Herbert Hoover.

The important gentlemen on Wall Street—with all its ramifications—will not "throw their votes away," albeit they are not enamored of Mr. Hoover. They know that he has been a failure; that his ineptitude has been disastrous, even to the element to which he intends to bow, and there are scores of men it would have preferred for the Republican nomination.

But it is Hoover or Roosevelt—and Wall Street will vote for Hoover, because it knows he is sympathetic toward the policies of high finance that have brought on the depression. And it knows Roosevelt is not.

Anyone who is a Socialist or who believes that our present system has gone to the bow-wows and is not worth reforming ought to vote for Norman Thomas. He is an able, cultured gentleman without horns, and he believes scores of things I believe, and his election, even, would not mean the end of civilization. But he cannot be elected. To vote for him is to "throw one's vote away," in the language of Broun.

The big thing before the people this year is to take advantage of the opportunity to rid themselves of an administration throughout which there has been more human misery than this land has ever known.

This cannot be done by throwing votes away. To do this, every possible vote must count.

A MAYOR NOT AFRAID.

From the New York Times.

PURSUANT to his policy of "seeing every citizen or group with legitimate business at the City Hall," Mayor McKee received a delegation of Communists. Their ostensible purpose was to propose plans for relief of unemployment in the city.

With shrewd Scotch sense, the Mayor put his callers through an examination. He was able to show the contradictions between their soap-box utterances and what they came to say to him. Moreover, he easily demonstrated their ignorance of the law and of the financial obligations of the municipality. At the close of the interview, they were the hesitating and embarrassed parties to it, while Mr. McKee was the composed and competent executive.

The whole episode was of happy augury, revealing at once the new spirit which reigns in the City Hall and also reinforcing the belief that in dealing with the Communists a policy of excessive fright and severe repression is not the wisest one.

The new Mayor inspired fresh confidence by the calm and effective way in which he dealt with a situation which seemed like a nettle until it was good-humoredly and adroitly grasped.

WOULD GIVE BACK RESPONSIBILITY

Report Holds Economic and Efficient Management Is Hindered By Too Much Control.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Less Government regulation of railroads was proposed today to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as part of a new national transportation policy designed to strengthen the carriers' economic foundation.

A special committee, under the chairmanship of F. C. Dillard of Sherman, Tex., made the recommendation. It was ordered by the directorate to be submitted to a referendum of the chamber's membership.

Urging that railroad managements be given back much of the responsibility of which they have been divested by law and regulation, the committee said:

"The fact of the matter is that wise, economical and efficient management is not advanced but hindered by a rigid regulation.

"The wisest, most economical and efficient management, with railroads as well as other business organizations, is where the responsibility for the operation and the earnings of a property rest upon the management, whose responsibility may not be shifted to some regulating commission."

Flexibility of Earnings.

Specifically, the committee proposed stabilization of railroad credit by allowing the carriers greater flexibility in earnings, according to business conditions; revision of the rule of rate making and repeal of the recapture clause of the Interstate Commerce act which compels the roads to turn into the Federal Treasury all of their net earnings above 6 per cent; adoption of measures which would enable the roads to adapt their organizations and operations to economic conditions and give them "fair opportunity to meet the competition of other forms of transportation."

Other recommendations included:

That railroad companies be permitted to engage in transportation on the waterways and highways on an equal basis with other carriers.

That Federal and State authorities allow prompt establishment by railroads of new rates to meet competition of other forms of transportation;

That the long and short haul provisions of the interstate commerce act be amended to place upon the rail carriers responsibility for determining whether proposed rates are reasonably compensatory.

"Ceased to Be Monopoly."

"The railway industry has largely ceased to be a monopoly," the report said, "and must retain its position as the principal transportation agency of the country by adapting itself to the conditions as they exist.

"Railway labor should, in its own interest, recognize these facts and accept the necessary adjustment of wages, rules and working conditions."

Following closely upon announcement in New York yesterday that the four major eastern railways had agreed to the interstate commerce commission's plan for consolidation into four big trunk lines, the report said:

"Consolidation will doubtless be of assistance in promoting financial stability of the carriers but the fact remains that some of the larger systems, already well advanced on their consolidation programs, have had to have recourse to the Government for funds to meet their obligations in the present emergency. Adequate financial stabilization of railroads thus requires other measures in addition to consolidation."

The report suggested it should be the objective of national transportation policies to permit and encourage reduction of fixed indebtedness of railroads during prosperous times and thus render unnecessary in the future "such extensive borrowings as are declared essential and entirely justified in the present emergency."

WOULD GIVE BACK RESPONSIBILITY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Less Government regulation of railroads was proposed today to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as part of a new national transportation policy designed to strengthen the carriers' economic foundation.

A special committee, under the chairmanship of F. C. Dillard of Sherman, Tex., made the recommendation. It was ordered by the directorate to be submitted to a referendum of the chamber's membership.

Urging that railroad managements be given back much of the responsibility of which they have been divested by law and regulation, the committee said:

"The fact of the matter is that wise, economical and efficient management is not advanced but hindered by a rigid regulation.

"The wisest, most economical and efficient management, with railroads as well as other business organizations, is where the responsibility for the operation and the earnings of a property rest upon the management, whose responsibility may not be shifted to some regulating commission."

Flexibility of Earnings.

Specifically, the committee proposed stabilization of railroad credit by allowing the carriers greater flexibility in earnings, according to business conditions; revision of the rule of rate making and repeal of the recapture clause of the Interstate Commerce act which compels the roads to turn into the Federal Treasury all of their net earnings above 6 per cent; adoption of measures which would enable the roads to adapt their organizations and operations to economic conditions and give them "fair opportunity to meet the competition of other forms of transportation."

Other recommendations included:

That railroad companies be permitted to engage in transportation on the waterways and highways on an equal basis with other carriers.

That Federal and State authorities allow prompt establishment by railroads of new rates to meet competition of other forms of transportation;

That the long and short haul provisions of the interstate commerce act be amended to place upon the rail carriers responsibility for determining whether proposed rates are reasonably compensatory.

"Ceased to Be Monopoly."

"The railway industry has largely ceased to be a monopoly," the report said, "and must retain its position as the principal transportation agency of the country by adapting itself to the conditions as they exist.

"Railway labor should, in its own interest, recognize these facts and accept the necessary adjustment of wages, rules and working conditions."

Following closely upon announcement in New York yesterday that the four major eastern railways had agreed to the interstate commerce commission's plan for consolidation into four big trunk lines, the report said:

"Consolidation will doubtless be of assistance in promoting financial stability of the carriers but the fact remains that some of the larger systems, already well advanced on their consolidation programs, have had to have recourse to the Government for funds to meet their obligations in the present emergency. Adequate financial stabilization of railroads thus requires other measures in addition to consolidation."

The report suggested it should be the objective of national transportation policies to permit and encourage reduction of fixed indebtedness of railroads during prosperous times and thus render unnecessary in the future "such extensive borrowings as are declared essential and entirely justified in the present emergency."

Spanish Philosopher Diagnoses World's Disease

it everything that is different, everything that is excellent, individual, qualified and select. Anybody who is not like everybody, who does not think like everybody, runs the risk of being eliminated. And it is clear, of course, that this 'everybody' is not 'everybody.' 'Everybody' was normally the complex unity of the mass and the divergent, specialised minorities. Nowadays, 'everybody' is the mass alone. Here we have the formidable fact of our times, described without any concealment of the brutality of its features."

Application to Words.

This thesis—the failure of the mass mind to comprehend and make intelligent and civilized use of the incomparable technical equipment at its disposal; its overweening self-satisfaction; its hatred of anything that is "different"; its contentment with slogans and phrases as the guides to political and social conduct—this thesis is maintained by the author through a series of brilliantly written chapters. He writes primarily of Europe, but his words are of universal application. Thus he says:

"We live at a time when man believes himself fabulously capable of creation, but he does not know what to create. Lord of all things, he is not lord of himself. He feels lost amid his own abundance. With more means at his disposal, more knowledge, more technique than ever, it turns out that the world today goes the same way as the worst of worlds that have been; it simply drifts . . . To him is happening what was said of the Regent during the minority of Louis XV: He had all the talents except the talent to make use of them."

In a chapter headed, "A Statistical Fact," the author deals searchingly with the kind of governments found in those countries where the mass mind has scored its greatest triumphs. These are all-powerful governments, "and yet public authority exists from hand to mouth, it does not offer itself as a frank solution for the future. . . It lives without any vital program, any plan of existence. It does not know where it is going, because, strictly speaking, it has no fixed road, no predetermined trajectory, before it. . . . It shuts itself up in the present and says with perfect sincerity, 'I am an abnormal government imposed by circumstances.'

"Hence its activities are reduced to dodging the difficulties of the hour; not solving them, but escaping them for the time being, employing any methods whatsoever, even at the cost of accumulating thereby still greater difficulties for the hour which follows. . . .

"Simply Drifting Along."

"The mass man is he whose life lacks any purpose, and simply goes drifting along. Consequently, though his possibilities and his powers be enormous, he constructs nothing. And it is this type of man who decides in our time."

Ortega asks the question: "Whence have come all these multitudes which nowadays fill to overflowing the stage of history?" and proceeds then to shatter the commonly held delusion that the population increase in the United States during the last century has been greater than that in Europe. He points out that from the beginning of European history in the sixth century up to 1800, the population of Europe did not reach higher than 180,000,000, but that from 1800 to 1914, or little more than a century, the total mounted to 460,000,000.

"I take it," he comments, "that the contrast between these figures leaves no doubt as to the prolific qualities of the last century. In three generations it produces a gigantic mass of humanity which, launched like a torrent over the historic area, has inundated it. The fact should make us realize the triumph of the masses and all that is implied and announced by it. . . .

"At the same time, this fact proves to us how unfounded is our admiration when we lay stress on the increase of new countries like the United States of America. We are astonished at this increase, which has reached to 100,000,000 in a century, when the really astonishing fact is the teeming fertility of Europe. Here we have another reason for correcting the deceptive notion of the Americanization of Europe. Not even that characteristic which might seem specifically American—the rapidity of increase in population—is peculiarly such. Europe has increased in the last century much more than America. America has been formed from the overflow of Europe."

Formula of Public Life.

And then the author ties together the strands of his thought in this neat and consistent pattern:

"The whole of history stands out as a gigantic laboratory in which all possible experiments have been made to obtain a formula of public life most favorable to the plant 'man.' And beyond all possible explaining away, we find ourselves face to face with the fact that, by submitting the seed of humanity to the treatment of two principles, liberal democracy and technical knowledge, in a single century the species in Europe has been triplicated.

"Such an overwhelming fact forces us . . . to draw these conclusions: First, that liberal democracy based on technical knowledge is the highest type of public life hitherto known; secondly, that that type may not be the best imaginable, but the one we imagine as superior to it must preserve the essence of those two principles; and thirdly, that to return to any forms of existence inferior to that of the nineteenth century is suicidal.

"Once we recognise this with all the clearness that the clearness of the fact itself demands, we must then rise up against the nineteenth century. If it is evident that there was in it something extraordinary and incomparable, it is no less so that it must have suffered from certain radical vices, certain constitutional defects, when it brought into being a caste of men—the mass man in revolt—who are placing in imminent danger those very principles to which they owe their existence.

"If that human type continues to be master in Europe, 30 years will suffice to send our continent back to barbarism. Legislative and industrial technique will disappear with the same facility with which so many trade secrets have often disappeared. The whole of life will be contracted. The actual abundance of possibilities will change into practical scarcity, a pitiful impotence, a real decadence. For the rebellion of the masses is one and the same thing with what Rathenau called 'the vertical invasion of the barbarians.' It is of greatest importance, then, to understand thoroughly this mass man with his potentialities of the greatest good and the greatest evil."

What the Mass Man Is.

With merciless surgery Ortega dissects this mass man. He is ungrateful toward all that has made possible the ease of his existence; in this respect he has "the well-known psychology of the spoilt child." He takes for granted, like the air he breathes, the complex material and social organization which has been placed at his disposal. He imagines that his role is limited to demanding, as a natural right, the benefits of a civilization whose marvels "can only be maintained by great effort and foresight"—that is, as Ortega says in another place, by effortful nobility. He (this mass man) is completely satisfied with himself.

"Contrary to what is usually thought," the author interpolates, "it is the man of excellence and not the common man who lives in essential servitude. Life has no savor for him unless he makes it consist in service to something transcendental. Hence he does not look upon the necessity of serving as an oppression. When, by chance, such necessity is lacking, he grows restless and invents some new standard, more difficult, more exigent, with which to coerce himself. This is life lived as a discipline—the noble life."

Continuing his indictment of the mass man, the author finds him lacking in the subtle powers necessary to preserve our present civilization. "Ill fitted to direct it is this average man who has learned to use much of the machinery of civilization, but who is characterized by root ignorance of the very principles of that civilization." Feeling the lack of nothing outside himself, this mass man "settles down definitely amid his mental furniture."

"We find ourselves," continued the author, "met with the same difference that eternally exists between the fool and the man of sense. The latter is constantly catching himself within an inch of being a fool; hence he makes an effort to esccape from the imminent folly, and in that effort lies his intelligence. The fool, on the other hand, does not suspect himself; he thinks himself the most prudent of men, hence the enviable tranquillity with which the fool settles down, installs himself in his own folly. . . . The fool is a fool for life; he is devoid of pores. This is why Anatole France said that the fool is much worse than the knave, for the knave does take a rest sometimes, the fool never."

The mass man "accepts the stock of commonplaces, prejudices, fag-ends of ideas or simply empty words which chance has piled up within his mind, and with a boldness only explicable by his ingenuousness, is prepared to impose them everywhere."

Definition of Liberalism.

What is that "liberal democracy" we encountered in an earlier paragraph?

"The political doctrine which has represented the loftiest endeavor toward common life is liberal democracy," writes Ortega. "It carries to the extreme the determination to have consideration for one's neighbor and is the prototype of 'indirect action.' Liberalism is that principle of political rights according to which the public authority, in spite of being all-powerful, limits itself and attempts, even at its own expense, to leave room in the state over which it rules for those to live who neither think nor feel as it does; that is to say, as do the stronger, the majority.

"Liberalism—it is well to recall this today—is the supreme form of generosity; it is the right which the majority concedes to minorities and hence it is the noblest cry that has ever resounded in this planet. It announces the determination to share existence with the enemy; more than that, with an enemy which is weak. It was incredible that the human species should have arrived at so noble an attitude, so paradoxical, so refined, so acrobatic, so anti-natural. Hence it is not to be wondered at that this same humanity should soon appear anxious to get rid of it. It is a discipline too difficult and complex to take firm root on earth.

"Share our existence with the enemy! Govern with the opposition! Is not such a form of tenderness beginning to seem incomprehensible? Nothing indicates more clearly the characteristics of the day than the fact that there are so few countries where an opposition exists. In almost all, a homogeneous mass weighs on public authority and crushes down, annihilates every opposing group. The mass—who would credit it as one sees its compact, multitudinous appearance?—does not wish to share life with those who are not of it. It has a deadly hatred of all that is not itself."

Ortega suggests in a sentence his reason for writing the book: "Today it has become necessary to stir up an exaggerated sense of responsibility in those capable of feeling it, and it seems of supreme urgency to stress the evidently dangerous aspect of present-day symptoms."

Decline of Natural Sciences.

He finds it disquieting that now for the first time since the Renaissance there is a decline in the enthusiasm of the people for the natural sciences. This retrogression, he says, has occurred in the generation of those between 20 and 30.

"It is becoming difficult," he writes, "to attract students to the laboratory of pure science. And this is happening when industry is reaching its highest stage of development, and when people in general are showing still greater appetite for the use of the apparatus and the medicines created by science. . . .

"What is the significance to us of so paradoxical a situation? This essay is an attempt to prepare the answer to that question. The meaning is that the type of man dominant today is a primite one, a Naturmensch rising up in the midst of a civilized world.

"The world is a civilized one, its inhabitant is not: he does not see the civilization of the world around him, but he uses it as if it were a natural force. The new man wants his motor car, and enjoys it, but he believes that it is the spontaneous fruit of an Edenic tree. In the depths of his soul he is unaware of the artificial, almost incredible, character of civilization, and does not extend his enthusiasm for the instruments to the principles which make them possible.

"The actual mass man is, in fact, a primitive who has slipped through the wings on to the age-old stage of civilization."

"Learned Ignoramus."

Space limits prevent an excursion into the by-ways of Prof. Ortega's discourse. But one of these—an essay in itself—should be mentioned. It is the chapter called "The Barbarism of 'Specialization,'" and the thesis is that the typical specialist of today, with his knowledge of merely "his own tiny corner of the universe," is not entitled to the esteem in which he holds himself, but is in fact "a learned ignoramus." And this, the author says, is "a very serious matter, as it implies that he is a person who is ignorant, not in the fashion of the ignorant man, but with all the petulance of one who is learned in his own special line."

"These partially qualified men . . . symbolize, and to a great extent constitute, the actual dominion of the masses, and their barbarism is the most immediate cause of European demoralization. Furthermore, they afford the clearest, most striking example of how the civilization of the last century, abandoned to its own devices, has brought about this rebirth of primitivism and barbarism.

"The most immediate result of this unbalanced specialization has been that today, when there are more 'scientists' than ever, there are much less 'cultured' men than, for example, about 1750."

One other pause before we skip to the author's estimate of the Russian experiment. This souvenir must be added to the collection:

"The man who discovers a new scientific truth has previously had to smash to atoms almost everything he had learnt, and arrives at the new truth with hands bloodstained from the slaughter of a thousand platitudes."

Views of Russia.

What of Russia? Ortega gives his views on Communism in a chapter suggesting that Europe shake off the bonds of its nationalism and embark on a great unifying process—the dream of the late Aristide Briand.

"Only the determination to construct a great nation from the group of peoples of the Continent would give new life to the pulses of Europe," he writes. "She would start to believe in herself again, and automatically to make demands on, to discipline, herself. But, as has always happened in the process of nation-forming, the union of Europe is opposed by the conservative classes. This may well mean destruction for them, for to the general danger of Europe becoming definitely demoralized and losing all its historic strength is added another, more concrete and more imminent."

This is the danger that the "Red torrent" will engulf Europe. Ortega is no friend of Communism. He wrote at the time Communism triumphed in Russia that it was "a substance not assimilable by the European, a type that has in its history thrown all its efforts and energies in the scale of individualism." He repeats that the creed of Russian Communism does not appeal to the European, who fails to see in it "an increase of human happiness."

Why then, the "imminent danger" that Europe will embrace the creed? Ortega explains:

"It seems to me quite possible that in the next few years Europe may grow enthusiastic for Bolshevism. Not for its own sake, rather in spite of what it is. Imagine that the five years' plan . . . fulfills expectations and that the ecnomic situation in Russia is not only restored, but much improved. Whatever the content of Bolshevism be, it represents a gigantic human enterprise. . . .

What Might Happen.

"If natural forces, so responseless to the enthusiasms of man, do not bring failure to this attempt; if they merely give it free scope to act, its wonderful character of a mighty enterprise will light up the continental horizon as with a new and flaming constellation. If Europe, in the meantime, persists in the ignoble vegetative existence of these last years, its muscles flabby for want of exercise, without any plan of a new life, how will it be able to resist the contaminating influence of such an astounding enterprise? . . . .

"For the sake of serving something that will give a meaning to his existence, it is not impossible that the European may swallow his objections to Communism and feel himself carried away not by the substance of the faith, but by the fervor of conduct it inspires.

"To my mind, the building up of Europe into a great national state is the one enterprise that could counterbalance a victory of the five years' plan. Experts in political economy assure us that such a victory has little probability in its favor. But it would be a degradation, indeed, if anti-Communism were to hope for everything from the material difficulties encountered by its adversary. His failure would then be equivalent to universal defeat of actual man. Communism is an extravagant moral code, but nothing less than a moral code. Does it not seem more worthy and more fruitful to oppose to that Slavonic code a new European code, the inspiration towards a new program of life?"

CURTIS PRAISES HOOVER BEFORE KENTUCKY AUDIENCE

Says Executive Is Only President Who Ever Took Action During a Depression.

By the Associated Press.

DANVILLE, Ky., Sept. 24.—Bringing the Republican campaign to the blue grass, Vice-President Charles Curtis today told an audience that packed the county courthouse and overflowed into the street that Hoover is the only President who ever took action during a business depression.

Concluding his 40-minute address with a eulogy of Hoover, the Vice-President said, "with the President, from the very moment the time came, he has been working on some plan to relieve the situation."

Maurice H. Thatcher, Republican nominee for the United States Senate, was cheered when he reiterated that he opposed repeal of the eighteenth amendment but would vote for a "guarded proposal" to submit the matter to the people.

Both Curtis and Thatcher defended the Republican tariff, immigration and farm relief policies, and Curtis praised the work of Thatcher in Congress.

During a pause in his discussion of farm relief someone shouted "hooray" from outside the courthouse. Curtis aroused laughter with the remark, "Give that fellow some paregoric."

JOB-SHARING CAMPAIGN BEING ORGANIZED HERE

Committee of 22 Named to Lead Drive in Eighth Reserve District.

Twenty-two business men were named yesterday to serve on the St. Louis district committee in the national share-the-work compaign. This group, headed by A. L. Shapleigh, chairman of the board of Shapleigh Hardware Co., will have charge of the effort in those parts of Southern Illinois and Missouri which are in the Eighth Federal Reserve District.

BARNEY HAUGHEY DIES AT 73

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 24.—Barney Haughey, 73 years of age, old-age pension champion, who seven years ago pleaded for "humane extinction" to end his sufferings, died here yesterday in a hospital charity ward. Haughey's plea, coming soon after several so-called "mercy killings," lifted him for a time to national attention as his friends debated the question of his appeal for "scientific dispatch of persons suffering from incurable and torturing diseases."

The charity ward in which the one-time brilliant lawyer died is the same in which he was confined at the time he made his request for "humane extinction." James Eads How, "millionaire hobo," who died in 1930, named Haughey in his will as one of the three trustees of the bulk of How's estate, left in trust for the "benefit and behoof of the workers of the world." The bequest was found to be invalid under Ohio law, which requires that bequests to charity must be made at least one year before the testaator's death, whereas How's will, filed in Cincinnai, was made a few days before he died.

WARNS STATE AGAINST TAKING FEDERAL AID

Prof. Burr, Missouri U.., Says State Is Mortgaging Its Future by Doing So.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 24.—Missouri is mortgaging its future by accepting loans from the Federal Government for the relief of unemployment, Prof. Walter Burr of the University of Missouri, secretary of the Missouri Unemployment Relief Committee, says.

"It is degrading and unseemly that a great State like Missouri should become a suppliant for relief before the nation," he asserted in an interview today.

Burr pointed out that loans made to states by the corporation bear 3 per cent interest. If not repaid, this money is to be withheld from road funds allocated to the State beginning with 1935; the Federal Government to withhold one-fifth each year with accumulated interest until the amount is repaid.

"We cannot long remain free when we bind ourselves to a central Government by accepting gifts," Burr went on. "If all of the great industrial cities and the rural counties should draw heavily upon this fund, which is supposed to last for two years, it would not last for two months. Then with the habit formed, the next session of Congress would be apealed to for a still larger appropriation for relief."

Burr said the nation would be "sunk" if the Federal Government were "put into the business of paying for and administering relief. In the last analysis this money can come only from taxation of the people."

"It is incumbent on every municipality and county to care for itself," he said. "The morale of the municipality or county that receives relief from the outside will suffer the same kind of breakdown a family does when it receives money from local sources."

Burr supported his statement that "poverty may become a habit" with a case discovered by him in which 80 people, relatives of a family which started receiving relief in 1880 are now on the poor-relief list.

Burr has been granted a leave of absence until Jan. 1, in order to assist the state in administering the Federal funds allotted to Missouri for unemployment relief, President Walter Williams of the University of Missouri announced today.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

MANY PLAYS Booked for NEW SEASON

All Road Shows Will Play American Theater, Which Will Open October 10 With Philip Merivale in "Cynara"—Some of the New Plays in New York.

THE American Theater, which has been designated as the house to play all the legitimate attractions in St. Louis the coming season, will open on Monday night, Oct. 10, with Philip Merivale, supported by Sir Guy Standing, Phoebe Foster and Nancy Sheridan, in the dramatic play, "Cynara," as the first attraction. The play, presented by Lee Shubert, had long runs in London and New York and in the latter city was hailed by all metropolitan critics as one of the outstanding plays of the year. It is coming here with the New York cast of 30 or more players, intact.

"Cynara" deals with an unique angle of the eternal triangle and is thoroughly modern in every respect. Its story concerns an upright, home-loving, successful lawyer, who, during the absence of his wife, becomes unwillingly involved in a tender romance with a mannequin, which leads to many serious and unexpected complications.

Following "Cynara," the American will present Cornelia Otis Skinner, daughter of the noted actor, Otis Skinner, in a series of impersonations. The week of Oct. 24 will be devoted to the comedy, "Whistling in the Dark," with Ernest Truex.

OTHER attractions already booked for the American include Donald Brian, Virginia O'Brien and Roy Cropper in a revival of "The Merry Widow;" Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in the Theater Guild's production of "Reunion in Vienna;" the Pulitzer prize musical comedy, "Of Thee I Sing;" "The Warrior's Husband;" Ed Wynn in "The Laugh Parade;" the Abbey Players from Dublin, Ireland; the successful comedy, "Another Language;" the San Carlos Grand Opera Company; "Counsellor-at-Law," with Paul Muni; Earl Carroll "Vanities;" the operetta, "Cat and the Fiddle;" "Springtime for Henry," and Walter Hampden in "Capponsachi."

Also scheduled for the American following their New York presentations are these dramatic attractions: "Autumn Crocus," "Musical Chairs," "The Good Earth," "A Trip to Pressburg," "The Pure in Heart" and "This Side Idolatry."

The American Theater Society, which is a merger of the New York Theater Guild and Shubert subscription organizations in various cities, will present a subscription series of six plays here at the American Theater. Already announced for the series are "Cynara," "Whistling in the Dark" and "Reunion in Vienna." The three other plays for the series will be selected from a list including "Springtime for Henry" and the six plays last mentioned in the paragraph above.

AND, speaking of the Theater Guild, its youthful offspring, the Group Theater, goes into New York from its summer hideaway this week to present a play which it has been rehearsing in private for three months. This is John Howard Lawson's "Success Story," and, judging from the Group's past productions, it is likely to be a propaganda drama of some sort. The Group members are not only interested in experimentation in the theater, but one of their main tenets is that all their plays must carry a message of some sort. Franchot Tone, who was leading man for Jane Cowl last season, will have the principal role.

Three other shows have their premieres scheduled for this week. Tuesday night will see the arrival of the new edition of Earl Carroll's "Vanities." The other two are "Bidding High," a comedy, and "Ol' Man Satan," a drama with music.

Fannie Hurst to Write Movie.

Fannie Hurst, author of "Humoresque" and numerous other stories which have been made into motion pictures, has been signed to write an original story directly for the screen.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS

By Nie

THERE isn't very much to say about Harold Lloyd's new picture, "Movie Crazy"—his first film in two years—beyond pointing out that it is one of the funniest comedies the screen has ever had and that it is the star's finest laugh maker. After all that is saying a great deal for Lloyd, always enjoyable, has turned out some dandy ones in his time but this story of a tyro in Hollywood, showing at the Missouri, tops them all and the reason for the long wait between the Lloyd offerings is apparent. It takes two years to think up all the gags which go to make "Movie Crazy" a continuous round of laughter. The plot is something along the lines of the old "Merton of the Movies" story with Lloyd as a small town Kansas boy who breaks into the picture game and almost breaks it up during the course of his adventures. There is a love story, too, twined around the comedy situations with Constance Cummings, a very lovely leading woman, acting as Lloyd's friend in need. Like all the Lloyd films in the past "Movie Crazy" is as clean as a hound's tooth which adds, considerably, to its enjoyment.

Love Among the Fish.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON, in "Tiger Shark," down at the Ambassador, forsakes the rough, tough gangster roles which made him famous and becomes an honest Portuguese fisherman who goes through most of the film with one hand, the other having been bitten off by a shark, who couldn't appreciate honesty, early in the picture. Shark bites play a big part in the entire story and make the film a harrowing and not very entertaining affair. After one of the monsters had paved the way for Robinson to marry a good looking girl by snapping her father in half another one brought the young wife and her boy friend, Richard Arlen, together by chewing her husband to pieces. The idea of the thing is a sort of triangle in low life, or love among the tuna catchers, off the coast of Southern California. Robinson, a swashbuckling king of fisherman, wants to be a devil among the ladies but never has any luck until he meets Zita Johann who marries him just because he was nice to her when her old father lost that battle with the shark. Robinson's luck didn't hold for Dick Arlen was a younger and better looking man and everybody, including the deep sea monsters, seemed satisfied with the finish.

Night Life.

THE makers of "Hat Check Girl," at the Fox, never could quite make up their minds whether they were turning out a comedy or a meller. It's easy enough to guess the main plot from the title—a poor and reasonably honest little working girl who meets a rich and wise cracking youth whose intentions were not entirely within the law at first, but who got around to doing the right thing in reel eight. Sally Ellers is the hat bandit in a night club and Ben Lyon the pent house kid and when they stick to airy persiflage the picture is very nice and amusing, but when Ben is accused of murder and Sally of handling booze as a side line in the check room things are not so hot. Guy Robertson, Municipal Opera favorite, is back at the Fox this week with some of the members of Forest Park's male chorus and does a lot to help the picture out of a hole.

Gridiron Scandal.

REMEMBER some of the old baseball dirt in Chicago when games were fixed to suit the gamblers? Well, those same surething men have turned their attention to football and while 70,000 people look on—which is the reason for the title, "70,000 Witnesses" at the St. Louis Theater—they blow up a gridiron star's brains with nitroglycerin just when he was about to score the touchdown which would have cost them a lot of money. A crooked doctor, in the pay of the wise guys, turned the trick by rubbing the explosive into the star fullback's body between halves. Just how it was timed for the stuff to go off at the needed moment was not made very clear but maybe it could happen that way. Johnny Mack Brown, who used to be a real gridiron hero before Hollywood claimed him, is the player who blows up and Phillips Holmes is a teammate who loves his sister. There is another explosion in the dressing room the day after the game and Phillips almost follows Johnny to Kingdom Come but, being the star of the story he is saved for Dorothy Jordan, the girl in the case. "70,000 Witnesses" has a lot of good football stuff in it and also has Charlie Ruggles, the life of the party, who plays, in his own inimitable way, a newspaper reporter who drinks a little. The picture is alive and kicking all the way and on the St. Louis' stage George Jessel and Norma Talmadge head a good vaudeville revue.

Young Players Hit By Failure of the Theatrical Stocks

"THE best way to get on the stage is to throw your hat on and walk on after it."

There is more truth than facetiousness in this remark at the present time, according to George M. Cohan, now making his talking film debut in "The Phantom President," with Claudette Colbert and Jimmy Durante out in Hollywood.

"There never was a harder time in the history of the stage for young folk to get a stage chance," says the man who has aided thousands in their rise.

"The chief cause for this is the decline and almost total elimination of stock companies, former training school for Broadway favorites.

"In former days, producers always had scouts looking over players on the road, in companies in small towns and vaudeville. If a youth showed promise, he was snatched up. If he created a sensation, a new star was born. If he only satisfied, not a thing was lost.

"Because Broadway cannot afford to train for the future, young ambitious actors find the doors almost closed to them. St. Louis, which I played many times, used to be a fine field for the stock companies and a lot of good actors came up from there."

Cohan made his first "working" theatrical tour at 8. He rode a donkey in the parade, played violin in the orchestra and sold song books between acts.

New Title Set for Gable-Hopkins Story

"No Man Of Her Own" has been definitely selected as the title of the picture soon to be produced with Clark Gable and Miriam Hopkins co-starred, according to word from the studios.

This title replaces "No Bed of Her Own," the original title of Val Lewton's novel, from which the screen play is being written by Austin Parker and Frank Partos. Production is scheduled to start on "No Man Of Her Own" as soon as Miss Hopkins completes her role in Ernst Lubitsch's current production, "The Honest Finder."

The Flappers Coming Back

Colleen Moore, Clara Bow and Alice White Returning to the Screen After Long Lay Offs But They Will Return in "Character" Parts and No Longer Portray the Joys of Flaming Youth—Lending Stars a New Game at the Coast Studios.

THEY'RE back again, all three of them, the foremost flappers of the silent screen—Colleen Moore, Clara Bow and now Alice White. But the flapper, that wild, flamboyant, cigaret-smoking innocent of their early creations, is nowhere to be seen. The lovely little Miss Moore was the hot-cha girl of "Flaming Youth," "Her Wild Oat" and other torrid sagas of the younger generation whose doings so alarmed parents and educators in the turbulent nineteen-twenties. But Colleen left the screen a couple of years ago, and now as she tries a comeback, the flapper trademark has vanished.

The famous Colleen bangs are gone, a sophisticated coiffure adorns the head that used to toss in defiance of shocked elders, and Colleen, almost ready for her first new film, is studying dialogue for a part that is anything but flapperish. The role is a character part in "Flesh," and Colleen plays a tarnished woman—no longer just a young upstart who strives to upset the family equilibrium. She isn't definitely set for the part yet, but it seems very likely to be hers.

Clara Bow, too. The "It" Girl. The Brooklyn Bonfire. The girl who seared the celluloid in "The Plastic Age" and "It" and "Rough House Rosie." Not a sign of them now. Clara looks fine, to be sure. Has reduced to something like her old slimness, and there's fire in the Bow eyes as of old. But there's a difference.

That role in "Call Her Savage," her come-back picture, is, as the title would indicate, no picnic. It is a character part, and one that requires acting, a lot more than the Clara Bow of flapper days ever was called upon to deliver.

Alice White, latest to return to films, first gained prominence in the secondary role of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." She stole the picture. Exhibitors demanded her, and she brought her flapperish wiles into play in one film after another until she finally left, unwanted longer, to go into vaudeville.

Trying now to begin a new career, does Alice use the same old tricks, the same old innocent shockery? She does not. Her first part is in "Employees' Entrance," and Alice, the flaming flapper of old, is a very modern and seductive heavy.

Gone from the screen into the movie limbo where rest the shades of other out-moded characters—the villain whom you spotted at once by his wicked moustaches, the vamp who slunk about and rolled black-shadowed eyes, the lily-white hero who always rushed to the rescue in the nick of time to save Gwendolynne.

She died on the screen, of course, about the time she took her fadeout in real life, after longer skirts made rolled stockings shockless, after the youngsters decided on femininity as the wiser part of wildness.

OTHER changes are taking place in the films, too. Paramount, for instance, calling for a new deal in film-making, is going to try juggling the actors around a bit, and, at a recent party given to movie critics from all around the country in New York, Sam Katz, the Chicago young man who, right now, is directing the making of pictures and stars for the organization, declared that Paramount was working with a view to "untyping" some of the stars.

"We broke down a Hollywood tradition," said Katz, "the one that is that a given trademark belonged to a given player. I looked at some of these players who appeared only in one line of pictures and I honestly felt as though I were walking through a penitentiary somewhere and I saw numbers on everybody's back. And so I began to induce the studios to realize that no company was better off than the success of all the companies, and that if a given player could do better in a part in the picture of another studio, that it was incumbent upon that studio to loan that player for the benefit of the theater, and of course that means the public."

As to the policy for these players which are to be loaned or borrowed, Katz said that the studio had tried to be careful in casting them. "We tried to avoid," he said, "tossing them all into a pot and then getting a tasteless salad out of them. Take Frederick March, for example. His first picture is with Miss Shearer at Metro, 'Smiling Through.' Then he does 'Sign of the Cross' for us, and then 'Bengal Lancer,' and we have quit casting him for the year. Gary Cooper came back in this bit that he plays in 'Devil of the Deep,' and he is doing 'Farewell to Arms,' 'Bengal Lancer,' and then we are through casting him until we see where we go from that point, see what reactions we get."

ALTHOUGH Douglas Fairbanks is traveling again—he is en route to the Orient to hunt long-haired tigers in Manchuria—he is working on a story idea, based on Chinese legends, and will make the picture later in the year if locations in China will be made available to him.

Tom Geraghy, who was with Fairbanks on the location trip to the South Seas for "Mr. Robinson Crusoe," which will come to Loew's Theater here before long, leaves within the next two weeks to join the star in China to get details of the locations and polish off the story.

Fairbanks will send to Hollywood for a camera crew, technical and sound staff, in addition to players needed, and go on his hunting trip while they are journeying to the Orient.

BILLIE BURKE, widow of the late Florenz Ziegfeld, is to make Los Angeles her permanent home, and the screen her permanent career, except for an occasional stage appearance on the West Coast.

Patricia Ziegfeld, her 17-year-old daughter, is joining her mother in making arrangements to move the Ziegfeld household and family seat from Hastings, N. Y., to Santa Monica.

Miss Burke has just finished "Bill of Divorcement" for RKO. Recent stage appearances in Los Angeles have included "The Mad Hopes" by Romney Brent, and "The Vinegar Tree."

Whether or not Patricia will go into the movies remains to be seen. Ziegfeld wanted to keep her away from the stage but now that he has gone his daughter is quite likely to follow in her mother's footsteps. Certainly any of the major studios would jump at the chance to give her a try-out, for there is magic to the name of Ziegfeld in the show world.

Much Interest In the Identity Of V. P. Queen

Special Maids Also Furnish Topic for Conjecture — Plans Progress for Annual Festivities.

DURING these waning September days, somewhere in the realm of that influential monarch, the Veiled Prophet, a winged crown set with many jewels is being burnished for its fifty-third appearance, a gold embroidered satin robe is being hung with a royal purple and ermine cape of state, and queer pointed shoes, their toes upturned, are being taken from their chest.

All of this paraphernalia will garb his majesty as he arrives in St. Louis 10 days hence to rule in characteristic silence and gorgeous setting at the two functions prepared annually in his honor.

As has been announced his first appearance will be made at a parade Oct. 4. As always on his trips to St. Louis, he will be accompanied by hundreds of loyal and lively followers in masks and sometimes absurd costumes, who, unhampered by cares of state, hold high-jinks in floats trailing his royal carriage. The following night he will crown his queen at the ball in his honor at the Coliseum, and the same retainers, somewhat subdued, will wheel and march and finally sit to the right and left of the throne, a silent guard adding brilliance to the spectacle.

Perhaps the most interesting item of the Prophet's apparel is his veil, the legend of which has come down from the eighth century, when Ahken Ibn Atta, sometimes called the Silver Veil, really lived. The story is that his veil was worn to conceal blindness, although with St. Louis' own prophet the popular theory is that it prevents identification. At any rate, so the legend says, the real Ahken Ibn Atta became so powerful that an army was sent to capture him. He was never found.

As social leaders in St. Louis return from their summer sojourns more interest is being shown in the visit of the Veiled Monarch than heretofore this season. For the last week the possible identity of the young woman who will succeed Miss Ann Chittenden Ferriss as his queen for the coming year has been discussed, and the favored four young women who will be her special maids of honor, also form a topic for conjecture.

The ball this year is to be marked by unusual decorations, depicting a period when beauty rather than display was the vogue. The court of honor will be about the same size as those of previous years. For the queen's supper afterward the entire mezzanine of Hotel Jefferson has been reserved. Supper will be served in the gold ballroom, followed by general dancing.

Steeplechase and Hunt Ball Oct. 22

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the fixtures for the fall and winter hunting season at the Bridlespur Hunt Club in Huntleigh Village. With the opening hunts of September almost over, interest centers at present in the October meetings, one of which will be the annual steeplechase to be held Oct. 22 over hazards on Huntleigh Downs surrounding the clubhouse, followed by the annual hunt ball.

The October season will begin with a ride over the Downs Saturday, Oct. 1, at 2:30 o'clock, with tea following at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard B. Shelp. On Sunday, Oct. 2, the hunt will start at 8:15 o'clock in the morning, with breakfast at Jarville, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Queeny. The ride will begin at 3 o'clock the afternoon of Oct. 6, and the next Saturday there will also be an afternoon hunt at 2:30 o'clock to the Queeny home. The field will meet at Femmer's Farm on the Kehr's Mill road at 8 o'clock the morning of Oct. 9; Wednesday, Oct. 12, Columbus day, from the club kennels at 2 in the afternoon; Saturday, Oct. 15, from Mr. and Mrs. Percy Orthwein's home at 2:30 o'clock, and the following day at 8:30 o'clock in the morning to the George S. Tiffany country place in Chesterfield.

On Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 19, at 3 o'clock, horses will be schooled for the Steeplechase over the course in Huntleigh Village and the surrounding territory. On Sunday, Oct. 23, the day following the annual races, there will be a special hunt, the time to be announced later, and on the following day another special event for the out-of-town guests participating in the racing events. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hager Jr. will entertain the field the meeting Wednesday, Oct. 26, at 3 o'clock, the horn will sound at Niebruegge's store on the Clayton road at 2:30, Oct. 29, and the month will close with a hunt from the Beagle Club, Oct. 30, at 8:30 o'clock in the morning.

She carried her aunt's train, an elaborate creation of tulle and old family rose point lace in the wedding ceremony. The dress was simply made, with rhinestone trimming on the belt and about the deep cowl neck. COMMUNITY COUNCIL RECREATION PROGRAM

Agencies Hope to Reach 100,000 Children and Adults Despite Curtailed Finances.

Recreation agencies of the Community Council, working with curtailed funds and limited staffs, hope to reach about 100,000 children and adults in the fall program of activities now being organized.

The importance of supervised recreation in times of widespread unemployment was stressed by Miss Bertha Howell, assistant director of the Community Council, in her announcement of activities planned for the coming year.

"Young people just out of school do not know which way to turn," she said. "They cannot find jobs, they cannot continue their education. They face abnormal conditions at home, many have moved to less desirable neighborhoods and overcrowding prevails. For such young people we must provide wholesome recreation and education. We must give them new hopes and ambitions."

Community Council agencies engaged in this work include the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., Kingdom House, Neighborhood House, Wesley House, Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A., Markham Memorial Presbyterian Church, Holy Cross Corporation, Greeley Presbyterian Church, International Institute, Church of the Holy Communion, Caroline Mission, Boys' Club and Christ Church Cathedral.

Many of these are members of the Community Fund, but their allotments for this year were reduced because of the greater need of relief agencies, and they will not participate in the joint campaign to be undertaken late this year by relief agencies of the Community Fund and other organizations.

The recreational activities being planned include classes and clubs, athletics, outings and kindergartens. The classes and clubs will be devoted to such work as music, dramatics, manual training, games, domestic science, literary discussion and debating, dancing, sewing and toy mending.

The Veiled Prophet, on his fifty-third annual visit to St. Louis, will join in the George Washington bicentennial with his parade of 20 floats depicting incidents in Washington's life from the cherry tree tradition to the last days at Mount Vernon.

The parade will begin at 7:15 p. m. Oct. 4, following the same route as last year, and the ball at the Coliseum will be held on the following evening, Oct. 5.

Valley Forge and the surrender of Cornwallis will be depicted on two especially brilliant and impressive floats. The twentieth float will show richly attired colonials singing before massed flags in a grand finale.

Because of the historical nature of this year's parade, the Veiled Prophet has offered, to the school children of St. Louis and the county writing the best 300 to 500 word essay on "The Life of Washington," prizes of $25, $15, $10 and $5, besides 50 $1 prizes. Essays must be mailed before noon Oct. 3 to Post Office Box 787.

The floats will appear in this order:

The Veiled Prophet. Float No. 1—Coming out of the East to greet his loyal subjects, His Mysterious Majesty, the Veiled Prophet, rides in his ancient galley under a canopy of red, purple and gold. Clad in robes of royal purple, the Venerable Old Monarch wears his imperial crown and holds the golden scepter and the orb. On each side of the brilliantly decorated ship sit his four chief courtiers—the First High Priest, the Second High Priest, the Almoner, and the Herald. Two husky Negro slaves tug vigorously at the long oars which draw the galley through the waves. Huge sea monsters swim along on each side of the ship.

The Cherry Tree. Float No. 2—Under the shadow of a huge hatchet which dominates the float, Washington, the boy, is seen standing alongside the felled cherry tree, listening to the stern admonitions of his father. In his hand he still holds the fateful little hatchet. Looking over the garden fence are several of Washington's friends, expectantly awaiting the whipping that the youth never receives.

VEILED PROPHET PARADE ROUTE AND TIME IT WILL REACH DIFFERENT POINTS

THE Veiled Prophet parade, Oct. 4, will follow the same route as last year, leaving the den on Ranken avenue at 7:15 p. m.

West on Laclede to Sarah, 7:40.

North on Sarah to Olive, 7:55.

East on Olive to Grand, 8:15, and Jefferson, 8:40.

North on Jefferson to Washington, 8:45.

East on Washington to Eighteenth street, 8:59; Twelfth, 9:11, and Broadway, 9:20.

South on Broadway to Olive, 9:32.

West on Olive to Twelfth, 9:43; Eighteenth, 9:55; Jefferson, 10:05.

South on Jefferson to Laclede, 10:12.

West on Laclede to Ranken, 10:45.

Boyhood Days. Float No. 3—Washington, the youth, is shown engaged in his favorite sport—breaking a young horse to the saddle. Several friends look on. A workman and an aged slave pause to watch. Strewn about are great bundles of tobacco, Virginia's chief product.

Early Ambitions. Float No. 4—Recalling the story that for his mother's sake, Washington refused a midshipman's commission on a British ship, this float depicts the lure of the sea—a sailing vessel tossed on lofty seas before a huge globe, with a background of palms, an Indian prince, Egyptian merchant and natives of other distant lands.

The Surveyor of 1748.. Float No. 5—In the wilderness Washington in buckskin sets up a crude surveying instrument, while an assistant stands by with a level and George William Fairfax, friend of Washington and head of the party, sits on a rock near the tent and checks over the notes of the day before.

The Spirit of '76. Float No. 8—The fife and drum and the flags carried by unorganized troops in the early days of Revolution typify the turning point, when the colonies, which had only wanted the rights of Englishmen, rose to Richard Henry Lee's historic resolution that "These colonies are and of right ought to be free." In the prow of the float is the flag carried by Washington's men at Cambridge, bearing the 13 red and white stripes but in the corner a small "Union Jack," symbolic of the allegiance to England in the early stages of the break.

Valley Forge, 1777. Float No. 9—The colonial flag, lashed to a tree-stump in the snow, flaunts the wintry wind while a group of haggard soldiers, their feet bound up in rags, huddle over a little fire near a ragged tent, their muskets stacked near at hand.

Surrender of Cornwallis, 1781. Float No. 10—From the glorious hardships at Valley Forge the scene changes to the glorious climax at Yorktown, where Washington waits on his favorite stallion while an orderly rides to accept the sword of the defeated general, who stands at the head of his downcast staff.

Indian Wars. Float No. 11—Colonial troops and backwoodsmen, in blockhouse and stockade are seen repelling an attack of the Indians whose insurrections after the Revolution Mad Anthony Wayne finally quelled.

"Emigration" After the Revolution. Float No. 12—The pioneer spirit pushing westward is shown in a scene on the Ohio. A flat boat is poled by brawny arms, while the pioneer woman, child in arms, faces the west and the head of the family stands in the prow, near a donkey, a cow and a horse.

Drafting the Constitution, 1787. Float No. 13—Washington seated at a desk and among historic figures in earnest discussion, is making a change in the great document, while from the litter of discarded notes rises a huge reproduction of the finished Constitution.

Inauguration of Washington. Float No. 14—Washington, surrounded by Adams and other patriots, stands on the balcony of a building in front of Federal Hall in New York, taking the oath of office.

Presidential Receptions. Float No. 15—President and Mrs. Washington greet guests in colonial finery at one of the Friday evening receptions to which he was forced to limit social demands following the inauguration.

Washington at Home. Float No. 17.—Washington, whose advice still was sought after he refused a third term, and retired with his classic farewell address, stands on the steps at Mount Vernon, in earnest conversation with Thomas Jefferson, while Benjamin Franklin and Alexander Hamilton stand by. Martha Washington chats with a friend on the porch.

Planning the City of Washington. Float No. 18—In the beginnings of the capital city, laid out by Washington, three carved columns have been erected and masons ply their trade while L'Enfant, the city planner, discusses the plans with an assistant below a towering dream of the architect—a reproduction of the present Capitol.

The Retired President. Float No. 19—A hired man follows the primitive plow at Mount Vernon, where Washington rose daily at sunrise and spent the day on horseback superintending the affairs of the 800-acre estate. Two milkmaids have stopped to watch the plowhand. Chickens peck at the freshly turned soil, and wheat-sheaves are stacked in a corner of the field.

Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean. Float No. 20—The parade ends in a flourish of song. The singers, standing between an American eagle and a mass of flags, are led by Uncle Sam himself in the Revolutionary ballad written by Timothy Dwight, who later became president of Yale.

Pierce-Arrow Car Makes 112.91 Miles An Hour for a Day

The time for all American automobile records for sustained high speed were bettered recently by a current model Piere-Arrow 12-cylinder roadster when Ab Jenkins drove 2710 miles around a circular course in 24 hours, maintaining an average of 112.91 miles an hour.

Jenkins did not leave his seat in the car during the entire period. His only stops were brief ones for refueling.

The run was made on the salt beds at Salduro, Utah, 120 miles from Salt Lake City, and was sponsored and authenticated by the Salt Lake City Chamber of Commerce. It bettered the time of all American land speed records for a hundred miles or more, including the Indianapolis Speedway mark establihsed by Fred Frame in this year's Memorial day race.

With the exception of racing tires, a high compression head, a special gear ratio and extra gasoline capacity, the car used by Jenkins was a stock model. The car's fenders were removed and the windshield supplanted with a deflector for the protection of the driver.

Jenkins traveled a 10-mile circle. The beds which are of solid salt four feet thick, and which cover an area 10 miles wide and 30 miles long, are well adapted for such a run.

Mirages are frequent on the salt plains and at times when Jenkins was on the far side of the course, spectators would enjoy the illusions of seeing the car flying high in the air, hundreds of feet above the horizon.

Jenkins climbed behind the wheel at dawn and averaged for the first 500 miles 115.4 miles an hour. The Indianapolis Speedway record for that distance is 104.14 miles an hour, or 11.25 miles an hour under Jenkins' time. Jenkins continued his terrific pace throughout the day. Still in good physical condition, Jenkins signaled his crew to prepare kerosene flares to mark the circle.

At the time the run started, the car already had traveled 36,000 miles in cross-country experimental work and was driven from the Pierce-Arrow factory at Buffalo to Salt Lake City.

Goodrich Officers On Annual Trip To Cotton Country

The annual fall trip of B. F. Goodrich Co. officers through the Southern cotton belt contacting cotton shippers and surveying next year's crop prospects will begin at Atlanta, Ga., Tuesday. M. N. Twyman, manager of cotton and fabric purchases, Akron, O., will head the group and he will be accompanied by Charles G. Thompson, manager of the cotton and waste division of Martha Mills, Inc., the Goodrich Co.'s fabric mills at Thomaston, Ga.

Goodrich annually uses 75,000 bales of Southern cotton in the manufacture of fabric for tires and more than 30,000 other articles of rubber in which cotton is a basic product.

Twyman and Thompson will contract for some of the Goodrich Co.'s future cotton requirements during their trip and will call on growers and shippers in and near Atlanta, Ga.; Thomaston, Ga.; New Orleans, La.; Shreveport, La.; Montgomery, Ala.; Dallas, Tex.; Houston, Tex.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Galveston, Tex.; England, Ark.; Little Rock, Ark.; Helena, Ark.; Greenwood, Miss.; Greenville, Miss.; Leland, Miss.; Clarksdale, Miss.; Muskogee, Ok.; Memphis, Tenn.; Ripley, Tenn., and St. Louis.

Car Driven 745 Miles Without Lubricating Oil in Its Engines

An automobile was driven recently 745 miles without lubricating oil in the motor, at Halifax, Nova Scotia, according to a report of the test run published by the Halifax Herald. This is said to be the longest dry-motor run on record.

Mayor A. A. Thompson of Halifax, Dominion police and Canadian National Express officials witnessed the draining of the oil, sealing of the hood at the start and unsealing when the run was terminated, due to a broken connecting rod.

As an added test at the 400-mile mark, the oil-dry car was called upon to push for several miles a sedan.

The motor of the test car was conditioned for 1000 miles prior to the run by adding a new self-lubricating fluid perfected by W. V. Kidder, a motorboat racing authority of La Crosse, Wis., to the regular oil and gas.

The previous dry-motor run record was 318.7 miles, made with a car processed with the same kind of fluid, at Elgin, Ill.

Small Weight of Pike's Peak Winner

The stock Terraplane roadster which won the Pike's Peak hill climb Labor day had one-horsepower for every 26 pounds of car weight. The first record was established by Stutz in 1927, time, 21 minutes, 59.6 seconds. In 1928 the record was reduced by 14.2 seconds and in 1929 a new mark was established. The Essex Terraplane climbed the grade in 21 minutes, 20.9 seconds.

The course is 17.9 miles in length, the climb being from an altitude of 9150 to 14,109 feet above sea level.

Chevrolet Reports Rising Sales Curve Going Into September

Chevrolet dealers reported the sale of 29,230 new cars and trucks in August, as compared with 26,549 in July, H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co. announces.

Every one of the three 10-day reporting periods in August saw a gain over the corresponding periods of July, Klingler said. The last 10-day period was the best for the month, with 12,126 new cars and trucks delivered to consumers, compared with 11,843 in the corresponding July period. Thus the company entered September, normally much better from a sales standpoint than August, on a rising sales curve.

While August was showing a 10 per cent gain over July, field stocks of both new and used cars were greatly reduced during the month, Klingler said, the reduction in new cars amounting to more than 4000 units in the last 10 days alone, and the used car reduction amounting to nearly as many units.

The result is that present field stocks of used cars are lower than they have ever been at this season of the year since the Chevrolet dealer organization grew to its present size.

Hazard Eliminated On St. Charles Road

Elimination of one of the most dangerous hazards on U. S. Highway No. 40 has been accomplished, according to P. F. Drury, safety director of the Automobile Club of Missouri by State Highway Department repairs to the pavement between street car tracks on St. Charles Rock road between Ferguson avenue and the North and South road, St. Louis County.

Due to the peculiar placement of the concrete paving between the tracks for a distance of about a mile and a half at this point, automobiles frequently have gone out of control in wet weather when the tires came in contact with the wet rails. According to club records, four persons were killed and seven seriously injured in accidents there within the last year and a half. The hazard was eliminated by repaving between the rails.

Sets New Record Of 4 Hours 6 Minutes To Kansas City

Owner of Ford V-8 Roadster Averages 63⅔ Miles an Hour Across State.

Driving the 261 miles from St. Louis to Kansas City in four hours and six minutes, an average speed of 63 2-3 miles an hour, Morris Tavlinsky, in a Ford V-8 roadster early Friday morning clipped 54 minutes from any known record between the two cities.

Tavlinsky's start and finish were recorded by the Western Union Telegraph Co. His run was from the Western Union office on Sarah street near Forest Park boulevard to the front entrance of the Union Station in Kansas City. Tavlinsky had some difficulty finding the Union Station in Kansas City, which accounts for the additional mileage.

When he arrived at the station the Western Union officer awaited him, and the company's time stamp was applied to the telegram Tavlinsky carried from St. Louis.

The Ford V-8 roadster used by Tavlinsky was his personal car that he had driven a total of 26,650 miles when he left St. Louis. It is a stock automobile in every respect.

St. Louis saw another record made last week when steers were bulldogged in a Rodeo for the first time in an inclosed arena from the running board of an antomobile.

Some bulldogging from automobiles has been done in the West where there are open spaces for long runs but nobody ever tried it inside and was even remotely successful until Fred Beebe, Western ranch owner, staged it in The Arena during the International Rodeo here last Wednesday night. Beebe drove a new Ford V-8 roadster, furnished by William Walsh, president of the Walsh Motor Car Co., authorized Ford dealer.

Dodge Deliveries Highest in 9 Weeks

Dodge Brothers dealers delivered more new Dodge passenger cars, Plymouths and Dodge trucks at retail during the week ending Sept. 3 than during any week in the last nine, according to A. Van Der Zee, general sales manager.

The total increase for the last week in August over the previous week was 15.3 per cent.

Plymouth Appoints Getchell as Agency

The Plymouth Motor Corporation announces the appointment of J. Stirling Getchell, Inc., of New York and Detroit as advertising counsel, effective Oct. 1.

Heading the agency, as its president, is J. Stirling Getchell, one of the country's leading creative advertising men and at the same time perhaps the youngest president of a large agency. Getchell is only 33. Recognized as one of the foremost copy writers in the business, Getchell has shaped the advertising policies and contributed to the success of a wide range of products in a diversity of fields.

Associated with Getchell as partners are John Tarleton and Orrin P. Kilbourn. Prior to the formation of the company last fall, Tarleton was Art Director of one of the world's largest agencies and won distinction as a leading exponent of the use of photographs in advertising.

Kilbourn brings to the agency more than 15 years experience in selling, merchandising and advertising. For some years he was assistant general sales manager of a large automobile factory organization, later he served as an executive in a nationally known advertising agency and just prior to his association with the Getchell agency was an automobile distributor in New York City.

In addition to Plymouth, J. Stirling Getchell, Inc., is serving as advertising counsel for the De Soto Motor Corporation and several other large national enterprises.

Chrysler Continues Registering More Cars Than in 1931

Registration of new cars for 31 states in July, representing over 61 per cent of the total U. S. registrations, show that Chrysler Motors continues to be the only company whose products have been registered in greater numbers this year than last, it is stated by B. E. Hutchinson, vice-president and treasurer of the corporation.

For the year to date, including all states for the first six months and 31 states for July, the registration of Chrysler Motors' cars is 104.3 per cent of the registrations for the same cars and the same states during the same period in 1931. This compares with 55.9 per cent for the entire industry and raises the standing of Chrysler Motors' cars in the industry from 9.3 per cent in 1931 to 17.5 per cent this year.

Rockne Continues Sales Increases

A gain of 20 per cent in Rockne retail deliveries by dealers for the last 10-day period in August over the same period in July was made by Rockne Motors Corporation, F. L. Wiethoff, sales manager, announces.

"This gain is in line with our increase of 38 per cent in August domestic factory shipments over July," Wiethoff said, "and reflects the recent turn in business outlook. Our dealers are reporting optimism in all parts of the country and are giving us increased sales to back up their reports."

Wiethoff added that a gain of 26 per cent was registered in retail sales in the last 10-day August period over the second August period. The second August period also showed an increase of 22.5 per cent over the first 10-day August period.

New Motor Idea Is Said to Double Miles Per Gallon

A new cycle principle has been utilized by Prof. Hamilton Johnson, head of Louisiana State University Mechanical Engineering School, in the design of an automobile engine he says will double the miles per gallon of gasoline obtained from the present average motor.

His cycle principle, Johnson explains, will increase the motor efficiency as the speed and power decreases, thus making possible more economical operation at speeds up to 40 miles an hour. In the conventional motor, he said, the motor efficiency declines as the speed and power demand decreases.

The professor's motor won for him a gold medal from the Louisiana Academy of Science, and Dr. L. J. Lassalle, dean of the university school of engineering, said the Johnson motor has been checked by some of the nation's foremost automotive experts.

The automobile engine now in use, Johnson said, has a combustion space of fixed volume and a fixed point of closing the inlet valve, and varies the power delivered at a given speed by throttling the intake passage from the carburator to the cylinder.

Johnson said that the quantity of inert, burned-out gas left in the cylinder at the end of the exhaust stroke to mix with the fresh charge is therefore constant, regardless of the power being developed. Since the quantity of air and fuel in this fresh charge is much less when operating at a fraction of the rated power than it is at full capacity, the percentage of dilution of the charge with inert gas is greatly increased.

In order to make the final mixture explosive, Johnson pointed out, the proportion of air to fuel in the charge sucked into the cylinder must be reduced until there is not enough oxygen present to consume completely all the fuel, and some of it escapes unburned into the exhaust.

Prof. Johnson said his cycle overcomes the troubles by the simple expedient of varying the volume of the combustion space in proportion to the amount of power to be developed, doing away with the throttle in the intake, and delaying the closing of the inlet valve at fractional load ratings, so that the volume of the charge at the instant this valve closes bears a constant ratio to the volume of the combustion space.

As a consequence, he explained, no matter what fraction of the rated power is being delivered, the compression pressure, the percentage of dilution and the proportions of the air-fuel mixture all remain constant. Moreover, at fractional load ratings, he said, due to decrease in the volume of the combustion space, the expansion ratio is increased, which increases the thermal efficiency above that at full speed.

"The net result," he asserted, "is that at one-quarter full load, corresponding to a speed of 30 miles an hour on level road, the L. S. U. cycle is estimated to give a little more than twice the mileage per gallon of gasoline to be obtained from an engine of the present type, and at 50 miles per hour, just a little less than twice the mileage."

Reduces Prices of Divco Milk Trucks

Sharp reductions in prices of the DiVco milk delivery trucks have just been announced by Continental DiVco Co., Detroit.

This firm is a subsidiary of Continental Motors Corporation, and manufactures special-type trucks now widely used by dairies for low-cost house-to-house milk delivery.

The new price scale takes effect immediately and applies to two DiVco models. The four-cylinder Model H DiVco is reduced from the former price of $1525 to the new price of $1295. The larger, six-cylinder Model K DiVco is reduced from $1725 to $1595.

This generous price reduction is the direct result of economics effected a few months ago when DiVco sales and manufacturing departments were moved from the old DiVco plant to spacious quarters in the Jefferson avenue plant of Continental Motor Corporation, Detroit.

Safety Glass Proves Worth to Owner Who Doubted Values

Safety glass, which he considered worthless when he bought his new Dodge sedan recently, is now valued at about six times its cost by one Detroit motorist.

Jack Beckert, Dodge dealer at 5935 Grand River avenue, Detroit, says that when a customer balked at the extra charge for safety glass, he sold the car with the understanding that there would be no charge for this item, but if at any time the car should be in a smash-up and safety glass saved the occupants from injury, the customer was to send a check for the extra amount.

Two days after the car was delivered, the owner's wife was in an accident. Safety glass saved her from serious injury. The next day Beckert received a check for $100, or about six times the cost of the glass, from the grateful husband. Beckert returned the check, with a notation that the customer owed only the cost of the glass.

"Look at all three" WE SUGGESTED

"Give us Plymouth" says America

"LOOK AT ALL THREE" was Walter P. Chrysler's suggestion when the new Plymouth was announced.

And thousands upon thousands looked at all three lowest-priced cars. Drove all three. They bought, and are buying more and more new Plymouths.

They marvel at patented Floating Power. Smoothness with economy. And they agree that "any car without Floating Power is out-of-date".

Enthusiastic? Of course they are. For they've found that the new Plymouth gives the biggest dollar's worth in all automobile history.

Mexican Station to Use 150,000 Watts.

NORMAN T. BAKER'S superpowered XENT, at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, across the Rio Grande River from Laredo, Tex., will go on the air with 50,000 watts power early in October, Martin Codel reports from Washington. But the station soon will go up to 150,000 watts, Codel says. This power is twice as great as that used by XER (735kc) and three times as great as that used regularly by any United States station. XENT will use the 1115 kc channel, which is only a couple of spaces on the dial from KMOX, which is on 1090 kc. Baker's station, KTNT, at Muscatine, Ia., was taken off the air by the Federal Radio Commission because of criticisms of his "cancer cure" hospital and because he was accused of using the station to attack persons and organizations who disagreed with him.

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU CONDEMS STORE LOTTERIES

The Board of Directors of the Better Business Bureau has adopted a resolution condemning lotteries conducted by retail stores.

The resolution states: "That we consider the inclusion of lottery features in any sales promotion plan, whether used by an individual or collectively, as being inimical to the best interest of the public and to the legitimate business interests of this community, and do hereby recommend to the members of this organization that no lottery, gift enterprise, or scheme in the nature of a lottery be used by them in the course or conduct of their business."

Brayton, with the intention of landing in the river at the foot of Market street. The jump will be made at about 1500 feet, Chamberlain said.

CALLS BATTLEFIELDS BEST WAR MONUMENTS

St. Louis Gold Star Mother, Back From France, Tells of Experiences.

The battlefields of France, with their useless rifles and cannon still unremoved, with tranches still unfilled, are greater monuments than any of the marble shrines and temples erected by the Governments, in the opinion of Mrs. J. P. Gorman, 3216A Greer avenue, who returned last week from a Gold Star Mothers' pilgrimage to the war cemeteries of France.

Mrs. Gorman was the only St. Louis woman in the party, which included 94 other Gold Star Mothers from the United States and its possessions. The entire trip was financed by the Government under an act passed in March, 1929, and it was the last of these journeys to be made under that provision.

"As long as the parts of the battlefields remain unreclaimed, they will stand out as the realistic reminders of war," said Mrs. Gorman. "and therefore as the greatest reminders against it. And that is what war monuments should be.

"The cemeteries are too beautiful to provoke grief. They are expressions of the peace which follows war. They quiet the intense emotions which the battle grounds excite."

The grave which Mrs. Gorman went over to visit was that of her step-son, John C. Gorman, a Sergeant in the 128th Field Artillery, 35th Division, who died of pneumonia on Feb. 17, 1919, at Brest, three months after the armistice. He is buried at St. Mihiel, to which Mrs. Gorman made three visits, together with 15 other women in the group whose sons are buried there. The large party is divided into small groups according to which cemetery each woman visits, but headquarters for all are in Verdun.

The Gold Star Mothers receive many mementoes on their trip; American flags on sailing from New York, earth from French battlefields, wrapped in a French flag and presented by La Bienvenue Francaise. Mrs. Gorman also obtained a specal souvenir, a gavel from wood in the Argonne forest, which is to be presented to Mrs. Frank de Garmo of Corpus Christi, Tex., and formerly of St. Louis, founder of the Gold Star Courts of Honor.

40 SCOUT TROOPS TO COMPETE IN RALLY

More than 40 of the 56 boy scout troops enrolled in the south district have sent in their entries to compete in the third annual south district scout rally to be held next Saturday, in Tower Grove Park. Entries closed yesterday at scout headquarters.

Seven hundred scouts will take part in the program which will begin at 12:30 o'clock when troops arrive to erect tents in which equipment will be stored. The official opening will follow at 1:30 o'clock with the flag raising ceremony and inspection of tents and equipment. The contests, with each troop entering a patrol of eight scouts, are scheduled to start a half hour later.

In the contests points will be scored as follows: 100 points for excellence in camp craft, personal appearance, knot tieing, compass, knowledge of the forms of respect due to the flag, signalling, water boiling, whittling, scout pace, appearance at retreat, and appearance of the camp site. Perfect score in mapping will be 125 points.

Retreat will be at 5 o'clock, followed by mess at 5:30. An hour later a camp fire will be built and a program of stunts and songs, to which parents and friends will come, will follow. C. H. Laemmli, field executive of the South District, announced yesterday that the Rev. Carl H. F. Haas, minister of Ebenezer Evangelical Church, would be the speaker on this occasion.

The prizes to be competed for are now held by the following troops, who won them last year: Gold streamer and flag by Troop 234, Messiah Lutheran Church; blue streamer by Troop 63, Oak Hill Presbyterian Church; red streamer by Troop 20, Holy Family Catholic Church; white streamer by Troop 198, St. John's Episcopal Church, and green streamer by Troop 25, Christy Memorial M. E. Church.

A. W. Lantz, chairman of the South District Rally Committee, will be in general charge, assisted by J. H. Meyer, chief observer, and N. C. Tines, chief scorer.

HEADS OF LOCAL BOY SCOUT DEPARTMENTS MEET IN CAMP

At Irondale for Week End to Arrange Plans for the Winter's Activities.

Deputy commissioners, field men and all heads of the departments of the St. Louis Boy Scouts, with their families, are spending the week end at the Boy Scout camp at Irondale. More than 200 are attending the two-day session, designed to give the scout leaders some recreation while they plan winter activities.

This morning plans for the merit badge show will be outlined. The 10-year plan, a new scout movement originating in national headquarters, will also be discussed, with a view to putting it into operation this winter. During the meeting the women and children will be entertained on mystery hikes by Mrs. George Gundlach. Last night there were camp-fire games, old-fashioned stunts, dancing and entertainment in the mess hall.

WANTS MARKET ST. NAMED FOR WILSON

Frank R. Tate, real estate and theater owner, said yesterday that he planned to call a meeting of admirers of Woodrow Wilson, when the widening of Market street downtown is completed, to raise a fund for a Wilson statue at Sixth and Market streets.

Gift of the monument, he said, would be on the condition that the city change the name of Market street to Wilson boulevard or Woodrow Wilson boulevard. Tate announced he would donate $5000 to the fund. He is of the opinion that a total of $10,000 to $20,000 or more would be needed, but that the money would be easy to obtain among wealthy Democrats and others.

Market street is being widened from 60 to 100 feet, between Vandeventer avenue and Seventh street. From Seventh and Market there will be a diagonal cutoff to Sixth and Walnut street, and Walnut is being widened similarly between Sixth and Third streets. Paving is under way now in the district east of Twentieth street.

Park Already Suggested.

The cutoff will leave a vacant triangular area fronting on the south side of Market and the west side of Sixth. The city has proposed to make this into a park. Tate suggests a bronze figure of the wartime President, in a characteristic pose to be recommended by Wilson's old associates. It should face west in the park, Tate thinks, toward the direction Wilson took in his last long journey as President.

"There have been several suggestions about changing the name of Market street," Tate said, "but nothing has come of it. The name now is associated with barrel houses. In the early days of the city the thoroughfare used to be called Central avenue, then it became Market street because of the old public market that stood on it near the river.

"Property owners, the city and the Federal Government will have spent about $42,000,000 on the development of Market street. This includes the cost of widening, Union Station Plaza, Memorial Plaza, the Civil Courts Building, the new Federal Building, the proposed big postoffice addition, the Municipal Auditorium and the City Hall and Municipal Courts Building group. Market street is going to be to St. Louis what the Wacker drive district is to Chicago. If we could remove the stigma of the present name, it would be very fine. The change of name should be a condition of the gift of the monument."

Has Holdings on Market Street.

Tate and Charles Cella are the principal stockholders in corporations owning the property for the block on the north side of Market street, between Sixth and Seventh streets, and much of the property in the block on the east side of Sixth streets, between Market and Walnut streets, facing the park site. Their holdings include the American Hotel, American Theater, Annex Hotel and Grand Opera House. Tate, a lifelong Democrat, said he would donate to a Wilson monument anywhere in the city, but not as much for one in another location as for one at Sixth and Market.

Mr. and Mrs. Tate, who reside at 48 Vandeventer place, gave the University of Missouri $75,000 about 10 years ago toward the cost of building a new law school. The structure is called Lee H. Tate Hall, in memory of their son, who was killed in an automobile accident here in 1921 and who was graduated from the university's law school in 1913.

CROSSMAN HOMESTEAD IS PLACED ON MARKET

12-Acre University City Tract to Be Made Restricted Residence District.

The old Crossman homestead in University City has been placed on the market for development as restricted residential section. It contains 12 acres fronting 637 feet on the north side of Gannon avenue, between Benlou avenue (7900 west) and Center drive (8000). The depth is about 760 feet. No effort is being made at present to utilize any frontaze except that on Gannon avenue. The eventual development will add frontages on both sides of Cornell avenue and both sides of Stanford avenue, when those streets are dedicated and extended.

Robert Burns Crossman, publisher of the first English newspaper in St. Louis County, who died in 1920, bought the place nearly 50 years ago, named it "Rose Lawn" and moved there from St. Louis. The dwelling, which was there when Mr. Crossman acquired the land, was torn down last week.

Restrictions proposed by the Crossman family include a 40-foot building line and elimination of sidewalks to obtain a park-like appearance. Homes on the opposite side of the street have a 47-foot building line and no sidewalks, so the effect will be to provide a space of nearly 150 feet between residences facing each other, with shaded lawns broken only by the 30-foot pavement.

The owners are members of the West Gannon Association, an improvement group interested in the development of Gannon avenue, between Warder avenue and Old Bonhomme road. Ownership of the block is divided among C. C. Crossman, vice-president of Skinner & Kennedy Stationery Co.; T. C. Crossman of the engineering department of American Brake Co.; Mrs. Jesse Hicks and W. H. Crossman, children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns Crossman, and two grandchildren, Robert P. Crossman and his sister, Miss Lillian Frances Crossman.

M. B. Greensfelder of Clayton formerly owned 986 front feet on the south side of Gannon avenue, west from Warder avenue, besides a considerable area to the south. He has sold all of the Gannon avenue frontage except the 52-foot lot at the Warder avenue corner. Delmar boulevard has been cut through his old property and is being extended from Old Bonhomme road to Price road as part of the new State Highway, which will reach Lindbergh boulevard. Greensfelder sold the Delmar frontage to the William-Remmert Construction Co., which has just completed a two-family apartment, on the north side, west of Warder avenue. The Remmert company contemplates building up both sides of the Delmar frontage of this block, comprising about 1000 feet, with apartment buildings.

SMOOT FINDS BETTER BUSINESS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Confidence in a "general business pick-up" was voiced today by Senator Smoot, chairman of the Finance Committee, upon his arrival from a cross country trip. "Crossing the country," he told newspaper men, "I noted more confidence. Money is easier and business surely seems on the pickup. I never saw crops so wonderful, but, of course, the problem is getting good prices for them."

The Utah Senator declared the Republican outlook in the West was "improving." He predicted President Hoover would carry Utah. He asserted Gov. Roosevelt's speeches had been "disappointing to the Democrats of the West."

TRIAL OF SUIT OVER ROUTE OF BELLEVILLE-CARLYLE ROAD

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 24.—Trial of the injunction suit to stop the State from building route No. 161 from Belleville to Carlyle half a mile south of Scott Field instead of along the north edge of it, was continued in the Sangamon County Circuit Court here today.

New Baden wants the route down its main street, Germantown wants it closer, and the village of Albers wants it through its main street, instead of south of the town. They ask that the houte be taken into Belleville's business district.

Secretary McCartney of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, H. E. Surman, engineer of design for the State Highway Division, and Charles M. Slaymaker, district engineer of East St. Louis, testified that the route sought by the complainants would take the road 13 miles through St. Clair County, through open country, or roads slightly used. The route selected, however, is well traveled and would be supplemented by a spur built around Belleville to the north to accommodate through traffic to St. Louis.

STATE ISSUES WARNING ORDER TO ST. LOUIS BROKERAGE FIRM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 24.—State Securities Commissioner Stockard today issued a warning order to T. H. Forrester & Co., a brokerage concern with offices in the Central National Bank Building, St. Louis, to make no further attempts to sell in Missouri stock of the National Dairyman's Bond and Mortgage Co.

Similar warning orders were issued to the National Dairyman's Bond and Mortgage Co., T. H. Forrester as an individual, and O. W. Anderson, as an agent for Forrester's firm.

The warning order was based on the fact, Stockard said, that stock of the National Dairyman's Bond and Mortgage Co. had not been qualified for sale in Missouri, under requirements of the Missouri "blue sky" law, and that Forrester's firm had not been licensed to deal in securities in Missouri. Stockard said O. W. Anderson, reported to be acting as an agent for Forrester's firm, had not been licensed as a securities salesman.

The commissioner stated in the warning order that sales of the stock, under the circumstances, were in violation of the securities law, and were voidable at the option of the purchasers.

HOW NEEDY CHILDREN ARE KEPT IN SCHOOL

100 Boys and Girls Aided by Funds Given by Various Organizations.

Scholarship funds made available by individuals or organizations are enabling about 100 boys and girls of scholastic promise, known to agencies of the St. Louis Community Council to stay in school despite adverse economic conditions

"What an opportunity philanthropists, clubs and organizations have for building happy, capable citizens, by making it possible for every child who can profit by education to remain in school," commented Miss Alma Fletcher, of the division of vocational counseling of the Board of Education, in a recent report on scholarships. The division of vocational counseling administers scholarships for several organizations and individuals.

"Many children of marked ability have been forced to leave school for lack of lunch, carfare and clothing," according to Miss Fletcher's report, which also shows that the average cost of enabling a student to remain in high school through a scholarship is only $3 a week.

The number of scholarships available is far inadequate to meet the needs, according to school officers and social workers. Among the many for whom Miss Fletcher is seeking scholarships is a 12-year-old boy, ready to enter high school. His mother, a widow for 11 years, has kept him in school but is now unemployed. The boy passed a mental test with a score of 140 (the average is 100). Another brilliant student, for whom the bureau of vocational counseling seeks a scholarship, is a 14-year-old high school boy, so long undernourished on account of his father's unemployment that his body twitched when he visited the office. Pride had kept the family from asking for relief.

Groups That Are Aiding.

Organizations granting scholarships include the Rotary Club, West St. Louis Kewanis Club, Business and Professional Women's Club, Parent-Teacher Scholarship Foundation, the Zonta Club, the junior auxiliary of the Girls' Protective Department of the Board of Religious Organizations and memorial funds, such as the Rosalie Tilles Fund. In addition, several high schools have funds made available by alumni or mother's or patrons' clubs and several private persons support one or more scholarships. The Rotary Club, with 31 scholarships, supports the largest number.

The St. Louis Jewish Scholarship Foundation is donating for scholarship purposes the money usually spent on floral offerings for the dead. The "tribute fund" of the foundation is enabling 32 students to attend university or business college with tuition paid.

Many families, which in 1929 did not dream they would ever be in distress, are now under care of social agencies. In many of these "white collar" and professional families in which education has been a long tradition, the blow of seeing the children leave high school or college falls particularly hard, the Community Council reports.

The Children's Aid Society has under care a 15-year-old boy of marked mechanical ability who, after many years of struggle, has overcome the handicap of a tubercular knee and is ambitious to enter trade school.

In one family under care of the Provident Association a scholarship is making it possible for a girl of 17 to attend Harris Teachers' College. Her grades are high and she looks forward to becoming a teacher, as have many of her relatives. A boy of 18, whose father is unemployed, is taking a vocational course in radio mechanics. A 16-year-old girl, whose father is totally disabled, is taking a high school business course. Another girl of the same age, with a record of all A's, is attending both day and night school to take the fullest advantage of her opportunity.

Aid by Big Brothers.

The Big Brother organization gave out 10 scholarships this year, three paid for by the Rotary Club and seven from the Blanche Bordley estate. Most of the beneficiaries are fatherless boys who could not otherwise attend high school.

Thirty-nine boys and girls under care of the Children's Aid Society are being helped by other organizations or individuals to stay in school. One, now a husky 17-year-old high school senior, came to the organization underweight from a home broken by tuberculosis. A 15-year-old girl, abandoned by her parents three years ago, and too frightened at that time even to speak, has developed into a "tomboy" and takes a keen interest in amateur dramatics. She will enter vocational school next year if a scholarship can be obtained.

The Children's Aid Society scholarships are obtained from the Wells Fund, given by the late William B. Wells, the Tilles Fund and the gifts of private individuals.

UNION GETS WAGE INCREASE FOR 30,000 CLOTHING WORKERS

"We've Done More in Six Weeks Than Administration in 3 Years," Says Sidney Hillman.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 2—Sidney Hillman of New York City, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' of America, tonight told more than 2000 members from New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Pennsylvania, attending a victory dinner, that wage increases ranging from 12 to 2 per cent have been obtained in the last six weeks for more than 30,000 individuals.

"This is the first successful attempt of an organized group to obtain a wage increase since 1929," Hillman said. "We have done more in these last six weeks than the administration has in three years." He said another wage increase would be demanded within a few months.

"The whole policy of the national administration in the last three years has been to aggravate the depression," he declared. "It left he unemployed to their own resources, meaning starvation. Whatever it has done, was done late, begrudgingly and in a manner least helpful."

$180,000 FEE FOR LAWYER IN JAKE THE BARBER CASE

Recovered $1,300,000 for British Investors; Judge Impounds $72,000 for Another Attorney.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson said today he would enter an order Monday awarding John H. S. Lee $180,000 as attorney fees for representing British investors in recovering $1,300,000 said to have been taken from them fraudulently by John (Jake the Barber) Factor, in stock deals. He also said he would impound about $72,000 for Franklin R. Overmyer, counsel for the British Government in extradition proceedings against Factor now pending in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Attorney Lee will give 20 per cent of his fee to Attorney R. Wordsworth of London, associate counsel in the case.

Charles Zurr, 49, Injured; Pinned Against Side of Ditch for 30 Minutes.

Charles Zurr, 49 years old, 552 Dugan avenue, was buried in loose earth up to his neck yesterday when one side of a ditch in which he was working at Goodfellow avenue and North Crest Lane, caved in. A high mound of earth piled on the side of the excavation slid down on Zurr.

He was pinned against the solid side of the ditch for 30 minutes while other workmen shoveled out the earth around him. He suffered internal injuries and contusions and was taken to Christian Hospital.

HIGHWAY 50 OPEN ALL THE WAY

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 24.—Highway No. 50 between Kansas City and St. Louis was opened to traffic this week. The entire route is hard-surfaced. The paving is of concrete with the exception of 10 miles of blacktop gravel on the east and west approaches to Sedalia.

Throughout the summer detours have been necessary around new construction work from Jefferson City westward.

FORMER BOOTLEGGER PARDONED

An unconditional pardon from President Hoover restoring the civil rights of August Potier, former bootlegger, was received in Federal Court yesterday.

Potier in 1925 was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $1500 on his plea of guilty of operating a still. Unable to pay the fine, he served seven months in jail. The pardon states he has conducted himself as a law-ibiding citizen since his release.

Man Killed by Bite of Spider.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—Death of Stanley Willis of Brawley, an express company employe, was caused by the bite of a black widow spider, the Coroner announced today. Willis died yesterday at a hospital here, after being bitten in the Imperial Valley town last week.

The Epworth School for Girls helps students with a good record to finish the last two years of high school and has a loan fund for one girl to do post-graduate work in nursing, business, art or some other specialty.

Aid at Kingdom House.

Ten boys and seven girls at Kingdom House have been aided in recent years with scholarships from board members, service clubs and various Methodist churches and Sunday school classes. One of the boys aided was a deaf-mute whose father was killed by robbers.

A 19-year-old volunteer worker at the Boys' Club received a scholarship from the Boys' Club Federation and is now taking a 10 weeks' training course in boys' work at New York University.

A Negro women's club is sending two girls in families being aided by the St. Louis County Welfare Association to Lincoln University for teachers' courses. At the suggestion of the Red Cross of that community, the Webster Groves Rotary Club is paying the tuition to send a disabled boy from Webster Groves to the Elias Michael School in St. Louis.

IN MEMORIAM

BARCLAY, JACK A.—In memory of our darling son, who passed away Sept. 24, 1931:

The fairest lilies are the first to fall,
The sweetest first to fade.
The fondest, dearest, best of all,
At peaceful rest is laid.
As some sweet blossom droops and dies,
When blighted by the frost,
Jack faded from before our eyes,
And all too soon was lost.
But in God's garden, free from pain,
Where grows His fairest flowers,
We know that we shall meet again
This fairest bloom of ours.
Sadly missed by Mother, Father and brothers and all who loved him. (c)

BLAKELY, CORPORAL WALTER M.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who died Sept. 28, 1918. Sadly missed by FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTER.

To us you were so good and kind.
And for us you did your best.
God grant you eternal rest.
Sadly missed by
SONS AND DAUGHTERS AND ALL ALL WHO LOVED HER.

FISCHER—In loving memory of our dear mother, Anna Fischer, who departed this life Sept. 22, 1926. Sadly missed by

SCHUEDDIG, EDW. C.—Who died one year ago, Sept. 21, 1931:

Gone, dear husband, gone forever;
How I miss your smiling face;
But you left me to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed;
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
Sadly missed by HIS WIFE, CELESTE SCHUEDDIG.

SIMONS, EMMA—In loving memory of my dear wife, who departed this life on Sept. 28, 1931:

In our home she is fondly remembered;
Sweet memories cling to her name;
Those who loved her in life sincerely
Still love her in death just the same.
Sadly missed by

SUPPER, JOHN—In memory of John Supper, who died Sept. 28, 1931.

Why did he go when life seems fair and no dark clouds were near,
To dim the brightness of our life or start the bitter tears?
We thought not at the close of day when night veils earth and sky,
That one so full of life and hope would breathe the last good-by.
Sadly missed by

TOMMY ARMOUR WILL PLAY IN ST. LOUIS OPEN

By W. J. McGoogan.

Tommy Armour, Detroit professional, winner of the 1930 St. Louis Open, has entered the 1932 Open which is to be held at Meadow Brook Golf Club Oct. 7, 8 and 9. Armour had announced previously that he would play but rescinded that decision later. He again changed his mind and sent in his entry this week.

Armour's entry brought the list up to 100 and there are places for only about 75 more.

Guy Robertson, an actor, formei star of the Municipal Opera, is another who has filed his entry. He likely will be paired in a threesome with John Manion, Sunset pro, and Walter Hagen.

Alex Ayton, Springfield, Ill., professional, and Guy Paulson of Fort Wayne, Ind., one of the outstanding players in the recent Professional Golfers' tournament at St. Paul, will play.

A tournament scheduled at Tulsa, Ok., which had been in conflict with the St. Louis open, has changed its dates giving the Meadow Brook affair a clear field.

Bill and Francis Schwartz, Meadow Brook professionals, will play Clarke Morse, Normandie, and Frank Moore, unatached professional, in an 18-hole best ball match at Meadow Brook this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Ben Richter, Triple A, and Orville White, Westborough, go to Alton this afternoon for a match with Chris Granes and Wyndham Monroe at the Municipal course there at 2 o'clock.

WEBSTER GROVES HELD TO SCORELESS TIE BY FARMINGTON ELEVEN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FARMINGTON, Mo., Sept. 24.—The Webster Groves High School football team of the St. Louis County League opened its season here this afternoon in the annal game with the local high school eleven, and was held to a scoreless tie.

Although Farmington showed more flashes of brilliant play, the Webster Groves players appeared to be a smooth-working machine, a thing which has been noticeably lacking at Webster in the past few years.

Farmington made a strong bid for a touchdown in the first period, when a 15-yard penalty gave it the ball 10 yards from Webster's goal. Webster held on the five and punted. Again in the second, Farmington went to the five-yard line and once more Webster put up a solid defense.

The lineups:

FARMINGTON.	POS.	WEBSTER.

Substitutions: Webster—Perkins for MacKeen, Becker for Larson, Prehn for MacKeen, Perkins for Ward, Becker for McLagan, Perkins for Alexander, Ward for Burgess. Jesse pitched the rest of the game, working 8 1-3 innings, and during his stay on the mound the Pirates were scoreless except in the seventh, when two singles and a double produced one run.

Haines seemed to have all the old magic in his right arm. His control was perfect, not a Pirate drawing a base on balls, and the old master was ahead of virtually every batter. Old Pop can't work frequently any more, but his fine showing against the Pirates on the semi-final day of the season will help to cheer Gabby Street through the winter, when he considers his pitching staff for 1933.

Couldn't Win for Winford.

The six runs off Winford were enough to win for the Pirates, the final score being 7 to 4, with Larry French going the route for the Buccaneers. Winford was trying to work with only one day of rest, the young right-hander from Rochester having pitched 4 2-3 innings against the Reds on Thursday and his showiing was not a fair indication of his ability.

He walked the Waner boys to start the game and Comorosky then doubled to right, scoring Lloyd. Suhr struck out but P. Waner scored while C. Wilson was throwing out Piet and Winford couldn't retire the third man. Vaughan walked, Brubaker singled to center, Finney doubled to left and when French singled to center to drive in the sixth run of the inning, Street called Haines from the bull pen.

That was all of the Pirate scoring, except in the seventh, when P. Waner and Comorosky singled and Suhr doubled, to score P. Waner. Reese's single, Flowers' triple and Puccinelli's single gave the Cards two runs in the first inning, and they then went scoreless until the sixth, when Puccinelli singled through the box for his third straight hit, took second on Collins' single to center and scored when Blades got a single to center, L. Waner losing the ball in the sun.

Closing Day Finds Cardinals in Fight To Finish Sixth

THE major league baseball season comes to a close today with the 1931 world champion Cardinals fighting it out with the New York Giants, another "spring contender" for the championship, for sixth place.

Both teams play doubleheaders today and upon the outcome of these games depends the final standing of the two clubs which had been picked to battle for the National League pennant.

The Browns wind up their season with a doubleheader in Detroit. They are firmly entrenched in sixth place and what they do today will make no material difference.

Advance Ticket Sale For Wednesday's Series Opener Below Normal

By Alan Gould,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Just a couple of good brassie shots from the Polo Grounds setting where one of the greatest of baseball's inter-city rivalries flourished in the days of Mathewson and Brown, of McGraw and Chance, the Chicago Cubs will carry the National League banner into action against those fearsome New York Yankees next Wednesday afternoon in the first game of the 1932 world series.

It was always a battle for the Cubs whenever they came to the "big town" in the old days and it promises to be no exception this time. John McGraw and other famous survivors of the Giants who used to form the main reception committee for the Chicagoans, will do nothing more damaging now than dictate stories in the press box, but the Cubs of today happen to be going up against one of the toughest, hardest-hitting aggregations in the game.

The Yankees rule 5 to 3 favorites to win the championship, despite the questionable condition of their No. 1 long range gun, Babe Ruth, and the recently developed uncertainty over the pitching fitness of Lefty Gomez and Red Ruffing.

Series a Toss-Up.

How much these odds are based on the previous world series record of Ruth & Co. remains to be seen. There is no encouragement for National League partisans in the fact the Yankees did not lose a single game in their last two championships, in 1927 and 1928, but the present circumstances are not calculated to strike unnecessary fear into the ranks of so resourceful and well-balanced an outfit as the Cubs. It should be a close and hard-fought series.

The renewal of this New York-Chicago duel in a setting far different from the old days, will be marked by a customary world series ceremony and glamour but the prospects for a record opening crowd Wednesday are not very bright. Advance ticket sales have been below normal. Only a small percentage of the $5.50 and $6.60 tickets in the reserved sections of th grandstand have been sold. The main rush is expected the morning of the first game, when 22,000 bleacher seats at $1.10 and 12,000 unreserved grandstand seats at $3.30 go on sale at the Yankee Stadium.

Yankee officials today predicted, however, that upwards of 50,000 spectators will see each of the first two games here, Wednesday and Thursday. The capacity of the Yankee Stadium now is slightly over 69,000 and the record crowd for a single world series game, 63,600, was accommodated there in 1926.

Chicago Expects Sellouts.

The prospects are better for sellouts at Wrigley Field, Chicago where capacity is around 52,000, for each of the three games scheduled there, Oct. 1-2-3. If additional games are needed to settle the question of supremacy, the scene will shift to the Yankee Stadium again for the sixth contest, Oct. 5, and a seventh, Oct. 6.

Meanwhile the rival clubs are being given a thorough going-over by the experts, seeking the answer to whether the hustling National League aggregation led by popular Charley Grimm will have the stuff to check the sluggers piloted by Marse Joe McCarthy, the only man with the distinction of leading pennant winners in the two major circuits.

McCarthy's Problems.

McCarthy, besides the satisfaction of leading his men against the club that deposed him two years ago in favor of Rogers Hornsby, himself now an outcast, has the advantage of experience and closer knowledge of the two contending outfits. This, however, will do Marse Joe no good unless he can restore his two ace pitchers, Gomez and Ruffing, to top-notch form and rely upon the old power in Ruth's big bludgeon.

The answer to McCarthy's pitching worries, it appeared today, may be the 230-pound right-hander, Walted Brown. A relief pitcher

Has He World Series "It"?

With Ruth up and three on, the Babe would loom up like a light house. Walk him? What for, with Gehrig coming up and Lazerri, Dickey and Chapman each waiting his turn.

Lon Warneke.

But this Warneke seems to have baseball "it." That means poise and perhaps the ability to deliver one's best when the need is greatest.

During the season, he has won 22 victories and lost only six. More than 20 of them have been complete games, indicating that the young man's bump of self-reliance is substantial.

He struck out an average of nearly four opponents a game and held his rival clubs to 7.85 hits a game, on the average.

Figures Mean Little.

DESPITE all these favorable figures, Warneke will not be the starting pitcher. Figures can't supply world series "IT," which consists largely of the stuff fiddle strings are made of, in the language of Willie O'Connor. Warnecke may have the stuff, but the manager of the team is afraid to take a chance; and so Guy Bush will be gingered up and sent against the Yankee wrecking crew.

Sooner or later in the series, however, Warnecke will be called upon, without doubt; and then we hope he has a vest full of "it." Boy, he'll need some!

After All They're Human.

TO JUDGE by the professional betting odds quoted here last night, the public must think the Yanks are just as good as "in." The betting is 1 to 2 and the Yankee supporters are taking that price, both for the series and for the opening game. Even the professional betting men say this is wrong; but the money is pouring in on the Yanks and the fans are taking it.

The price therefore is really the public odds, and not those of the professional commissioners. Most of these will tell you there isn't any 2 to 1 on a single game and very little on any series.

Many view the series as a battle between unhittable pitchers and invincible batters. The boys who like the Yanks are urging that the Cubs' pitching is not

BROWNS BREAK EVEN IN DETROIT; BOTH GAMES GO EXTRA INNINGS

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Sept. 24.—The Browns lost the first game of the doubleheader here today in the tenth inning by a score of 1 to 0. They almost lost the second game in 11 innings. They managed to retire a third man when Detroit had the winning run on the bases. The score was 5 to 4.

In the first game, Carl Fischer gave one of the best pitching performances of the season. Through nine innings he held Detroit to one hit—a single. In the tenth, Rogell, leading off, lined the ball into right field. Campbell misjudged it and when finally he got his hands on the ball, fumbled. The ball rolled to the fence and Rogell ran to third.

Fischer was in the first tough spot of the game. He purposely passed Richardson and Desautels, filling the bases, to bring up Bridges, the pitcher. The scheme did not work quite well enough, for, while the Browns killed a run at the plate on Bridges' tap to Fischer, they missed a double play at third, and they still had the bases loaded, with one out. Fischer got two strikes on Davis, but the first sacker ripped a single to right, a hard line smash that brought home Richardson and ended the game.

Fischer walked only two men in the nine innings that preceded the catastrophe. Detroit got only one man as far as second. That was Richardson, who drew one of the passes and stole. Outside of that Fischer delivered perfect pitching with a vast amount of stuff beautifully controlled.

George Blaeholder saw Detroit tie up the second game in the ninth, when he was leading by a 2 to 1 score and he saw them threaten to overtake the Browns in the eleventh after they scored three runs in their half of the inning.

With two out and two on bases and St. Louis holding to a lead of one run, Hebert came to Blaeholder's rescue and retired the final batter of the day.

The Cards tallied their fourth and final run in the eighth on doubles by Collins and Medwick.

Season Ends Today.

Today's doubleheader between the Cardinals and Pirates will close the National League season. Dizzy Dean and Tex Carleton are scheduled to pitch for the Redbirds.

WASHINGTON U. VARSITY DEFEATS ALUMNI, 34-2

By James M. Gould.

Washington University's newly built football team, under the leadership of Head Coach Jimmy Conzelman, made its debut at Francis Field last night and had no trouble in defeating an Alumni team, 34 to 2. While the new Bears, with their new shift, worked smoothly and gave the 3000 fans present an enjoyable evening, the game itself was hardly a true test of the team's strength.

They ran pretty well as they pleased while in possession of the ball and, defensively, were perfect except for a few dashes by the irrepressible "Red Ted" Saussele, who seemed as lively as ever. At no stage of the game was the Alumni team in position to score, except on the gift-safety in the fourth quarter.

The Varsity scored 13 points in the first quarter and seven more in the second, adding 14 in the third and going scoreless in the final period.

Referee Injured.

The general showing of the Bears was excellent, but the game afforded no opportunity of gauging the eleven's strength against a well-coached, well-conditioned opponent.

Strangely enough, the only person injured was the referee. Toddy Kamp, in the first quarter, was clipped by a Varsity player while one of the Bears' backs was slashing off on an end run and was forced to retire from the game with an injured knee.

Harvey Miller Gains 34 Yards.

Alumni kicked off and there was no run back. After gaining six yards on two plays, the Varsity lost on the next two and were forced to kick. Hayes ran back five yards for Alumni but the old chaps could make no consistent gains and kicked. After a short gain, Captain Miller cleared the Alumni right end for 34 yards. Two plays netted no gain and Koerner then ran around the Alumni right end for a touchdown. Blumberg place-kicked the extra point. Score: Varsity 7, Alumni 0.

After Varsity had failed to make ground on the second kickoff, Al Hayes ran a punt back 15 yards. Alumni line plays were easily stopped by the charging Varisty forwards, and the ends refused to be turned. At this point the tired Alumni sent in a new team, with Friedman, Paris, Hoffman and Saussele as well-remembered stars of former days.

Koerner Scores Gain.

Duncan fumbled a varsity kick. On the first play, a pass, Blumberg to Koerner, scored a second touchdown but a pass for the extra point grounded. After the second score, Coach Conzelman took out the starting varsity team with many of his first stringers getting Dark Secret, breaking rapidly and sent into a slight lead while going along smoothly, was steadied until entering the home stretch, responded cheerfully when shaken up and outstayed Osculator. Latter forcing the pace and going strongly, continued willingly under punishment. Gallant Sir well placed, met with slight interference when straightened into the home stretch but secured racing room next the inside and finished resolutely. Top Flight, rated in the thick of contention, was held safe when put to a drive. Snapback gained steadily on the outside and finished with good courage. Stepenfetchit came with a strong rush the last quarter mile. Rehoboth showed a good test. Canron tired after moving up. Larranaga went to his knees with the break and could never reach contention.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 24.—Equipoise, "the thoroughbred of the year," met his match today for the second time in 11 starts this season, finishing last in a five-horse field in the Severn Handicap, run over six furlongs at Havre de Grace.

The C. V. Whitney's four-year-old, holder of the world's competitive record for one mile, looked anything but a champion as he trailed home nine lengths back of the winner, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Pairbypair, a long shot, paying $41.20 for $2. The race was Equipoise's first start since winning the Whitney Stakes at Saratoga.

Two Ex-Champions Fall.

After leading all of the way, the speedy Hertz colt fought off the belated challenge of George D. Widener's Jack High, which held the mile record at 1:35 until Equipoise stepped the distance in 1:34 2-5 at Arlington Park this past summer. Jack High, making his second start in 18 months, was a half-length back of the winner with J. W. Y. Martin's Con Amore third and the Superior Stable's Supreme Sweet fourth.

The Whitney colt had the disadvantage of carrying 129 pounds and giving the winner 22 pounds, but in addition he refused to line up, delaying the start nearly 10 minutes. When the five did get away, Equipoise was last, and last he stayed throughout he journey.

The time for the distance was 1:12.

Top Flight Is Fourth.

The renewal of the Potomac Handicap, a test for three-year-olds, went to Dark Secret, an outsider from Ogden Mills' Wheatley Stable.

The trim son of the Derby winner, Flying Ebony, ridden by Hank Mills, dominated the running over the mile and one-sixteenth to finish a length in advance of W. R. Coe's Osculator, also a long shot. A nose back of the Coe representative trailed Norman Church's California owned son of Sir Gallahad III, Gallant Sir. Then came C. V. Whitney's great filly Top Flight, the 2 to 1 favorite, once again failing to conquer the colts of her age. She was never far back of the pace-setting Dark Secret, but when the real test came in the final furlong, she failed to answer to the urging of her jockey. Sonny Workman.

By Damon Kerby.

Friend Charley, two-year-old son of Sir Greysteel-Ada May, won his eighth race in a row when he captured the Fairmount Golf Club Handicap, the feature of the eight-race program at Fairmount, yesterday afternoon. It was his second Fairmount victory, having won his other start at the Collinsville course a week ago.

Carrying 124 pounds, 12 more than Sir Michael, considered his nearest rival, Friend Charley, owned by Jewell Brothers of Lexington, Ky., sprinted to victory in the six-furlong race before 12,500 cheering spectators in 1:13 and paid the good price of $5.02 to win, $4.06 to place and $2.80 to show.

Until the stretch was reached it appeared that Friend Charley was going to be buried under the weight handicap, even though he was following the pace-setting Odd Star by only a head.

Wins by a Half Length.

Rounding into the stretch, Friend Charley suddenly came to life on the inside rail, passing Odd Star as though that horse had just come off a milk route. Friend Charley drew out into the lead and appeared to be "in," but while the horses were in front of a roaring grand stand, Sun Gros, carrying only 107 pounds, made a real threat and it appeared that Friend Charley was giving away to him, but the horse from the Blue Grass, in spite of the 124-pound load on his back, had enough left to cross the line a winner by a half length.

Eight of the best two-year-olds at the track went to the post, including Sir Michael, owned by Joseph Cattarnish, who is also one of the heavy stockholders in the Fairmount Jockey Club.

Friend Charley and Sir Michael had finished one-two in the opening day, Friend Charley carrying 117 pounds and Sir Michael 115. Friend Charley had led at the wire by two lengths and was given seven more pounds yesterday in the belief that it would bring him back to the remainder of the field. It almost did—but not quite.

Daily Double Pays $49.54.

The daily double paid $49.54 on Jim Ormont and Paul T., in the second and third races. It was announced that 5696 tickets were sold in the pool, and 215 were winning.

Three of the first four races were over the six furlong route. La Compere, chestnut filly owned by Mrs. S. Orr, led home a field of ten in the first race for three-year-old fillies. La Compere got away in front and made every post a winning one, finishing three lengths ahead of Hasty Polly, which had offered the hardest competition. The little regarded

NEW YORK'S BATTING MARGIN IS OFFSET BY CUBS' FINE PITCHING; TEAMS ABOUT EQUAL IN FIELDING

NEW YORK.

HERE is Babe Ruth's hitting record over his span of nine world series, starting as an unsuccessful pinch-hitter with the Boston Red Sox in 1915, and winding up with the record shattering average of .625 against the Cardinals in 1928:

By Herman Wecke.

Statistics for the season indicate that the world series between the Yankees, representing the American League, and the Cubs, champions of the National League, starting in New York next Wednesday, will be a closer fight than a majority of the experts figure. Each team has advantages in several important departments.

For instance, if pitching is to decide the series, as was the case in 1931, when Burleigh Grimes and Bill Hallahan of the Cardinals stopped the Athletics, then the advantage is with the Cubs. If hitting is to be the deciding factor, then the Yankees must be given the edge. In fielding, there is very little to choose between the rivals for world baseball supremacy.

Summed up briefly, figures show that the rivals rate as follows:

Pitching—Advantage for Cubs. The National League champions' pitchers have yielded 3.96 runs a game this season, whereas those of the Yankees have been found for 4.77.

Batting—Yankees have edge. McCarthy's regulars have hit .310, against .301 for the Bruins. Team figures for the year are as follows: Yankees .288, Cubs .278.

Experience in world series—Little advantage, since both have experienced as well as inexperienced players.

Since both managers agree that pitching will decide the championship, it probably would be proper to consider this department first of all.

Warnecke Leads Them All.

Records indicate that Lonnie Warneke, the young right-hander, is the outstanding pitcher on the two clubs. He has allowed but 2.61 runs a game during the National League campaign. The Yanks have no one to compare with Warneke in efficiency, with the possible exception of Charley Ruffing. Ruffing, despite the winning records of Gomez and Allen, appears the Yankee ace. He has allowed 3.42 runs a game and has fanned 186 to rank as the strikeout champion of the big leageus.

Gomez has been found for 4.50 runs in each nine rounds. Three Cub regulars, besides Warneke, have better efficiency records. They are Charley Root, Guy Bush and Pat Malone. These four are likely to carry the pitching burden for Charley Grimm, with Burleigh Grimes, ace for the Cardinals last fall; Bud Tinning, Smith and May as reserves. Bush has allowed 3.87 runs a game; Bush, who gained the Cubs' only victory over the Athletics in 1929, 4.14, and Malone, 4.23.

Allen Has Fine Record.

Next to Ruffing, Allen has stopped the enemy with the fewest runs, among the Yankee twirlers. Allen's mark is 4.14. That for Pipgras is 4.95. The figure for all the others on the staff of the American League titleholders is above the five runs a game figure.

As a staff, the Cub flingers in 1284 innings have allowed 570 runs, while those of the Yankees have permitted 748 in 1551 frames.

The Bruin hill men have had just as much experience as those of the Yankees, since Bush, Root, Malone and Grimes of the National Leaguers have been in a world series. Not one of McCarthy's aces, Ruffing, Gomez or Allen, has been in a championship struggle. Pipgras, Pennock and Moore are the only ones who have been in a fall classic. Thus it appears that if there is any edge in experience, it goes to the National Leaguers. Warneke's work will be watched with keen interest, in view of Paul Derringer's two failures with the Cardinals a year ago, following his great work in the regular campaign.

Each Team Will Show an Inexperienced Infielder, Both of Whom Have Made Good

As regards the infields. Each team will show an inexperienced man in an important position. The Cubs will have Billy Herman at second base, while the Yanks will have Frank Crosetti at shortstop. At first, Gehrig has a batting edge over Grimm, though there is little to choose between the pair in fielding. Season's records give Herman a .313 mark against .299 for Lazzeri. But the Yankee has batted in 108 runs against but 49 for the Bruin youngster. They rank with the best in the majors this year. Lazzeri was given a place on Babe Ruth's All-America, while John McGraw selected Herman.

Koenig a Standout.

At shortstop there will be an interesting battle, with Mark Koenig, who was with the New Yorkers in their previous pennant-winning years, now at the position for the Cubs. Koenig, on the figures has a big advantage over his rival. At third there is little to choose between Elwood English and Joe Sewell.

The Cubs' quartet has a batting mark of .301 for the year against one of .299 for the four regulars of McCarthy's crew.

In the outfield, the three athletes, who will start for the American Leaguers, have a combined swat mark of .322, while the Bruin trio has .310, giving the American League entry the margin. Babe Ruth has a mark of .348, while Riggs Stephenson, the Cubs' best, has .335. Hazen Cuyler, one of the Cubs' aces, has hit but .280, but he is apt to do better than that in the world series. He was one of the Pirates' stars in the victory over the Senators some years back, although he was forced to ride the bench when the Pirates lost four in a row to the Yankees in 1927. He probably must be ranked ahead of Chapman, while Combs of the Yanks has the edge over Moore, his center field rival. Chapman and Moore will be new to the series.

Try and Stop Them!

Although Dickey has outhit Hartnett .310 to .269 for the season, Hartnett is apt to break up a game at any time with his long-distance wallops. He was one of the Bruins' big guns in the final drive to the flag. Among the reserve catchers, Hemsley must be rated ahead of Jorgens. The Yanks have as reserves Byrd and Lary, while the Cubs have Gudat, Jurges, Demaree and Hack.

The Cubs will have a far better chance in the series if Ruth and Gehrig can be stopped. This pair still ranks with the best in the majors in run production. The Yanks have scored 958 runs this season. Ruth and Gehrig have scored 247 and driven in a total of 281, a total of 528. However, from this total must be deducted 72 home runs, which figure as both runs scored and runs batted in. Thus they have accounted for 456, or 47 per cent of the tallies scored by the New York club this year. The Cubs have no pair to match against Ruth and Gehrig.

Only one Cub player has scored 100 runs. This athlete is Herman, with a total of 105. Not one has driven in 100. In addition to Ruth and Gehrig, Combs has scored 138 runs, while Lazzeri, in addition to Ruth and Gehrig, has batted in more than 100 markers.

The Yankees' eight regulars have scored 757 runs and batted in 750. Against this the Cubs' regulars have scored 491 and swatted across a total of 443!

When the series is opened, Grimm will be matching strategy with the man for whom he worked when the Cubs won the pennant in 1929.

McCarthy Won in Both Leagues.

In that series McCarthy, who now has the honor of being the only manager in captivity to win pennants in both leagues, saw his club beaten in four of five games by the Athletics. Thus McCarthy has one year of world series management behind him, while Grimm will be making his debut. And managers who win the world series in their first year as leaders can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Off-hand, Tris Speaker and Bucky Harris are about the only ones. So it can be seen what Grimm is up against when he matches wits with his old boss.

However, it promises to be a fine series and new attendance and finance records are apt to be established if the series goes the full seven contests.

Picked to Pitch First World Series Game

most of the year, Brown has suddenly manifest exceptional form, pitched three great games in succession and prompted the possibility of being a surprise choice as a world series starter. The Yankee board of strategy believes Brown will be a great bet to beat the Cubs, on a steaming hot day.

The 27-year-old big fellow, born in Rhode Island, but now a resident of New Orleans and a baseball product of the Southwest, has a world of stuff.

Barring a shakeup in present plans, however, Ruffing, the speedball right-hander, will be the Yankees' choice to oppose Guy Bush, the 30-year-old Mississippian, in the opening game. Gomez is slated to pitch the second game against Charley Root. If the slender southpaw does not look right, it will be either Brown or Johnny Allen, star young right-hander. The Cubs' freshman star, Lonnie Warneke, is due to twirl the third game, Saturday, at Wrigley Field.

Ruth still is weak from the effects of an attack of appendicitis. There seems no doubt the famous slugger will start his tenth world series, thereby launching a fresh attack upon the record books, but it is also likely he will be saved at every opportunity. Sammy Byrd will be the No. 1 outfield relief man.

Women's National Golf Tournament Starts Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

PEABODY, Mass., Sept. 24.—The majority of the field of 99 in next week's women's national golf play today had their first opportunity to play against the wind on the championship layout at the Salem Country Club.

Enid Wilson, British champion for the past two years and the outstanding threat against the American favorites, put in her usual long workout. She went over the course, playing several balls on each hole and then toiled on the practice tee and green.

Helen Hicks, defending champion; Mrs. Glenna Collette Vare, who has held the title five times in the last decade and was last year's runner-up; Virginia Van Wie, Maureen Orcutt and Mrs. Opal Hill, Western champion, were equally diligent in their preparations for Monday's qualifying test.

"Pro" Soccer Teams Will Play In Indoor Matches Tomorrow; Stix Club to Use Its Stars

Soccer without its characteristic setting of snow, sleet and zero temperature will be offered at The Arena tomorrow night when the four teams of the St. Louis Soccer League engage in a three-game program. The winner of the first game will meet the winner of the second game and the ultimate victor will be awarded The Arena Cup.

The schedule is as follows: Stix vs. Ben Millers; Andersons vs. Coca-Colas, each game to be of 15-minute halves, winner vs. winner in the final with halves of 20 minutes.

Each team will be limited to seven players who will probably be lined up with four forwards, two backs and a goal tender. Bob Gregg, the Scotch-born left fullback, who has played five-a-side and seven-a-side matches abroad, says that it is customary to use the goaltender as a sort of combination fullback and goalie, thus permitting the two "backs" to cover the territory of both fullbacks and halfbacks. That is probably the system that will be employed at the Arena although St. Louis goaltenders have been trained along different lines. Under the rules, the goaltender will not be permitted to touch the ball with his hands when he is outside the penalty area.

Stix Will Use Stars.

From the looks of the lineup, Manager Jim Burke hopes to use, the Ben Millers will have a difficult time getting past the Stix to reach the evening's final. Burke probably will field his team as follows: Goal, Dave Bartnett; backs, McPherson and Watson; forwards, McNab, Ahrens, Flavin and McLean. That's a lineup that has great possibilities, both defensively and as an attacking force.

Johnny Hamm will be in goal for the Millers and that's almost enough in itself to assure a good defense. Diaz and Kane are among the eligible backs and there are some good forwards among Coughlan, Rudge, Bart Connors, Brengle and Blaisdell. Manager Foley has a lot of other stars on his list but they have not yet signed contracts.

The Coca-Colas and Andersons will likewise present strong lineups but neither Manager Marre nor Manager Kavanaugh will hit upon a definite combination until after today's practice matches.

SOCCER NOTES.

Two of the elevens in the St. Louis league will engage in practice matches today. The Stix eleven will play the Russells at Sherman Park in the afternoon while the Ben Millers oppose the Spanish Sports Club in a morning contest.

Charley La Barge, veteran "goalie" of the Stix eleven, may be unable to play this year. La Barge tore a ligament in his knee and is now on crutches. It will be a month or more before he will be able to tell whether or not he will be able to make the grade. Meanwhile Dave Bartnett will guard the uprights for the western champions.

Muny League to Meet.

The first meeting of the Municipal League to organize the soccer circuit for the campaign will be held at Sherman Park Community Center, Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. Application blanks will be distributed and the date for closing of entries set.

Bill McPherson, one of the stars of the new Bedford club in the national title series, has signed to play a halfback position for the Stix. The club now has Watson, McPherson, Corbett, Hebberger, Nolan and Bohlman, a Muny League graduate for halfbacks.

Alec McNab has received word from the East that the New Bedford club is no longer playing as a unit. Several members are with the present New Bedford team and others with Fall River.

The Henses and Franklins will meet at Heman Park, University City, tonight in the final game of the series to decide the North St. Louis Twilight championship. Each team has won a game and one ended in a tie.

DAUERS PLAY P. N. A. NINE IN TITLE GAME

The Dauers and the Polish National Alliance baseball teams will meet in a playoff game for the championship of the second half split season schedule of the East St. Louis Municipal Baseball League at Jones Park this afternoon. Each team won 13 games and lost one during the regular season.

Louis Delatine or Adolph Miller will be on the mound for the Dauers, while Manager Lodney of the P. N. A. has not chosen his starting pitcher.

FOXX HITS 57TH HOME RUN BUT ATHLETICS LOSE TO SENATORS, 8-7

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—Despite Jimmy Foxx's fifth-seventh home run of the season, hit with the bases full, the Athletics lost their last home game of the season to the Washington Senators today, 8 to 7, in 10 innings.

Foxx's home run, hit in the first inning, sets a new high for second-place honors among major league sluggers. It broke his tie with Hack Wilson, who hit 56 homers for the Chicago Cubs in 1930. Foxx's circuit blow also allowed the Athletics to tie the major league team record for homers, set by the Cubs in 1930 at 171.

The final contest was see-saw game that the Athletics finally tied at 7—7, by scoring two runs in the ninth inning.

FORMER HARVARD FOOTBALL STAR HURLS YANKS TO 8-2 VICTORY

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 24.—Charley Devens, former Harvard football star, made his first appearance in a major league game as a pitcher for the New York Yankees today and turned back the Red Sox with six hits while the Yanks pounded out an 8 to 2 victory.

Babe Ruth's forty-first home run and his first since he returned to action after a two-week layoff, came as the climax of the game in the ninth inning. Loug Gehrig hit his thirty-fourth homer in a fifth inning rally that brought five runs.

Tennis Revised.

LAWN tennis has become a game
That calls for strength and brawn;
So they've deleted from the same
It's Christian name of "Lawn."

And also there are quite a few
Connected with the sport,
Who claim that "Love" should be taboo,
And banished from the court.

Frederick the Great.

When Johnny Frederick of the Dodgers hit his sixth home run of the season as a pinch hitter he set a mark that the bench warmers will be shooting at for some time to come.

Johnny is sold on the idea that a pinch hitter is a guy who hits 'em in a pinch.

As the world series draws near our thoughts revert to last year, and we wonder who will be the "Pepper" Martin of this year's classic.

Answer: There 'aint going to be none.

"Wild Horses" from the Osage gallop on the scene only once in a blue moon and it's a long time between blue moons.

It is bad luck to be a world series hero. After his death-defying feats in 1931, the only breaks "Pepper" Martin got the next year were in various bones of his body. And that's what made the "Wild Horse" wild.

Clothes and the Man.

A correspondent wonders why the Yanks, the richest club in baseball, wear such shabby uniforms that look more like overalls.

WHILE on the most exacting fan
The uniform may pall,
It's not the clothes that make the man,
But how he socks the ball.

As we recall the Boston Braves of 1914 they were about the crummiest looking bunch that ever took the field. But did they come clean? Ask the Athletics.

Stop It

The man in the period furniture room says there ought to be a law compelling people to stop using the word stop in telegrams stop especially if they are to be flashed on a moving picture screen stop it is quite okay if a guy wants to use stop in his private correspondence stop, but why foist it on a suffering public at picture shows question mark.

Yea, Bo.

PUNCTUATION is vexation,
Colons make me sad;
Exclamations have their points
But "stop" just drives me mad.

Earl Grace, who broke the record for continuous errorless backstopping wasn't given a tumble by Babe Ruth or John McGraw when those two worthies assembled their mythical ball teams. Is it possible the Earl fell from Grace on account of one measly little error?

BROWNS WIN AND LOSE IN DETROIT

gave Blaeholder the argument. A bad throw by Bengough on a double steal enabled Detroit to score a run in the third. The Browns discounted that in the fifth when Scharein walked, Bengough and Levey singled and Schulte doubled for two runs.

Tied in Ninth.

The lead held until the ninth. Here, Walker, leading off, doubled down the left field line. White lifted a foul fly to Scharein. The third sacker, after making the catch, threw the ball to Levey, who fumbled. As the ball rolled away Walker scored and the count was tied at two.

Nothing happened in the tenth, but in the eleventh Campbell, Goslin, Scharein and Bengough all hit honest singles. Two runs scored, two were out, Scharein was on third and Bengough on first. They tried a delayed double steal, and Scharein scored when Hayworth muffed Marrow's throw.

Three runs should have been enough of a lead then to win. They were, but it didn't look that way for a while. Walker, leading off, drove the ball over the left-field wall. White struck out, but Schuble doubled. Rogell popped out, but Hayworth singled Schuble home and Detroit was within one run of a tie. Rhiel batted for Marrow and singled. Davis was coming up and Hebert relieved Blaeholder.

DODGERS DEFEAT BRAVES, 3 TO 2, AND MAKE SURE OF THIRD PLACE

BROOKLYN, Sept. 24.—Watson Clark's pitching and Hack Wilson's hitting won third place in the final National League standing for the Dodgers today. Brooklyn clinched the position by defeating the Boston Braves 3 to 2 while the Phillies lost their first game to the Giants.

After clinching third place the Dodgers met and voted to give Del Bissonette, their crippled first baseman, a full share of the third-place money in the world's series. Bud Clancy, who played first in the last half of the season, was awarded two-thirds of a share and George Kelly, who was released to make room for him, one-third.

A full share will amount to about $600.

Giants Win Twice From Phils, 8-4, 5-4.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. — Roy Hansen couldn't control the Giant's batters today and New York won two games from the Phillies to regain their tie with the Cardinals for sixth place. The scores were 8 to 4 and 5 to 4, the second game going 10 innings.

Hansen was the losing pitcher in both clashes. He was knocked from the hill in the sixth inning of the opener as the Giants came from behind with six runs in two innings, then walked three men in the tenth inning of the nightcap, after relieving Benge in the eighth, and Pinch Hitter Sam Leslie followed with a fly off Liska's delivery that drove in the winning run.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Weather and doctors permitting, Mickey Walker will have his twice-deferred chance Monday night to pop his left hook at Max Schmeling, and get the boxing business in out of the great outdoors before the snow flies.

The little fellow from Rumson, N. J., has come down to his great heavyweight opportunity handicapped by an attack of boils. Twice, within 10 days, boxing commission physicians have examined the former welterweight and middleweight champion, and then ordered the warriors back to training quarters.

As a result the odds against Walker's whipping the sturdy, stolid German who lost his heavyweight title to Jack Sharkey during the summer, have lengthened steadily. Schmeling today was a 3-to-1 favorite.

$200,000 'Gate' Expected.

The postponements may have a favorable reflection in the box office. The new date for the 15-round engagement in Madison Square Garden's bowl on Long Island falls just two days ahead of the start of the World Series here. Predictions are for a gate of about $200,000.

Aside from boils, Walker is in fine condition, scaling around 172 pounds, and his style of warfare is the type calculated to cause Schmeling the greatest possible amount of trouble. Mickey is a fine boxer, sturdy, and at 31 smart enough after 15 years in many rings to avoid Schmeling's most dangerous punch, a straight right hand smash to the head.

Walker's ring generalship, ability to shift his fighting style abruptly, his craft and body punching ability at close quarters, make him a dangerous foe for Schmeling, who fought an uninspired battle losing his title to Sharkey.

Schmeling Has Hard Right.

Probably the most dangerous handicap to Walker's chances of surviving 15 rounds is his inclination to "cut easily" around the eyes. His skin seems to tear under glancing punches. He finished the fifteenth round against Sharkey badly cut and bleeding.

On the supporting card Charles Belanger, Canadian heavyweight, has been paired with Tony Shucco of Boston, for eight rounds, while Vincent Parille, Argentine heavy, and Al Fay of Pittsburgh, Bog Godwin of Atlanta and "Red" Barry of Washington, D. C., meet in four rounders.

The bouts will not be broadcast.

Johanningmeier Stars as Tigers Beat Freshmen

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 24.—Frank Carideo's University of Missouri varsity football team scored four touchdowns and as many extra points to defeat the freshmen eleven here this afternoon, 28 to 0, but their attack didn't get under way until the first half was almost over.

Jay Faurot, sophomore halfback; Carl Johanningmeier of St. Louis, and Woody Hatfield, veteran ball carrier, and Grant Morgan, regular tackle last year, converted into a fullback, scored the touchdowns.

The varisty failed to score until next to the last play in the second quarter, when Faurot plunged through line after Frank Ross, sophomore fullback, raced 25 yards to the 5-yard line the first time he carried the ball. Hatfield's place kick was good.

Almost single handed, Johanningmeier made another six points in the third period when he shot 47 yards to the 33-yard line, then after first down added 14 more yards and made the remaining seven yards for the touchdown, Percy Gill kicking the extra point.

Johanningmeier, in the fourth quarter, placed the ball in scoring position again, and Hatfield made the touchdown from the two-yard line. This time Johanningmeier made the extra point from placement. The final touchdown came on a 25-yard run by Don Clark, followed by a 30-yard charge by Faurot, another 15 yards by Clark, and then Morgan dived through line for the necessary 10 yards to score. Faurot kicked goal.

DODGERS DEFEAT BRAVES, 3 TO 2, AND MAKE SURE OF THIRD PLACE

BROOKLYN, Sept. 24.—Watson Clark's pitching and Hack Wilson's hitting won third place in the final National League standing for the Dodgers today. Brooklyn clinched the position by defeating the Boston Braves 3 to 2 while the Phillies lost their first game to the Giants.

After clinching third place the Dodgers met and voted to give Del Bissonette, their crippled first baseman, a full share of the third-place money in the world's series. Bud Clancy, who played first in the last half of the season, was awarded two-thirds of a share and George Kelly, who was released to make room for him, one-third.

A full share will amount to about $600.

PERRY DEFEATS SATOH IN COAST TENNIS FINAL

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—Frederick Perry of Great Britain, today defeated Jiro Satoh, 23-year-old Japanese Davis Cup player, 6—2, 6—4, 6—5, to win the singles championship of the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament.

Satoh, who eliminated Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, Cal., world's singles champion, and Henry Austin, Great Britain's ranking player, in his march to the finals, didn't have a chance against Perry's brilliant game.

The men's doubles final, however, will be an all-American affair.

Vines and Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, Cal., holders of the national championship, won their postponed match from Perry and Austin, 8—6, 1—6, 6—3, 6—3. The first two sets were run off yesterday, darkness halting the play.

The Davis Cup doubles champions, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, gained the final by eliminating Gene Mako, 16-year-old University of Southern California freshman, and Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles, 9—7, 8—6, 6—2.

Sarah Palfrey of Boston, and Carolin Babcock of Los Angeels, won the women's doubles championship with a victory, 6—2, 7—9, 7—5, over Miss Alice Marble and Mrs. L. A. Harper of Los Angeles.

Miss Marble and Mrs. Harper will meet in the finals of the women's singles.

WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT AT WESTBOROUGH CLUB

The annual medal play tournament of the St. Louis Women's District Golf Association will be held at Westborough Country Club, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

The event will be a handicap affair with competition in several flights.

U. OF CALIFORNIA DEFEATED, 12-0, BY SANTA CLARA

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 24.—The University of California went down to a stunning 12-0 defeat today at the hands of Santa Clara College while 50,000 fans thrilled to the first victory ever scored by the little school over its traditional rival.

Outfought on the ground and Coach "Navy Bill" Ingram's 1932 Coach "Navy Bill" Ingram's 1932 eleven that had been boosted as of possible national championship caliber, tumbled before a team that recognized neither a superior nor an equal.

The Bears received the first kickoff and made their only real showing in the first few minutes of play. From that time on it was Santa Clara only.

Michigan Aggies Win by 93-0 Score.

The South was the center of what few form reversals turned up during the first day of intercollegiate football. North Carolina, one of the powers in the Southern Conference, could get no better than a scoreless tie with Wake Forest and Washington and Lee, another conference team, was forced to surrender to George Washington University, 18-0.

High scoring honors for the day went to Michigan State which wound up on the end of a 93-0 score against Alma. Marquette beat Lawrence, 25-0 and Kansas State won from Wichita, 26-0.

Gunners to Play at Night At Sportsman's Park; Grange's Brother to Lead Other Pros

Announcement was made yesterday that the Battery A Gunners, professional football team, would play at Sportsman's Park this season and that at least the opening home game would be played at night. The first contest is scheduled for Monday night, Oct. 3, against the all-Marines from Quantico, Va.

A portable lighting outfit will be rented for the Gunners' game.

Also, Garland Grange, brother of Harold (Red) Grange, arrived in St. Louis to take up the duties of coaching the eleven to be sponsored by the Disabled Veterans of the World War, the second organization to announce plans for operation of a pro eleven here.

Both the Gunners and the Veterans had applied for use of Public Schools Stadium for next Sunday, and the announcement that the Battery A club would play at Sportsman's Park indicates that organization has withdrawn as a possible user of the stadium.

Garland Grange, like his brother a former Illinois U. star, expects to get his squad together and begin practice at once. Manager Bud Yates said the players would assemble to begin working out tomorrow and that like Grange, who has been a regular with the Chicago Bears of the National Professional League for three years, would be in condition for the opening game next Sunday. The Bears began practice on Sept. 1, and Grange was with them until he came to St. Louis. The opponents of the Veterans' club for next Sunday have not been named.

Grange will play as well as coach here. Like his brother, he is redhaired, and resembles the "galloping ghost." Garland Grange was at Illinois in 1926 and 1927.

As coach he will use the system of Ralph Jones, coach of the Bears, with a balanced backfield.

HAINES' FINE RELIEF WASTED AS CARDINALS LOSE TO PIRATES

Reds yesterday, apparently was double-warned not to discuss the conference or the possibility of his being the 1933 manager of the Cincinnati club. Jim visited the press box, explained that he couldn't talk, then rushed away, fearful that his good nature might get the best of him. Bottomley's chances probably depend on the ability of the two clubs to get together on a deal. The Reds haven't much except pitchers to interest Sam Breadon, but the Cardinals could use Si Johnson. No infielders or outfielders on the Red roster could make up for the loss of Sunny Jim.

Coach Grover Hartley, talking to Catcher Finney while French was warming up for the sixth inning, was hit on the head by a pitched ball and fell to the ground unconscious. After regaining consciousness he was helped off the field.

The attendance was announced as 750 paid.

Bottomley One Of 20 After Reds' Managership

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 24.

WHEN Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, was asked today if Jim Bottomley, St. Louis Cardinal first baseman, would be the next manager of the Reds he said "I have nothing to say."

Bottomley was in conference with Weil for three hours yesterday and departed. Bottomley is said to be one of 20 applicants for the 1933 managership of the Reds.

Weil said he would make no decision on the managerial post on the Reds until after the 1932 world series has been played.

BILLIKENS SCORE 6 TOUCHDOWNS AGAINST 'FROSH'

Coach Charles (Chile) Walsh passed his St. Louis University football squad in review yesterday afternoon in the first heavy scrimmage of the season. For two hours, the Billiken chief used some 40 varsity candidates in the scramble against the freshmen eleven and was far from pleased with the afternoon's showing.

The Billikens were ordered to report for a workout this morning, all of which indicates that Coach Walsh sees the need of considerable practice before his gridders open their schedule against McKendree College next Friday night.

Although the varsity teams were able to score six touchdowns during the scrimmage, they faced a freshman team much inferior to those of former years. A second string eleven opened the session against the freshmen and had little trouble in rolling up two markers. When the regulars were inserted, the freshmen held fast for nearly a half.

Ben La Presta, flashy Billiken ball toter, who has been under the trainer's care for several days, limped off the field with an injured hip. He will be exempt from hard work until the hurt shows improvement, which Trainer Bob Bowman expects will be several days. Ralph Beck, regular guard, also joined the hospital list with a wrenched shoulder.

Halfway through the scrimmage, Joe Maxwell, line coach, appeared on the field. He had just returned from Cape Girardeau where he scouted the McKendree-Cape Teachers game on Friday night.

Maxwell will impart the McKendree plays to the freshmen during this morning's workout. Scrimmaging will comprise the great portion of the Billiken practice program during the next few days, as they prepare for the season's opener. According to Maxwell, the McKendree team, which used as few plays and formations as possible in defeating Cape Girardeau, is fully as heavy as the best St. Louis U. combination. He says they have a good, small college team, in mid season form.

The scrimmage yesterday was not without its redeeming features, in spite of the poor showing. Arnold Arenz, giant fullback from Flat River, Mo., enough to make any coach's eye twinkle, did just that yesterday to the Billiken mentor. Between Arenz and Burris Schumacher, crack right halfback, the varsity regulars made most of their yards.

At the close of practice, nearly a dozen Billikens had been treated for injuries. This number involved such veterans as La Presta, Ralph Beck, John Black, Tom Howland, Harry Minkey and Mike Donahue. Howland's shoulder injury is the most serious, however, and his chances to play against McKendree are slim.

Series Final Today.

The Maplewood Moose will meet the Kirkwood A. C. in the third of a three-game series to decide the championship of the St. Louis County League this afternoon The Kirkwood A. C. won the first game 10 to 4 and Maplewood the second game 11 to 9. The game will be played on the Kirkwood field on Geyer and Peeke avenue.

Trolley League Title at Stake

The second half championship of the Trolley League will be at stake in a game at North End Park, Belleville, this afternoon, with the St. Louis Dairies opposing the Edgemont A. C. The two clubs finished in a tie for second half honors, necessitating the playoff. If the Dairies win, the team will gain the championship, since the Belleville nine won the first half honors.

Jim Ormont Wins.

Jim Ormont was a "hot thing" in the second, and M. J. Whalen's bay gelding came through with two lengths to spare after hanging back behind Ada Epinard and Toltec until reaching the half mile post. Ada Epinard gave way to Jim Ormont but hung on to place. Jim Ormont paid $6.30.

The third developed into one of the closest races of the afternoon, with Paul T. coming up strong to take the lead away from Yvette V. on reaching the stretch and then hung on to earn the victory by a head, with Dr. Jillson second over Boston Common by a nose. Paul T. was an outsider and paid $14.22 to win.

After Beauty Bride had set the pace for three-quarters in the fourth race, at a mile and a furlong, Drury, the second favorite, came through to win from the field of eight by three-quarters of a length, and paid $9.14. Royal Guinea took the place away from the outsider Nonenicer by three-quarters of a length.

Formic Pays $12.50.

Seven starters went to the barrier in the sixth race, contested at a mile and a half. In a driving finish, Formic defeated the well-backed Florida Gold, second by a neck. Pot Full was far back in third position. Formic ran the distance in 2:35 and paid $12.50 to win.

Outsider Captures Seventh.

Bold Robin, a long shot, put on a drive in the stretch to take the seventh, for four-year-olds and up, over the six-furlong route. Falmouth Belle, another outsider, was second by a half length and the well-backed Shasta Lad was third. Ridden by Jockey G. Horn, Bold Robin ran the distance in 1:14 and paid $23.56.

When the horses were leaving the barrier, J. Sylvester, up on Budget, was unseated and was carried from the track. Budget ran off and followed the field around the oval.

Jockey J. McLaren, who rode Formic, was set down by the stewards for five days for rough riding.

Fairmount Notes.

JOCKEY DUPUY, leading rider through the first six days of racing, had a profitable week. Paid the standard jockey's wage of $20 for a victory, $8 for a second and $5 for a third, Dupuy earned $245. Glen Fowler was second in earnings with $204.

Starter Buddy Wingfield has 17 horses in the schooling list. Those he is trying to teach the proper etiquette at the barrier are Atlas, Bellarion, Bozo, Bob's Luck, Chris Paschen, Dr. Coogle, Louisville, On End, Oleman Sunshine, Open Go Shut, Ottie M., Parcel, Pomfret, Ramsdell, Sammy Tuck, Thelma L. and Wrigley Field.

Possibly no one had more fun than two young gentlemen who got into a discussion of the relative merits of two horses. One liked Yvette V and the other was confident Drury would be a winner. They were overheard making a private bet—each wagering that the horse of his liking would finish ahead of the other. The third race was reeled off and the two young gentlemen—WELL, WERE THEIR FACES RED? Yvette V was a runner in the third, finishing fourth. Another 40 minutes and Drury had WON THE FOURTH RACE. One argued Yvette V finished ahead of Drury by 40 minutes or more, the backer of Drury pointed out that his horse was in a claiming race—why shouldn't his claim be recognized? Whaddayouthink?

WRAY'S COLUMN

unhittable, with only right-handers available. In addition to this pitching weakness they contend that the Yanks have a staff almost as strong as the Cubs and a hitting power far above that of their rivals.

Still, 1 to 2 is a short price to offer against a team whose general batting average is only 10 points better than its opponents', whose fielding average is slightly below the enemy's and whose pitching staff includes two "freshmen" hurlers, one tired out old left-hander and a pitcher who has only partly recovered from an operation for appendicitis.

This writer still favors the Yanks, but not as a 2-for-1 investment.

Reasonable, But Risky.

ANOTHER championship event this week sees very short odds offered and accepted. By accepting 2 to 5 against Schmeling the public appears to think that Maxie will have Mickey Walker at his mercy tomorrow night. You can get 2 to 1, if you want to back Walker.

Now the price against Schmeling is reasonable. There is every reason, on past records and today's statistics, to believe that Max can easily take care of Mickey. He is several years younger, he weighs 15 pounds more, he has fought the best heavyweights we have and more than held his own, and he has stopped an opponent who recently beat Walker.

In view of this, one would hardly hesitate to select Schmeling as the probable winner; but because Mickey is a pretty good fighter and because his manager has a reputation for getting the breaks where he doesn't figure to, it might be just as well to soft pedal, when it comes to conceding Schmeling the victory.

Doc Kearns may beat him, even if Mickey doesn't.

A Hard Luck Champion.

IN one way Schmeling is the world's champion hard-luck fighter. Economically Fortune has smiled on Max and made him rich. Pugilistically he has suffered many a black eye. Fouls, wrong decisions, charges of running out and lawsuits have attended his progress; but each time a financial balm has eased the pain.

When he crashed to the floor in his first fight with Sharkey, he suffered agonies from a foul blow. But he was given the title.

When he retreated to Germany after promising Sharkey a return engagement soon, he was charged with running out.

After he fought Stribling defending his "foul" title, he broke a contract to meet Carnera and this second run-out resulted in a lawsuit that is now hanging over him.

When he fought Sharkey the second time he lost the verdict and the title, although he won the fight.

If there is a jinx attending Max's fight progress, there is a horseshoe hanging over Mickey. Whenever he needs a good break, Doc Kearns gets one for him.

There is one thing that must be admitted about Walker—he knows how to fight and he has plenty of courage. If he is beaten it will be because a bigger and better man was in the ring with him. Size and condition being equal, Walker would whip Schmeling.

A Hard Struggle.

FAIRMOUNT race track's first week was a mixture of joy and sorrow for the promoters. Only on two or three days of the week was the betting heavy enough to enable the track to do better than break even. Yesterday was one of the good occasions; but the mid-week crowds of 5000 and upwards did not bring a big enough bank roll to swell the handle above an average daily of about $75,000. At 6½ per cent take and "break to the penny," the conditions laid down by the Illinois law, there was not much chance to escape the red ink.

The track gained from its pari-mutuel take an average of about $5000 a day. From all other sources it may have earned $1000 more. But the average daily cost of operation must be around $6500 not counting the $2500 daily tax which the jockey club must pay the State.

As It Used to Be.

THE situation is considerably different from that existing in the days of the old Fair Grounds, before racing was killed in Missouri.

In those days the minimum purse was $400, just as today at Fairmount. The admission price was $1, just as it is now (plus taxes). But with average daily attendances of under 5000, the Fair Grounds races not only paid but prospered, and without any pari-mutuel percentage to help out.

In the case of Fairmount, the taxation seems the element that eventually will kill the State of Illinois' Golden Goose.

WASHINGTON VARSITY DEFEATS ALUMNI

into action. Alumni kick was fumbled but recovered and Weingart then ran 35 yards well into alumni territory as the second quarter began. A pass, Frederickson to Brown, after line-plays failed to put the Varsity on the Alumni 4-yard line. Two plunges failed but Weingart cleared the Alumni right end for a third Varsity touchdown. When Frederickson kicked the extra point, the score was Varsity 20, Alumni 0.

Frederickson Goes Over.

On resumption of play, the Alumni kicked off and then held the Varsity and forced a kick but it was the same old story on the Alumni offense—the boys were "in there trying" but the power wasn't there. A Saussele kick drove the ball to the Varsity 11-yard line, which marked the closest the Alumni had come to the Varsity goal. Of course, the old timers didn't have possession of the ball, but it was something.

Forced to punt, the Varsity gained 20 yards by recovering a fumble. Brown then broke away for 40 yards around the Alumni left end and put the ball on the 10-yard line. Frederickson scored the touchdown on a plunge through a wagon-wide hole. He also place-kicked the extra point. After receiving the kickoff the old folks used a pass for their second first-down of the game. In the last minutes of the quarter, Koerner got away after a 50-yard dash and Blumberg place-kicked the extra point. A pass, Saussele to McDonald, carried about 35 yards but, unfortunately, McDonald muffed an easy catch.

The harassed old-timers were substituting ever and anon as the youngsters pushed them around. Sauselle, it was who gave the Alumni their first down of the game in midfield. But a pass was intercepted and the ensuing Varsity march was temporarily stopped. Lack of practice made the hastily patched-together Alumni plays easy to stop except when Saussele got away on infrequent short dashes but the old folks did prevent any further scoring in the period.

The final period opened with the ball belonging to the Alumni on the Varsity's 34-yard line. But, they couldn't go anywhere and soon lost possession. The Varsity was put on its two-yard line by penalties and trying to kick, Weaver, at center, passed the ball far into the end-zone for an automatic safety. Thus the Alumni were not shut out.

Both teams changed players ad lib in the fourth quarter and the Varsity was unable to add to its score.

Annual Bicycle Derby to Be Held At O'Fallon Park

A field of 135 will compete in the fourth annual bicycle derby and midwestern championship to be held under the auspices of the Century Road Club of America, Missouri division, this morning at O'Fallon Park. There will be 14 events on the program, starting at 8 o'clock.

Among the 15 out-of-town riders are Bud Thorpe, California champion; Bob Faltermier and Carl Scutte of Kansas City and Ossie Griffith, last year's runner-up, is expected to be St. Louis' best bet, although he will receive competition from his teammate, Olin Bechtel. Other local entrants who are picked to finish among the leaders are Erich Marxen, Andrew Biondo, Andy Hart, Harry Lockner and Erwin Windler.

Fishing off the California coast near Santa Barbara on August 26, Major Albert Bond Lambert, St. Louis capitalist and pioneer of aviation, caught a 438-pound marlin swordfish, the third largest ever taken from California waters and by far the largest caught so far this year. The fish put up a terrific battle which continued for an hour and 50 minutes before it finally gave up the fight and was dragged in. It measured 10 feet, 9 inches long and was 5 feet in circumference around the gills. Major Lambert and his party trolled from a 43-foot hand-model motorboat of a type commonly used in Florida and California waters. For bait they used a dead flying fish carefully prepared to prevent it from revolving in the water. Major Lambert's own account follows:

MAJOR

SANTA BARBARA, California.

THE marlin swordfish, weighing from 100 to some 400 pounds, is the greatest fighter of all the salt water fish. When hooked he will invariably run a thousand feet, leaping clear out of the water from twenty to fifty times in an effort to throw the hook, or break the line. To accomplish this, he throws his whole weight and strength against the line at an approximate speed of thirty miles an hour. He frequently turns a somersault, both in the air and in the water to bring his rough sandpaper sword down on the steel leader to literally saw it in two. He is instinctively up to every trick a fish can play to save his life and he never quits until practically dead. He is to a certain extent unconscious when brought to gaff, but only after the ingenuity and skill of man has been taxed to the limit.

How then, I am asked, is it possible to land a marlin swordfish weighing 438 pounds with a line of only 48 pounds textile strength and a rod weighing less than 12 ounces?

The first thing and the most difficult, is to hook your fish. The marlin as a rule does not grab the bait in his mouth. He looks it over first, somctimes follows it for a distance, then one swift flash and he delivers a stroke of his sword across the back of the moving bait. As it falls he follows it down. The marlin has no teeth. He absorbs his food through grinders, located in the throat. He kills his food first. When the marlin delivers his sword stroke, the trolling bait must instantly and exactly simulate the natural action of a small fish stunned or killed by the blow. Your bait must, within the fraction of a second, play "dead dog." On the instant the reel must be released and the line stripped. Several seconds later is too late. In that short time Mr. Marlin is on to the situation and off he goes.

So delicate and gentle is the sword strike of the marlin that about seven out of ten strikes are passed up by the inexperienced fisherman, as a bit of sea weed or the back lash of a wave, only to discover eventually the tell-tale marks of the marlin strike on the bait. It requires eternal vigilance and hours and even days of patience to successfully hunt the marlin.

Equally vital is the time factor in hooking the fish precisely at the right moment. After the sword strike Mr. Marlin may still be in doubt or suspicious. The time factors I have had to use on various marlins range from ten to ninety seconds. A wait of forty seconds seems eternity to the fisherman. He is inclined to reel in, just a few inches, to see if the marlin is still on. One false move and the fish is gone. "That's just too bad," as Sandy Sanborn would say, when this impatience lost me my first fish. The time to strike the fish is when he himself tightens the line and the reel starts to click.

Then comes the thrill of a lifetime as one feels that resisting force of the line gradually gaining a lightning speed to almost burn out the drag now set on the reel.

One characteristic of the marlin when hooked is to run a thousand feet--more or less--and in one final leap to dance on his tail for several hundred feet (he is almost entirely out of the water.) At this crucial moment it depends upon the experience and ability of the fisherman to change the course of the fish from a straightaway to the right or left. This affords an opportunity to regain a few feet of line and to maneuver the boat into position. It is here that the fish loses his greatest advantage and the fight starts. If, however, the fish is a big one and he continues a straightaway run, nothing can stop him. He will, in another second or so, tear the reel from its socket unless the line is out, and as Sandy would say, "That's just too bad!"

Of course there are exceptions. The marlin sometimes grabs his bait without using the sword. I have had marlin to immediately sound and not once break water! A marlin frequently fouls in the fifteen-foot steel leader and becomes a dead weight. I have on two occasions seen one marlin hooked on two rods.

ON warm days and in smooth water, the marlin loafs on top—his fins are clearly visible. When a marlin first is spotted by the lookout, the boat is maneuvered several hundred feet in front of him and the bait trolled across his nose. You can see him lunge at the bait. The bait, as in trolling, must be immediately released. The marlin is not afraid of a boat, or any living thing in the water. In marlin fishing we use what are called "teasers"—a dead bait, without hook, attached to a line about thirty feet back of the boat. These teasers splash and serve to bring the fish up from deep water. I have seen marlin rush to within twenty feet of the boat and grab three teasers before one could say Jack Robinson. While this is going on, you pull in your trolling bait to the point of activity, or drop a baited line from the boat. Mr. Marlin will take everything in sight. I owe my best fishing to this maneuver.

On the other hand—I wasted two hours trying to get a lazy marlin to strike. He

"I'LL talk with indictments and verdicts." That was what United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson used to tell reporters during the long, difficult, dangerous investigation that led up to the conviction and imprisonment of Al Capone and his gang for evading their income tax payments.

Indictments and verdicts. And he got them. Now Johnson has been named by President Hoover to be Federal District Judge for Northern Illinois, a recess appointment that will in all probability be confirmed by the Senate next winter.

"If I had to go through what I have been through in the past four years," District Attorney Johnson told this writer. "I am not sure, knowing what I do know, that I could face it."

Johnson is a modest man. He is anxious that those who played leading parts in the fight against Capone shall receive full credit for what they did. That is not yet entirely possible. Before the contribution of a certain individual can be made known several men must die. Johnson is specific about that point and he will not amplify it.

BUT the Post-Dispatch is now able to reveal for the first time the impressive record of one figure which can now be made public. Frank J. Wilson emerges as the Federal Government's ace of aces among detectives. This indefatigable, tireless investigator in the last analysis made the case against Capone. To be sure he was materially aided by an assistant, Operative N (whose identity is unknown even to a majority of his fellow operatives in the Intelligence Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue), by Johnson, who gave his whole-hearted co-operation to the case; by Assistant United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green, who has been named to succeed Johnson; by Arthur Paul Madden, chief of the Chicago division of the Intelligence service; by Agents Clagett, Westreich, Tessem, Converse, Sullivan and Malone and Attorneys Clawson and Froelich. But when all had been taken into account, it was Wilson, this quiet, unassuming, almost shy-appearing man of about 40, who convicted Capone.

Wilson has been in the Intelligence service scarcely more than 10 years. Before that he was in the real estate business in Buffalo, his home town. As a boy he became intensely fond of sailing. With others, he rigged up an old catboat and won several regattas. He is well educated and a devout Catholic.

Before his entry into the Capone case he had investigated tax evasion cases which resulted in the Internal Revenue Bureau collecting hundreds of thousands of dollars for the Government in income tax cases. He has a direct, logical mind that enables him to go swiftly to the root of complex accounting problems. He could walk into the offices of a firm suspected of cheating on income tax, politely request that he and Revenue agents be allowed to examine the books, and they would come out in two or three days with evidence for a conviction. And so quietly and modestly that he has rarely, if ever, won the enmity of those whom he discovered in law violation. When he entered the Capone case, on special assignment outside the Baltimore district, in which he is officially located, there was no tangible evidence on which to convict Capone. An order had come from the highest authority that the "big boy" must be sent to prison. It was a matter of common knowledge that Capone lived in the most lavish style. But as for documentary proof to take before a grand jury, the Government had not a scrap.

As will be recalled, the Capone conviction was based chiefly on two documents, one a check, discovered in a Cicero bank, for $2500, made out to Jack Guzik and indorsed by Alphonse Capone and, secondly, an account book from two gambling houses in the Capone syndicate, showing profits of about $600,000 in 24 months. How did Wilson get this evidence?

In a raid on the "Subway" gambling house in Cicero, the town that belonged to Capone, there was found, among other documents in a safe, what appeared to be an account book. It was taken by Pat Roche, chief investigator for the State's Attorney's office, who turned it over to Madden who in turn gave it to Wilson to decipher. The latter soon discovered certain essential facts about this book. It was in three different handwritings. At certain intervals there were pages on which, after a balance had been taken, sums were allotted to "A," to "F," to "J" and to "R." It might have been anything or nothing. As merely a vague kind of account book with a lot of vague figures it was worthless.

Wilson decided that he had to find a way to identify the handwriting, tie it up with one or more of the persons who had made entries in that book. He and the Internal Revenue agents who co-operated with him thought first of telegrams that might have passed between Capone in Florida and his employes in Chicago. On request from Washington the Western Union was served with a subpena and turned over to the Government all the telegrams that had passed during a certain period between Chicago and Miami Beach. Agents went over those thousands and thousands of telegrams, carefully examined each bit of chaff in this huge haystack. They discovered that many, many times large sums of money had been forwarded from Chicago to Miami Beach, always under different names, usually Italian names.

AND at last he found the needle in the haystack, one of the needles. It was a telegram remitting money in a handwriting identical with that in which the first part of the account book was kept. And what was even more fortunate it was the only telegram he had come across sent to Alphonse Capone, an order for $5000. It was signed Pete Penovitch. Further, it had been sent just after the date in the account book on which one of those mysterious divisions had been made, to "A," "J," and so on.

Next, on an order from Washington, Wilson got permission to comb the accounts of banks in Chicago and outlying suburbs for such a name and such a handwriting. He and the agents working with him encountered numerous difficulties, for in spite of the request from Washington many bankers sought to balk the search. Some of these bankers were handling huge gangster accounts and they didn't want to lose those accounts. All these accounts were, of course, under fictitious names and it was not the business of the bankers—this was their contention—to pry into the affairs of their clients, or to permit anyone else to pry into these accounts. They were bound to preserve secrecy. But one by one they yielded and Penovitch was located through an account in a Cicero bank.

Penovitch was found to be a minor employe of the Capone syndicate in the "Subway" and the "Ship" gambling houses. Wilson quickly ran him down and tried to get him to talk about the telegram for $5000 to Al Capone. But nothing could make Penovitch talk. He denied it was in his handwriting. Wilson tried another line. He got the names of all former employes of the "Subway" and the "Ship" and went back to the banks to look for accounts that might give him handwriting samples. He found that two coincided with the handwriting in which the two last sections of the book were written. One was that of Fred Reis and the other that of Louis Shumway.

Weeks were spent in the search for these two men. Reis was finally found in St. Louis in a rooming house in the 3900 block on Delmar boulevard and Shumway was found with his wife in Miami. Reis was acting as accountant for St. Louis gamblers. After some pressure had been brought, he admitted that he had kept a part of the Chicago book and Shumway, confronted in Miami with Reis' confession, likewise admitted he had been a bookkeeper for a time for the gambling house. Reis told everything.

He explained that the sums beside the initials "A," "J," and so on, were the shares of the profits sent at stated intervals to Al Capone, Jack Guzik, Ralph Capone and two or three others in the inner council. Wilson had long suspected this, of course, but a grand jury will not indict on suspicion. Reis and Shumway very reluctantly agreed to testify and then there arose the problem of how to preserve these essential witnesses from gangland guns.

The Federal Government makes no provision for the harboring or protection of witnesses prior to a trial. Wilson went to Colonel Robert Isham Randolph of the Chicago Crime Commission and explained the situation. Colonel Randolph got $10,000 from the Secret Six of Chicago for Wilson's use. Reis was sent to South America, under the guardianship of a Government agent and Shumway and his wife were sent to San Francisco under guard. When they were brought back for trial, fear was so great that they were kept under protection of two or three agents, under assumed names, first in one Loop hotel and then another. They were taken to the Federal building in armored money trucks which drove in through a subway into the building. They were then taken by a secret elevator to the Judge's chambers and thence into the open court. By this time there were three—or, rather, four—Federal investigators in Chicago who were "poison," to use gangster parlance, to the Capone ring. On his arrival in Chicago Wilson had the immediate co-operation of two of Arthur Madden's star men, Nels Tessem and Clarence Converse.

TESSEM, of Scandinavian descent, is a small man of slight physique. Tessem is in a class by himself when it comes to digging information out of the records of a bank. He worked closely with Wilson in examining bank records and accompanied him on many dangerous night trips to Cicero.

Clarence Converse might be taken for a modest business man in the fifties. He despised Capone and his gang. Altogether fearless, he assumed the duty of making arrests. He seemed to take a grim kind of pleasure in reaching into the very center of gangland with a warrant and pulling out a Capone henchman.

It was Converse who arrested Jack Guzik, the little man with the plushy face of an evil child. A tip came that Guzik was dining in a loop restaurant with a half dozen gang leaders. Converse took the warrant, walked into the restaurant and discovered Guzik disguised with a wig and heavy beard. For a moment he hesitated beside the table and then, pointing his finger, he

When Romance Came Again to Alfredo, the Champion Aerialist

The Trapeze Partnership Between the Husband of the Late Lilian Leitzel and Vera Bruce That Led to the Altar.

Vera Bruce.

Alfredo Codona and Vera Bruce.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

TONIGHT somewhere in the deep South the circus is playing. High beneath the billowing top on their slight perch stand Alfredo Codona and Vera Bruce. Opposite, across the tent, is Lalo, brother of Alfredo and catcher in this aerial act.

There comes a hush, the voice of the barker. "And now, l-a-a-a-a-dezz and gentle-men, high above the center ring you will see the wuuuuurrrld's stellar aerialist execute a triple somersault, the only man in the wuuurrrld to attempt this feat." The drum begins to roll. Alfredo moves the standing bar up three notches. Miss Bruce steps aside. And then, down, down, down, on the slight trapeze, the slender, white body hurtling through space. Now Lalo has caught him. The band flares up. The act is over.

Each night Vera Bruce stands with the calm, impassive face of the true performer to watch her husband catapult through space. And Alfredo, in his turn, sees Vera, his wife, let go of the bar—that instant when she seems to hang suspended in the air—and then Lalo's strong hands catch her.

This is their honeymoon. They have been married just seven days. It was a romance that developed under the friendly eyes of the whole circus. When the show closes, they will take a real wedding trip.

Once Alfredo saw his life go to smash. He was happy in an earlier circus marriage. Each night, as now, he saw his famous wife, Lilian Leitzel, turn and turn and turn from the end of a rope. Then, when their work separated them, the telegram—a fall, seriously injured. Only those who risk their lives twice a day above space can know what that means—a fall.

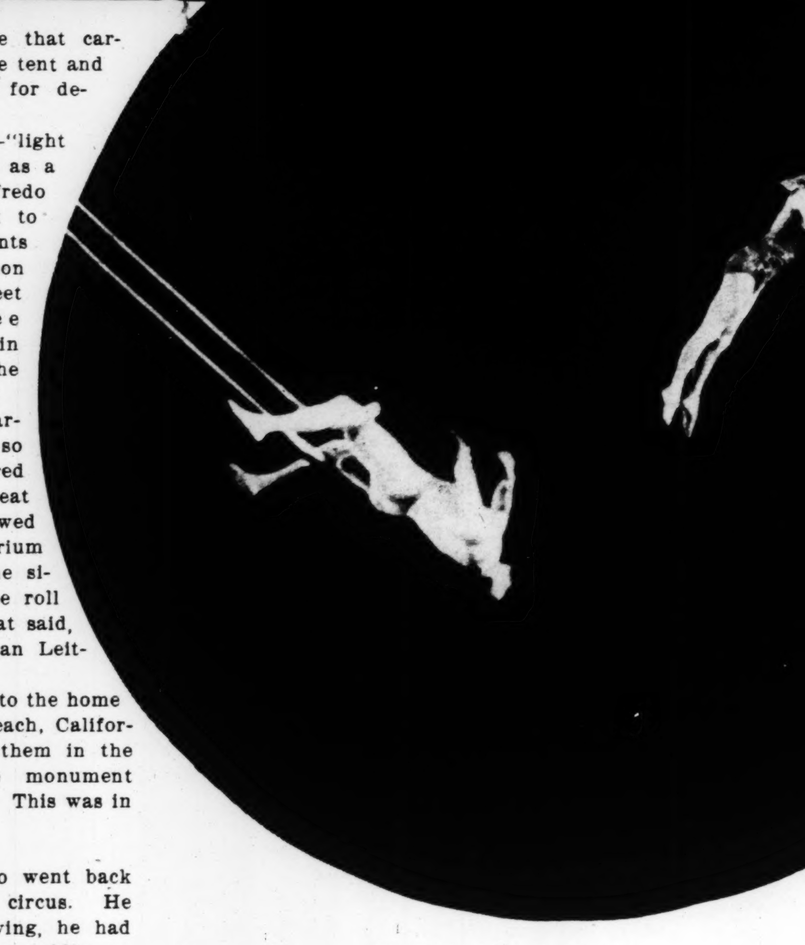
Alfredo flew from Berlin, where he was playing at the Winter Garden, to the bedside of his wife in Copenhagen. "Alfredo," she insisted, "I am all right. I am going to be all right, you must go back to the act." Half an hour after he took a plane back to Berlin she died.

For some time Alfredo could not work at all. He had a nervous breakdown. For many years before their marriage in 1928 he had been a close friend to Miss Leitzel. Both in Europe and in America, with Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey, they had worked under the same canvas. Both Alfredo and Leitzel came from old and distinguished circus families. Each night, Alfredo would help his friend, Leitzel, steady the rope that carried her to the top of the tent and examine the apparatus for defects and flaws.

Miss Leitzel's body—"light as thistledown, graceful as a bird"—was cremated. Alfredo brought the ashes back to America. The Circus Saints and Sinners' Association sent a plane out to meet the Mauretania. Three wreaths were dropped in honor of the Queen of the Air.

At Madison Square Garden, where she played so often, a rope was lowered from the roof while a great crowd stood with bowed heads. The huge auditorium was darkened and in the silence was heard only the roll of drums and a voice that said, "To the memory of Lilian Leitzel, God rest her soul."

Alfredo took the ashes to the home of his father at Long Beach, California, and there interred them in the base of an impressive monument carved of Italian marble. This was in February of 1931.



Alfredo and Vera in the air.

THAT spring Alfredo went back to his act with the circus. He had to earn his living, he had to keep his name before a public notoriously short of memory. Moreover, Lalo and Miss Bruce were dependent upon his skill to complete their act. After all, he was Alfredo, the greatest aerialist of his age. It was the thing he liked to do, the thing that brought him the greatest peace of mind—to swing from a trapeze suspended by piano wires from the top of the tent.

Miss Bruce had been in the act with the Codona brothers for three years. She had been a bareback rider with the Riffenach troupe. It was Lilian Leitzel who discovered her. It was Miss Leitzel who first coached her in her work on the trapeze. It was the Queen of the Air who encouraged her from time to time to go on with the difficult, dangerous study. Alfredo, not Lalo, caught her when she attempted her first aerial somersault.

Miss Bruce's early history—she is 27 now—differs from that of most circus people. She spent nearly 10 years outside the province of the big top. And that is regarded, in the profession, as almost fatal to a successful career.

Her mother was a high-wire performer who appeared much in the Orient. When Vera was 6, her mother placed her to be educated in a Catholic convent in China. Here, in a convent in India and in a boarding school in Australia, she was kept until she was nearly 16. Contrary to the wishes of her father, an American circus performer, and her mother, she went into the family business. After a short apprenticeship she qualified as a rider with the Riffenachs.

In an aerial act, such as that of the Codonas and Miss Bruce, everyone must be on friendly terms, to put it mildly. There must be a certain loyalty, an esprit de corps, a comradeship. You don't care to trust your life to someone in whom you have no confidence or to someone with whom you have quarreled. Understanding and friendship are essential.

This was the basis of Alfredo's love for Miss Bruce. She is gentle, quiet, with a reserved smile and kindly blue-gray eyes. There is about her face the air of one who, having seen much of the world, has come through without cynicism, with a broad, tolerant wisdom. She is not pretty in the orthodox meaning of the word, but she is handsome in a distinguished way, so that you single her out even when she is standing in the "back yard" (the area around the back door, which is the stage entrance of a circus) in the midst of the dazzling blondness of such performers as Miss Herbert, the equestrienne, who rides like a cossack.

It was the quiet understanding and sympathy that Miss Bruce gave him that enabled Alfredo slowly to put aside the tragedy of Leitzel's death and go on as before. He is volatile, highly emotional, and yet with a a steely inner poise built up through years on the high trapezes. He has been a circus performer since he was 3 years old. Lalo began when he was 2. Out in California the elder Codonas still display to visitors the small clown suits that were the first costumes worn by Lalo and Alfredo. This family of Mexican performers played all over Mexico and Central America. Then the two boys came to this country and succeeded in working their way to the top of their profession.

Engagements in Europe followed. Alfredo and Lalo have played in the winter circuses of almost every European capital, at the Cirque d'Hiver in Paris, the Winter Garden in Berlin, the Hippodrome in Budapest. They appeared in the remarkable German film, "Variety," Lalo doubling in the air for Emil Jannings, Alfredo in the role of a trapeze performer.

Alfredo looks more nearly 28 than the 38 he is. His hair is scarcely touched with gray. He has a lean, tense face. Five feet six inches in height, he is slender, with heavily-muscled shoulders and arms.

When the circus first went on tour last spring, old friends of Alfredo and Miss Bruce noticed what was happening. The Yacopis, the family of Argentine tumblers, whose dressing wagon is next to the Codonas, made pleasant quips about it in voluble Spanish. Circus people are frankly sentimental. They took a vicarious pleasure in this romance that was developing under their eyes.

It was in St. Louis that the engagement of Alfredo and Vera was first made public. But everyone in the circus, from Tamara down to the lowliest roustabout, had known about it for weeks. Any passerby could see that these two were happy. They were married a week ago, in San Antonio, Texas. Alfredo is not inclined to minimize the danger in their lives, but neither does he stress it.

"Of course there is danger," he says. "This spring one aerialist fell into the net and broke his neck. Of course, it can happen. You do not control your fall. Or you are thrown outside the net. Or something goes wrong with the apparatus, or with the net. But we understand that. Since 1908, you see, I have been in this business.

"It is the danger of some fault in our apparatus that concerns us most. It was that with Miss Leitzel, you see. It was no fault of hers. The ring broke on the hundredth revolution and she fell 40 feet onto a rubber mat. I had the ring examined by a very good laboratory in Copenhagen, and they told me there that the steel had crystallized, due to very rapid changes in temperature. It happens in that way, they told me. It was very sad."

"I can't tell how I do my work. Sometimes in the night I lay awake and try to think how I do the triple somersault—when I begin to turn, when I take Lalo's hands, and so on. And I can't think of how I do it. I tell you, I break out into a cold sweat, I am so frightened. But when I am standing on the platform, then I do not think of how to do it. I do it.

"AT THE first night of the picture, 'Variety,' in Berlin, we were in a box with Jannings and others who appeared in the picture. It was a great occasion, almost like a Hollywood first night. I had never seen a triple somersault. Because when I am doing it I cannot see myself do it. So suddenly I saw it on the screen, and I thought, 'Oh, that is wonderful.' And before I knew what I was doing, I had burst into applause. It was so beautiful, it was so good, that triple somersault I did in the film. Then everyone burst out laughing, for they saw who it was that had applauded. And I felt so foolish."

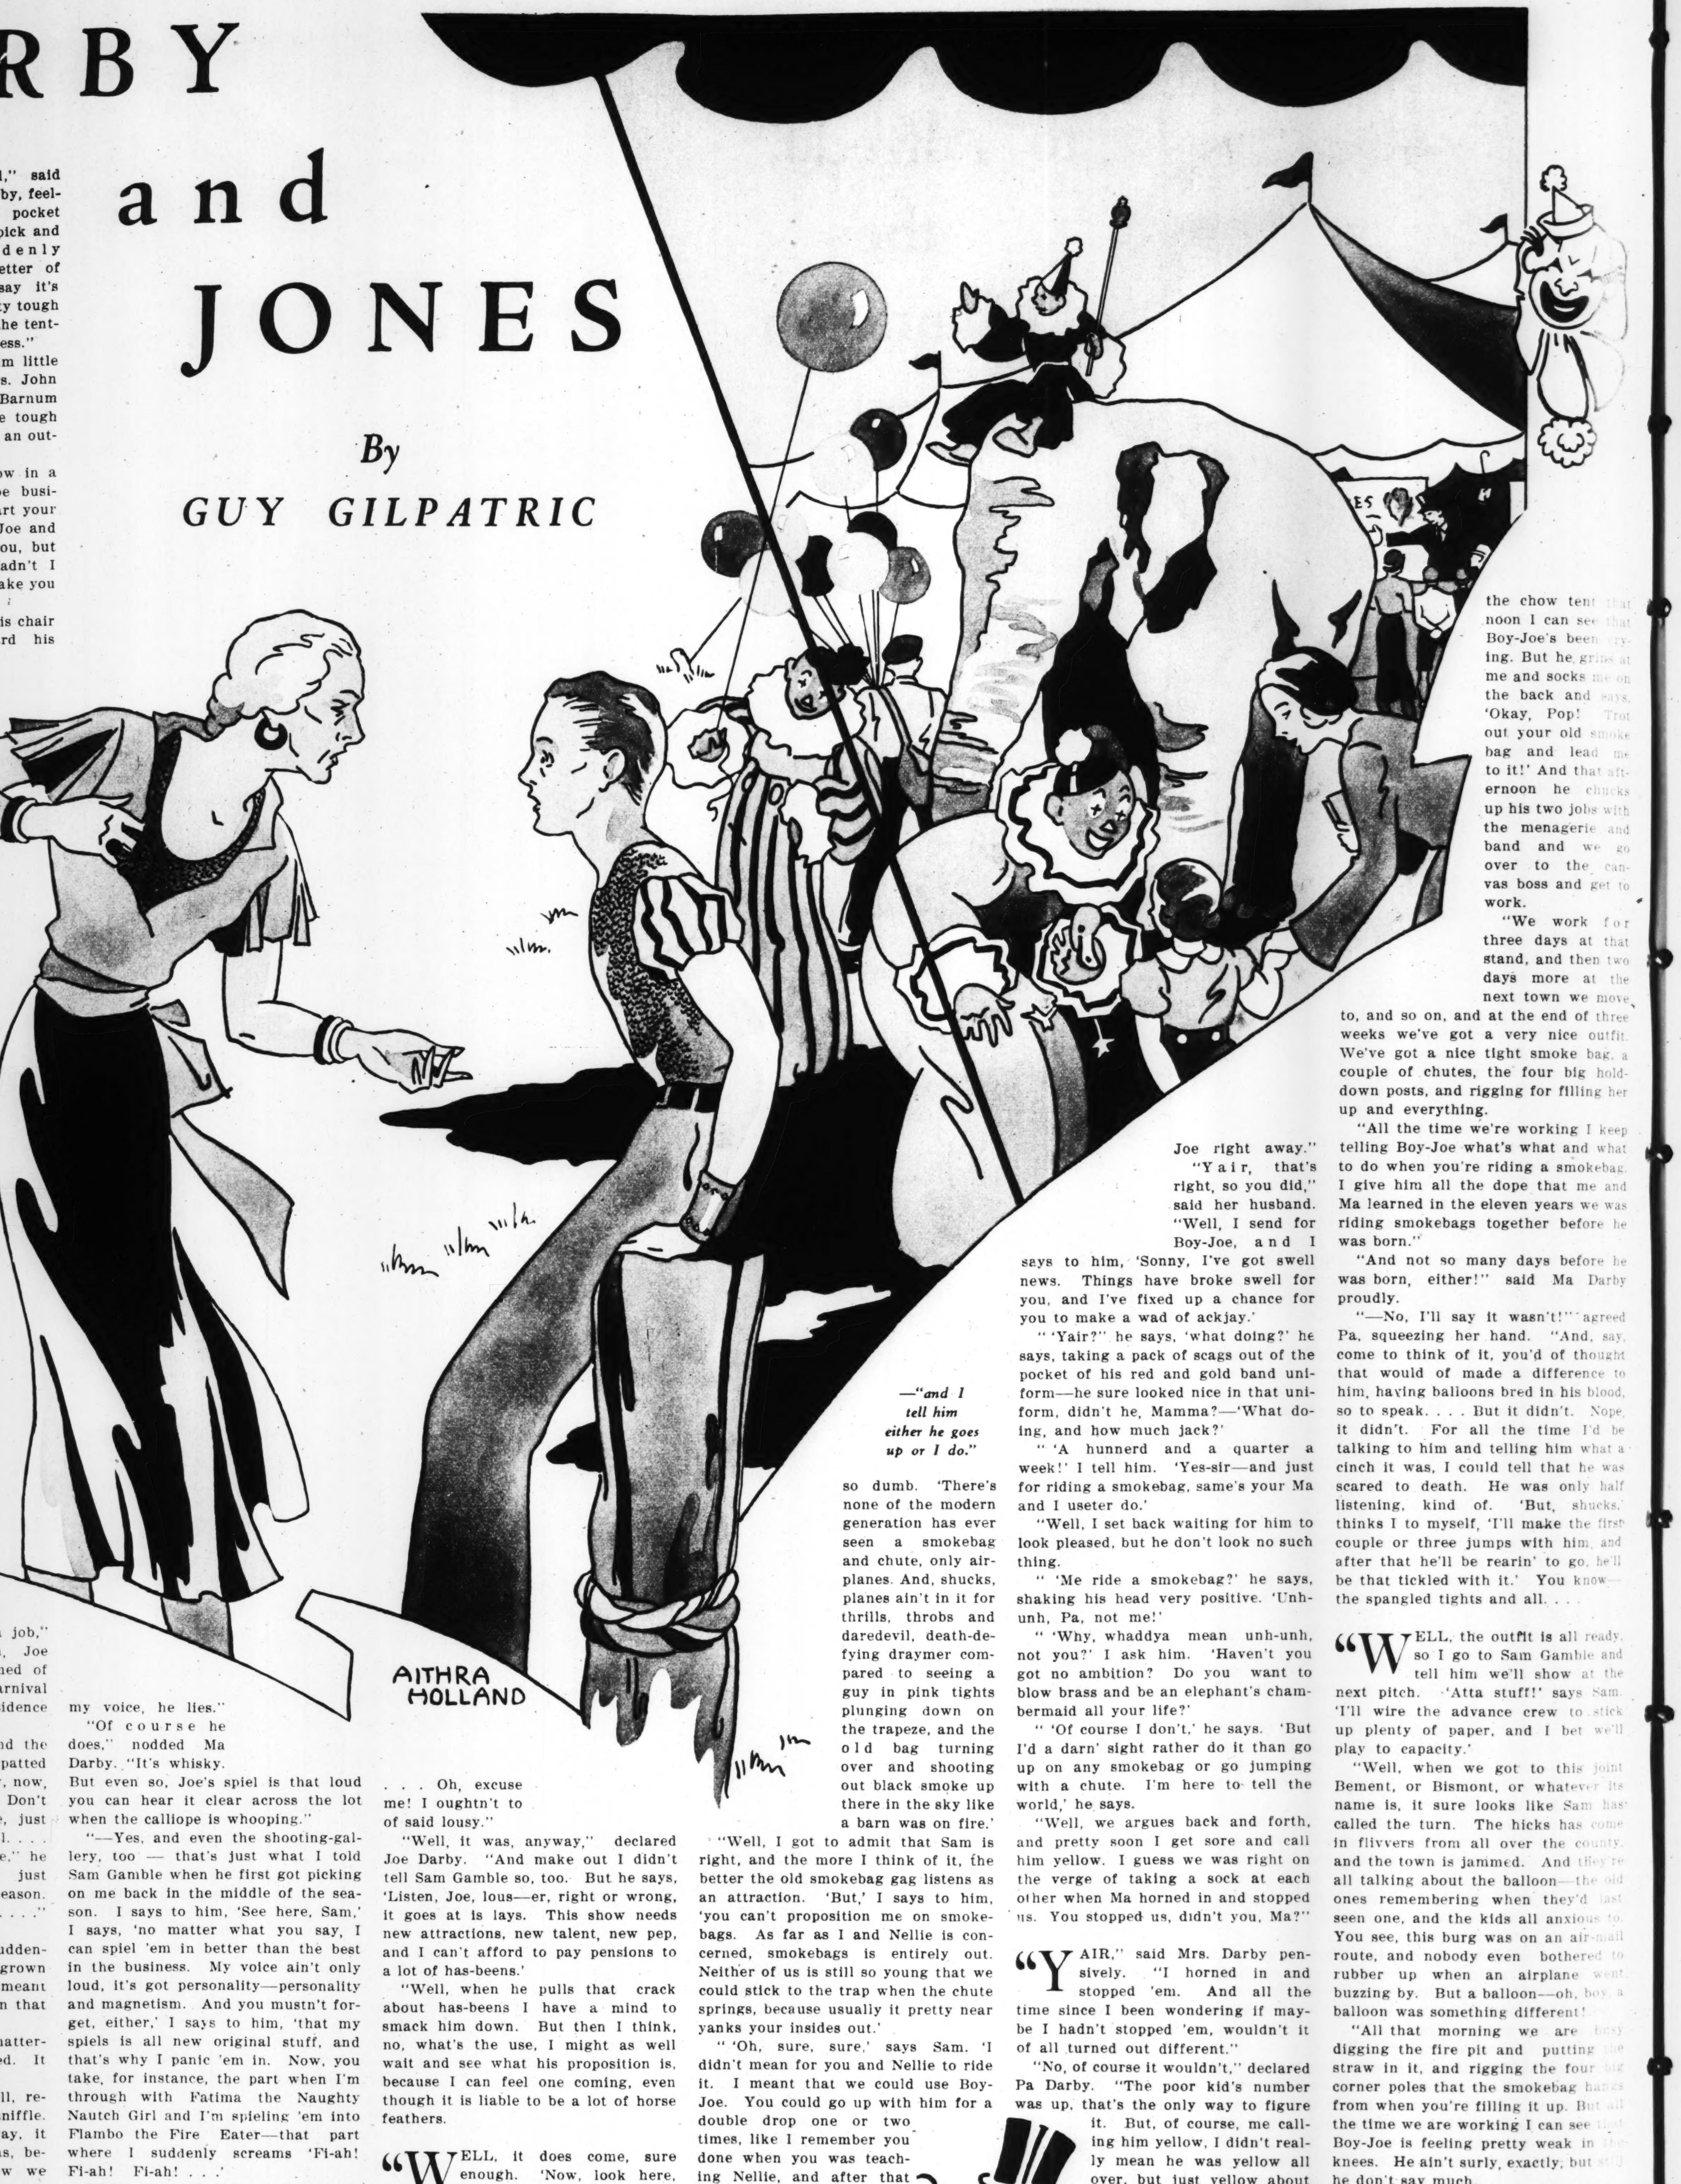
More recently, Alfredo has been in the movies in Hollywood. It was he who doubled for Johnny Weissmuller in the Tarzan picture, performing all the swinging and leaping.

Alfredo is a perfectionist in this art of the trapeze. Each line, each gesture, each arc cut through the air, has a breath-taking, mathematical perfection. It is a perfection which Miss Bruce, in comparison to Alfredo only a novice, is speedily acquiring.

Within 10 days, now, Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey will break up for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Codona are terribly keen for the circus to end for they will go on their wedding trip then. They are like two children, planning it and thinking it. They will go by as direct a route as possible to Lisbon, Portugal, sailing about the middle of October. They will open about November 1 in the winter circus of Lisbon. Later in the season they go to Berlin, possibly to other capitals.

DARBY and JONES

By GUY GILPATRIC



—"and I tell him either he goes up or I do."

"YES, indeed," said old Joe Darby, feeling in his pocket for a toothpick and then suddenly thinking better of it. "I'll say it's been a pretty tough season for the tent-show business."

"I'll say it has!" agreed trim little Nell Jones, who has been Mrs. John Darby since way back when Barnum teamed up with Bailey. "One tough season is right. Specially with an outfit like Gamble's."

"Well, things have been slow in a lot of lines," I said. "Maybe business will pick up when you start your swing East. Now look here, Joe and Nell, I don't want to hurry you, but it's almost seven o'clock. Hadn't I better get the car around and take you out to the lot?"

Old Joe Darby squirmed in his chair and looked pleadingly toward his wife.

"Well, don't start throwing out distress signals at me," she scolded him. "You ought to tell him yourself, Joe. Go on now, Joe, speak up."

Her husband turned to me, started to say something, smiled a smile which trembled at the corners and then drank a tumblerful of water. From under the table came the sound of a small but capable foot encountering a long, lean shin.

"Ouch!" he said. "Now you lay off me, Ma. You said you was going to tell him, and I sure do think you'd . . ."

"Oh, all right, all right," said Nell, and as she busied herself with mirror and lip stick I suddenly realized that she was trying to keep back the tears. "You see, well, Joe and me are mighty grateful for this swell feed and all, and it's mighty fine of you to offer to shoot us back to the lot in your car. But, you see, we don't have to go back . . ."

"No," Joe Darby chimed in. "Ha, ha! We don't have to go back."

"Yair, all through," her husband confirmed her. "We're canned, fired, ouslayed umfray the ointjay."

"He means we haven't got a job," explained Nell. "Say, listen, Joe Darby, you ought to be ashamed of yourself talking that cheap carnival talk in a high-grade private residence like this!"

Old Joe Darby hurried around the table, knelt beside his wife and patted her awkardly on the back. "Aw, now, Ma, you're crying, ain't you? Don't cry, Ma—come on, now, Nellie, just a little smile for Papa, 'atta girl. . . . She'll be okay in just a minute," he explained apologetically. "It's just that we had a kind of tough season. And then about Boy-Joe and all. . . ."

"BOY-JOE?" I repeated, suddenly remembering their grown son. "Oh, why sure, I meant to ask about him. Do you mean that something happened?"

"Yes," said Joe Darby in a matter-of-fact tone. "Boy-Joe got killed. It was my fault."

"No, it wasn't," declared Nell, recovering herself with a final sniffle. "It was my fault. But anyway, it don't matter whose fault it was, because Boy-Joe's dead, and now we ain't got a son any more."

"Unh-huh," nodded her husband. "I guess that's just about the size of it. Having no job is a cinch beside having no son. But still and all I guess it was more of Sam Gamble's fault than anybody else's, don't you think so, Mamma?"

"Oh, oh, oh, what difference does it make?" she said, swaying from side to side. "We'll never see Boy-Joe any more and we'll never see Sam Gamble any more, so what difference does it make?"

"That's right, we'll never see Sam Gamble any more, either, will we? It was him that give us the ate-gay this afternoon, wasn't it, Mamma? We'll never see either of them any more."

"Ate-gay!" repeated Mrs. Darby, indignantly. "Ate-gay! If you mean gate, Joe Darby, say gate and stop talking like a spieler."

"Well, I am a spieler, ain't I?" he answered. "I'm the best spieler in the business, if you ask me, and when Sam Gamble says that old age is getting to my voice, he lies."

"Of course he does," nodded Ma Darby. "It's whisky. But even so, Joe's spiel is that loud you can hear it clear across the lot when the calliope is whooping."

"—Yes, and even the shooting-gallery, too — that's just what I told Sam Gamble when he first got picking on me back in the middle of the season. I says to him, 'See here, Sam,' I says, 'no matter what you say, I can spiel 'em in better than the best in the business. My voice ain't only loud, it's got personality—personality and magnetism. And you mustn't forget, either,' I says to him, 'that my spiels is all new original stuff, and that's why I panic 'em in. Now, you take, for instance, the part when I'm through with Fatima the Naughty Nautch Girl and I'm spieling 'em into Flambo the Fire Eater—that part where I suddenly screams 'Fi-ah! Fi-ah! Fi-ah! . . .'

"'Yair,' says Gamble, in that nasty way of his. 'That's another thing you gotta cut out. You panic 'em, all right, but in the other direction. Why don't you yell murder, murder, murder, while you're at it? With that wheezy voice of yours, they'd think that somebody was getting strangled sure.'"

"Is that really what he said, Joe?" asked Ma Darby incredulously. "Well, I never!"

"Nope, neither did I!" declared her husband. "But, anyway, it's then he tells me that he's wired East for this other guy, and that if I and Ma and Boy-Joe wants to stick with the show, we gotta find some new way to make ourselves useful."

"Yair, just think, can you tie that?" snorted Nell. "Pa doing his spieling—me singing three soprano numbers, one of them in Eyetalian grand opera, in the Big Free Concert—poor Boy-Joe doubling in brass in the band. All that we was doing, mind you, and all for a lousy sixty bucks! Why, if I . . . Oh, excuse me! I oughtn't to of said lousy."

"Well, it was, anyway," declared Joe Darby. "And make out I didn't tell Sam Gamble so, too. But he says, 'Listen, Joe, lous—er, right or wrong, it goes at is lays. This show needs new attractions, new talent, new pep, and I can't afford to pay pensions to a lot of has-beens.'

"Well, when he pulls that crack about has-beens I have a mind to smack him down. But then I think, no, what's the use, I might as well wait and see what his proposition is, because I can feel one coming, even though it is liable to be a lot of horse feathers.

"WELL, it does come, sure enough. 'Now, look here, Joe, listen,' he says to me. 'Don't think I'm giving you the ate-gay or the old razoo,' he says. 'I wouldn't do nothing like that to an old trouper like you, especially a team like Darby and Jones that is famous throughout the show business for two generations. But,' he says, 'I was thinking that what this show needs is new attractions, and what would you say to a balloon and parachute drop, hey, same as you and Nellie used to do with your old smokebag twenty years ago?'

"Well, at first I think he's crazy, and I tell him so. 'Smokebag and chute?' I says, laughing, kind of. 'Why, hell's bells, Sam, first you talk about something new, and then you pull a gag that's been dead since Bill McKinley. There ain't a smokebag rider working in this whole broad land today, not that I know of. No, nor I ain't seen an ad of one in The Billboard for I bet it's 15 years.'

"'Well, that's just the point,' he says, and I begin to see where he's not so dumb. 'There's none of the modern generation has ever seen a smokebag and chute, only airplanes. And, shucks, planes ain't in it for thrills, throbs and daredevil, death-defying draymer compared to seeing a guy in pink tights plunging down on the trapeze, and the old bag turning over and shooting out black smoke up there in the sky like a barn was on fire.'

"Well, I got to admit that Sam is right, and the more I think of it, the better the old smokebag gag listens as an attraction. 'But,' I says to him, 'you can't proposition me on smokebags. As far as I and Nellie is concerned, smokebags is entirely out. Neither of us is still so young that we could stick to the trap when the chute springs, because usually it pretty near yanks your insides out.'

"'Oh, sure, sure,' says Sam. 'I didn't mean for you and Nellie to ride it. I meant that we could use Boy-Joe. You could go up with him for a double drop one or two times, like I remember you done when you was teaching Nellie, and after that Boy-Joe could work alone.'

"Well, we sit there in the office car talking price, and finally we settled at 125 smackers a week. He tells me to see the canvas boss for what fabric I need and as many men and sewing machines and things, and start right in on a bag and chutes and the inflation outfit.

"Well, it's a long time since I have built a balloon, so I go back to the sleeper to get my old scrap book out of my trunk, which I have always saved. This book has the whole dope in it which Charlie Baysdorfer gave me, what shape to cut the panels and all. Ma is there and she asks me what I'm looking for, so I tell her the proposition and she don't like it. You didn't like it, did you, Ma?"

"No," said Mrs. Darby, "I didn't like it. But you see we was up against it, so I had to like it. The only thing is, I thought we'd ought to tell Boy-Joe right away."

"Yair, that's right, so you did," said her husband. "Well, I send for Boy-Joe, and I says to him, 'Sonny, I've got swell news. Things have broke swell for you, and I've fixed up a chance for you to make a wad of ackjay.'

"'Yair?' he says, 'what doing?' he says, taking a pack of scags out of the pocket of his red and gold band uniform—he sure looked nice in that uniform, didn't he, Mamma?—'What doing, and how much jack?'

"'A hunnerd and a quarter a week!' I tell him. 'Yes-sir—and just for riding a smokebag, same's your Ma and I useter do.'

"Well, I set back waiting for him to look pleased, but he don't look no such thing.

"'Me ride a smokebag?' he says, shaking his head very positive. 'Unh-unh, Pa, not me!'

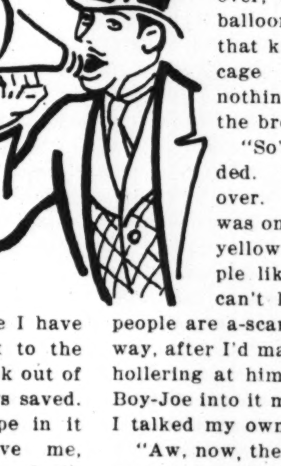
"'Why, whaddya mean unh-unh, not you?' I ask him. 'Haven't you got no ambition? Do you want to blow brass and be an elephant's chambermaid all your life?'

"'Of course I don't,' he says. 'But I'd a darn' sight rather do it than go up on any smokebag or go jumping with a chute. I'm here to tell the world,' he says.

"Well, we argues back and forth, and pretty soon I get sore and call him yellow. I guess we was right on the verge of taking a sock at each other when Ma horned in and stopped us. You stopped us, didn't you, Ma?"

"YAIR," said Mrs. Darby pensively. "I horned in and stopped 'em. And all the time since I been wondering if maybe I hadn't stopped 'em, wouldn't it of all turned out different."

"No, of course it wouldn't," declared Pa Darby. "The poor kid's number was up, that's the only way to figure it. But, of course, me calling him yellow, I didn't really mean he was yellow all over, but just yellow about ballooning. Why, I've seen that kid clean out the hyena cage many a time, with nothing to protect him but the broom."



"So've I," Ma Derby nodded. "He wasn't yellow all over. It's like Joe says—it was only about flying he was yellow. There's lots of people like that, and they just can't help it, same as some people are a-scared of cats. But, anyway, after I'd made Pa lay off and stop hollering at him, I . . . I talked poor Boy-Joe into it myself. Oh, just think, I talked my own little baby . . ."

"Aw, now, there, there, Ma, come on now, 'atta girl!" old Joe Darby hastened to comfort her. "You gotta brace up and help me tell this, Ma."

"Of course you are! Well, so anyway Ma talks to Boy-Joe pretty near all morning, and when I sees 'em in the chow tent that noon I can see that Boy-Joe's been crying. But he grins at me and socks me on the back and says, 'Okay, Pop! Trot out your old smoke bag and lead me to it!' And that afternoon he chucks up his two jobs with the menagerie and band and we go over to the canvas boss and get to work.

"We work for three days at that stand, and then two days more at the next town we move to, and so on, and at the end of three weeks we've got a very nice outfit. We've got a nice tight smoke bag, a couple of chutes, the four big hold-down posts, and rigging for filling her up and everything.

"All the time we're working I keep telling Boy-Joe what's what and what to do when you're riding a smokebag. I give him all the dope that me and Ma learned in the eleven years we was riding smokebags together before he was born."

"And not so many days before he was born, either!" said Ma Darby proudly.

"—No, I'll say it wasn't!" agreed Pa, squeezing her hand. "And, say, come to think of it, you'd of thought that would of made a difference to him, having balloons bred in his blood, so to speak. . . . But it didn't. Nope, it didn't. For all the time I'd be talking to him and telling him what a cinch it was, I could tell that he was scared to death. He was only half listening, kind of. 'But, shucks,' thinks I to myself, 'I'll make the first couple or three jumps with him, and after that he'll be rearin' to go, he'll be that tickled with it.' You know—the spangled tights and all. . . .

"WELL, the outfit is all ready, so I go to Sam Gamble and tell him we'll show at the next pitch. 'Atta stuff!' says Sam. 'I'll wire the advance crew to stick up plenty of paper, and I bet we'll play to capacity.'

"Well, when we got to this joint Bement, or Bismont, or whatever its name is, it sure looks like Sam has called the turn. The hicks has come in flivvers from all over the county, and the town is jammed. And they're all talking about the balloon—the old ones remembering when they'd last seen one, and the kids all anxious to. You see, this burg was on an air-mail route, and nobody even bothered to rubber up when an airplane went buzzing by. But a balloon—oh, boy, a balloon was something different!

"All that morning we are busy digging the fire pit and putting the straw in it, and rigging the four big corner poles that the smokebag hangs from when you're filling it up. But all the time we are working I can see that Boy-Joe is feeling pretty weak in the knees. He ain't surly, exactly, but still he don't say much.

"We're billed to go up at one-thirty, but when I knocks off at about eleven to grab a bite of lunch I tell Boy-Joe that maybe he'd better not eat any. You see, if he gets swung around much on the chute I know he's liable to be sick.

"'No chow for yours, kid, till after you're down,' I tell him. 'But then your Ma and me will take you uptown and buy you a swell plank steak, what do you know about that?'

"He don't say anything to this, one way or the other, but just sets down on a coal-oil barrel and looks awful solemn. And then I know it's pretty bad with him, because he is always nuts about plank steak."

"Yair," said Ma. "Plank steak, and also cold hard-boiled eggs."

"Yair, and he liked pigs' knuckles, too," murmured Pa Darby. "Pigs knuckles with kraut on the side. He always put vinegar on them.

The Wild Arctic Adventures of Jan Welzl—and Why Some Authorities Don't Believe Them

Another Controversy Now Raging Around a Newly Published Book Called "Thirty Years in the Golden North."

SUICIDE as a cure for toothache is an occasional Eskimo practice, or it isn't; lonely Arctic hermits fall in love with girls on American patent medicine calendars, or they don't; Eskimo "prophet doctors" are expert plastic surgeons, or they never heard of plastic surgery; "Thirty Years in the Golden North" is a lot of gas, or it is a stark picture of life as she is lived by the Eskimos and white settlers on certain Arctic islands. Take your pick and get acquainted with the latest literary controversy.

Controversy is the answer to a publisher's prayer. It made successes of "Trader Horn" and "Cradle of the Deep," and it is now booming the latest one of its kind, a tale of the wanderings, observations and adventures of a white man in and about the New Siberia Islands, in the Arctic Ocean just north of Siberia. The MacMillan Company is the lucky publisher and the volume purports to be the record of one Jan Welzl.

Here the debate starts. Some of the sharpshooters claim there is no such person as Jan Welzl; that the extravagance of the story and its patent conflict with the established truth about the North definitely point to authorship by an imaginative hoaxer. In this group is no less an authority on matters Arctic than the explorer, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who is inclined to lay the book at the door of Karl Capek, a noted Czech playwright and critic, author of the introduction to the American edition.

Mr. Capek, a countryman of Welzl, says Welzl really exists, disclaims the distinction and counters with the reply that he doesn't know if the book is an authentic record or not, but that he thinks it is a good story, true or false. He adds that he has never met Welzl but that President T. G. Masaryk of Czecho-Slovakia has talked to him in official audiences, and thousands of others have heard him lecture. Another Welzl enthusiast, Dr. Paul Eisner of Prague, rushes to his defense with an "actual photograph" as proof positive that he exists. The picture thus submitted, shows a fat, genial gentleman in rough clothes of seafaring cut, carrying valises and grinning. The fellow might be an explorer, the tuba player in a German band or a red cap in a Scandinavian railway station.

Dr. Eisner continues: "We shall endeavor to reach Welzl, and it certainly would be extraordinary if he should speak in America."

Fake or gospel, "Thirty Years in the Golden North" is, not to dally too long with rhetoric, a whangdoodle of a story. It has a few dull spots, but picks up quickly and slips into its high-speed slot again. Many of the episodes resemble the ravings of Baron Munchausen, in treatment as well as content. Again, one gets the impression that the narrator sits trembling before the Ghizeh, or Grand Vizier, with the prospect of losing his Stetson and all its contents if the narrative falls off in interest. As far as the layman is concerned, the whole book may be perfectly true. Queer things do happen, and most of us never see them.

Mr. Stefansson, however, is wrought up about it because it poaches on his preserves. Among his objections are these: there are no Eskimos within 1500 miles of New Siberia; the author tells of whaling expeditions where there are no whales; of driving his reindeer over frozen waters which never freeze enough for that; of a number of customs that never existed among the Eskimos, among them that of the family attending childbirths en masse. The reverse is true, Mr. Stefansson holds.

DIAMOND JENNESS, chief of the division of anthropology of the National Museum of Canada, says: "Not since I was a boy have I met with an author whose imagination expands so much at every page."

Welzl's story is that he was a restless young man of Moravia (now Czecho-Slovakia), who sought fortune in the Arctic because he heard it was a good place to make money and because if he didn't get out of Moravia he would eventually become a stodgy shopkeeper like his father. Inside of 30 years he was better than a millionaire, a trader famed throughout the North, and Chief of New Siberia, duly chosen by the Eskimo and white settlers of that sparsely settled part of the world. So he claims, and the rest of his story here related is subject to the same blanket qualification.

The fact that he was unlettered and could not even understand maps did not prevent young Welzl from cashing in his assets and setting out with a horse and cart to cross the huge Siberian expanse of Northern Russia in order to reach a seaport, from where he could ship to the islands. Crude Mongolian tribes and Russian political exiles were the only inhabitants of this part of the mainland.

In one village Welzl spoke to a native woman. The eyes of the chief of the tribe lighted up and he insisted that there be a marriage. Welzl politely declined, so the chief had the woman slaughtered on the spot. In the next village the traveler was greeted by a native woman, who coyly picked a flea from her person, bit off half of it and threw the remains at him. This meant that he had found favor in her eyes.

"The native women, mostly young, often came to visit me," the author recounts, gallantly adding: "But the look of them all was such that I would not even have laid a finger on them." This sounds like a footnote for home consumption, but, as there is no Mrs. Welzl, the remark is probably true.

Welzl had a set of locksmith's tools, so he became an amateur dentist. One of his Eskimo patients had a tooth which made him howl like a timber wolf. Using a pair of tongs, Welzl yanked—and pulled out only half the tooth.

"I told him what had happened and advised him to lie down in my cave and rinse his mouth with benzine," he relates. "I told him that that would ease the pain a bit. He took the benzine and rinsed his mouth with it, but as soon as he had spat it out, the tooth started aching again. He made an awful noise and rocked his head to and fro, then ran out in desperation and ran up and down among the rocks, clutching at his head the whole time, while we sat there with Emerson (a white settler) and were terribly sorry for him. Suddenly we heard a bang. Emerson looked at me. 'He's done it,' he said."

He had, too. Shot himself in the head.

PERHAPS the most gruesome of the horrors of the North is frostbite. It takes off fingers, noses, ears and legs mostly. Welzl tells of a man who had just come in out of the 72-below-zero temperature and who refused to believe that his nose was frostbitten. After much argument, he was persuaded to give his nose a good tug. It came off in a chunk. An Eskimo "prophet doctor," so called because he does a little prophesying on the side, fixed him up with a plastic nose, but it wasn't a very good one. It had only one gaping nostril and was a brick red. The man shot himself in a few weeks.

Welzl's rise to affluence, which is really a minor incident in his story, began with the discovery by the inhabitants of New Siberia that besides his medical accomplishments, he was a handy man at repairing sledges and other equipment. After he had made a stake at this kind of work, he conceived the idea of becoming a trader and supplying the islands for miles around with the necessaries of life and a few of the unnecessaries.

The administration of justice in New Siberia is a fearsome thing. There are two verdicts, not guilty and death. The latter ranges from hanging, which is for conviction on lesser offenses, to burning alive, which is for serious crimes. In between is shooting. A man who gets off with a hanging verdict receives other concessions, too. He may commit suicide, if he prefers, and save himself the humiliation of the scaffold. The necessary materials are thoughtfully furnished. He may stab himself with a knife dipped in poison, drink poison or shoot himself. Most take the shooting route.

The culprits are mostly outsiders who give the Eskimos poisoned liquor and rob them. As soon as the crime is discovered, the village sets out in pursuit. When the criminals are sighted, the pursuers spread out fan-like and surround them. If the fugitives take refuge in a cave and refuse to come out, a stick of dynamite is tossed in the hatchway, and that is that.

Trials are held on the spot of capture. Always the scene is a grim expanse of ice and snow, with natives and whites beating their hands against their bodies to keep warm and the dogs quarreling impatiently in their trappings. A jury of 12 is chosen. The members peer at the defendant through slits of black masks. Black smocks with skulls and crossbones on the chests reach to 12 sets of knees. There are two prosecutors, a judge (Welzl eventually became a judge) and a clerk who scribbles in a notebook, just to make it official. A few witnesses step forward and jabber and point at the luckless defendant. The prosecutors ask a few questions. The defendant is given a few minutes to explain himself. The jury retires to consider its verdict. It is never out more than a few minutes, there being no steam radiators or card games or meals from the restaurant across the street to make protracted argument attractive.

After the verdict is announced to the defendant, he is given a minute to collect his thoughts. Then, if his crime is a heinous one, he is strapped to his sledge, drenched with kerosene and turned into an Arctic flame. If leniency has been granted and the accused is permitted to commit suicide, a revolver, a bottle of strychnine or a knife with a poisoned tip is laid on the sledge within arm's length.

Such a scene is described as follows:

"The judge asks him: 'Are you prepared for death?'

"The man makes some reply. He may say, for example: 'Oh, all right.'

" 'How do you want to die?'

" 'With a knife.'

" 'Very good, have you anything to say?'

" 'No.'

" 'That's all then. Right you are, you have got one more minute.'

"Two jurymen go up to the condemned man with revolvers. They take aim at his head and wait. The judge counts slowly, one, two, three, four, so slowly that it takes a minute before he reaches ten.

"THAT is a terrible moment. A prisoner may declare that he wants to commit suicide, but cannot make up his mind to do it within the minute he is allowed. His sledge is immediately lifted up, he has a noose around his neck, and within a few seconds he is dangling to and fro, or if he is lucky, a juryman fires his revolver and the execution is over."

Welzl once served on a jury on which two members refused to agree on the death penalty, stating they thought the crime did not warrant it. This happened only once in New Siberian jurisprudence. The judge said coldly: "The two bad jurymen will immediately be burned alive." And the other jurors, a jolly crew, apparently, chased the defendant across the countryside with rifles and into an icy creek, where he drowned.

One of the biggest man-hunts ended on Solitude Island during a period of Polar darkness. Welzl describes its climax thus: "—we caught sight of the assassins in the distance. An enormous semicircle began to form, but had to stop because the assassins rapidly opened fire. The pursuers had to take cover behind their sledges and dogs; they had to try and find shelter behind the ice hummocks, and could move forward only at a very slow rate. Nevertheless, in a few minutes of this fighting, fifty of our men and a large number of dogs fell, while only fourteen of the robbers fell alive into our hands. The rest were left dead on the ice. On my sledge I was carting benzine, large carboys of benzine which was needed for burning the fourteen ruffians alive. But the loss of fifty men was not the only disaster which befell us. Twenty more were frozen on the return journey."

CONVICTING AL CAPONE

said, "All right, Jack, take off those decorations and come along with me." And the terrible Guzik folded up his wig and beard and meekly marched out of the restaurant.

Word came of a plot to assassinate District Attorney Johnson, Wilson, Madden and Roche. A showdown was decided upon. Converse assembled, with the aid of Pat Roche of the State's Attorney's office, a group of police who were known to be excellent shots and courageous enough to use their skill. All this was done very secretly. These men were not told the nature of their assignment. Capone was located in a house in Cicero. At 10 o'clock the secret, silent cavalcade started out. When they got there, they found the house deserted.

THERE had been a leak somewhere. Later it was discovered that two employes of the State's Attorney's office had beaten them out to Cicero and had tipped Capone off. They were dismissed from the office next day.

This was what Wilson, Converse and Tessem and other agents were constantly coming up against, local law-enforcing agencies in which were spies in the pay of the gang. Several times in their exploration of bank accounts and other gang records the investigators turned up official law violators.

Swiftly word got around that Wilson, Converse and Tessem were "poison," that no bribe could touch them. Again and again, before they had scarcely begun to make a preliminary inquiry, law violators, crooked police captains, crooked politicians, crooked office holders and gangsters fled the city for safety. The Capone ring held, but like an intrenched redoubt. And in the very midst of the ring, enjoying the complete confidence of the Big Five was Operative N, perhaps the most fearless of all the courageous men who worked on the case.

Although he is an Irishman, Operative N passes easily for an Italian. He is of swarthy complexion. He passes, too, for a Slav. He has college training and speaks Italian, Polish and two or three other languages fluently.

After a long campaign of calculated carelessness, loitering about Capone's headquarters in the Lexington Hotel on South Michigan avenue, hanging around certain resorts in Cicero, he got into the confidence of figures close to Capone. And there came a day when he was given a final accolade of recognition. He was invited—as another likely plug-ugly, a potential machine-gunner, perhaps—to a sphagetti party in celebration of Jack Guzik's release on bond. The "big boy" was there, and the other guests, besides the guest of honor, were Frank Rio, Gus Winkler, Sam Guzik, Rocco de Gresso, Ralph Capone, Louis Lipschutz and Frank Nitti, the little dark Italian called by that sinister name, "The Enforcer," one of the few men whom Capone feared. Although it was a social gathering, business affairs came up and were discussed by this informal board of directors' meeting.

Thereafter Operative N was repeatedly in the confidence of the inner council. After an evening in the Lexington Hotel or in one of the Capone protected restaurants, he would slip away for a few moments of whispered conversation with Wilson and the swift exchange of a few penciled notes.

And now the scene changes to Florida. Wilson wanted to make his case air-tight. He had documentary proof of income, but he wanted to show in addition evidence of lavish expenditures.

It was the Florida of the Capone heyday. And what a day. The gangster was in residence at his magnificent estate on Palm Island, near Miami Beach. Moored at the back of the Capone mansion was a 60-foot yacht. He had acquired it at a bargain and then had fitted it out in lavish style. Capone's semi-public gambling house on Palm Island was running despite the supposedly rigid edict against gambling at Miami Beach.

Around the Flamingo, the Roney-Plaza and other luxurious hotels, Capone had his "steerers." They were suave, worldly-wise young men and women and they picked potential suckers with exceeding discretion. A mistake was too dangerous. Only those in the big-money class got taken to the Palm Island gambling resort. Here everything was muffled and quiet. No noisy jazz and noisier entertainers, scarcely the sound of the dice, the click of the roulette wheel, deadened by the velvet-hung walls. And as a final favor the more privileged rich were taken to meet Capone himself, sometimes invited for dinner or to late supper and a glass of champagne.

Into this atmosphere Operative N quickly insinuated himself. He was seen about Miami Beach with Capone's men. He looked like just another gangster. After a week or two he approached grocers and other trades people with whom Capone dealt. He was an agent for the "Big Boy," he said, and he wanted to know how much the Capone bill was. At first merchants hesitated—Capone's favor was too valuable to jeopardize in any way. But at last Operative N got what he wanted.

Capone's bill for household supplies and for beer, wines, liquors and fancy liqueurs run in from the Bahamas was about $4000 a week. Each night there were from 50 to 75 at his dinner table. Food and drink were always available to the little army of gunmen and executives of the ring who made the Capone house their headquarters. Armed with documentary proofs of this spending, Wilson and Operative N went back to Chicago. There it was a comparatively simple matter to obtain from reputable stores records of Capone's luxury spending, the dozens of suits of silk underwear, the diamond-studded belt buckles.

THE net was drawing tight. All this time, of course, Wilson had given his victims no peace. Constantly he questioned them. At odd hours of the day and night he would turn up and begin his polite questions that so quickly became difficult and involved. And Guzik, Capone and the others dared not appear reluctant or resentful. They had to assume towards him an air of willing co-operation that they were far from feeling.

"Well, nothing to do tonight," Wilson would say to Converse. "Guess I'll go out and talk to Jack Guzik." He would go to the telephone.

"Hello. Mr. Guzik, please. This is Wilson of the Government service talking."

"Mr. Guzik, he is not in," the voice at the other end of the wire would say.

"All right, Mrs. Guzik, I'll come out and talk with you, then, and maybe in the meantime Mr. Guzik will come back."

"But I don't know anything, nothing at all, Mr. Wilson, and there's no use for you to come out here."

"Well, I'll come on out and we can have a little talk," and Wilson would click the receiver down and grin at his assistant.

He goes out to the Guzik apartment on the North Side and for two hours he engages Mrs. Guzik in conversation about her husband's finances, perfectly well aware that somewhere not far away, possibly in an adjoining room, is Jack, himself. And when he goes at last, with polite regret that Mr. Guzik has not yet returned, he knows that Mrs. Guzik will have hysterics and that Jack will get a sound berating from his wife for leaving her to the mercies of that devil, Wilson.

Even Capone was frantic. As one of his gang put it at the time, "Why, the big fellow's eating aspirin like it was peanuts, so he can get some sleep, and it ain't no use at all." Nerves that jangled to the sound of a door slamming, the ringing of a bell, the backfiring of a motor car. The net was drawing tighter each hour, each day.

So carefully had the case been prepared that the outcome of the trial was almost a foregone conclusion, and yet one can never be certain either, about gangsters. One plot to bomb the Federal building was nipped by a raid and the discovery of a bomb containing 30 sticks of dynamite in Cicero. And there was that dramatic day in court when in a brief byplay all of Wilson's powers were made apparent.

Phil D'Andrea, Capone's bodyguard was slouched low in a front seat. Wilson went up, bent over him and said in a low voice, "Give me that gun you've got stuck under your belt, D'Andrea, and the cartridges you've got in your upper inside left-hand pocket, and then walk out in the hall with me. I don't want any trouble with you." The revolver and the cartridges were found on D'Andrea's person just as Wilson had known they would be. So carefully does this remarkable detective prepare the ground in advance of action.

He doesn't care to talk about his work, but he said once to a friend that the greatest obstacles in crime detection were the improbabilities that creep into one's mind and confuse one, one's own errors. "I summon all these," he said, "and then I begin to eliminate them, one by one. If you can do this, you very quickly reduce a case to its simplest terms, and that's the way it should be kept through all subsequent moves.

"A guilty man sets himself for questioning. He is prepared to meet force with force. He has no defense against a gentle questioning. He doesn't even know how to meet this approach. He is helpless, more or less. That is why I believe this technique is so superior to the third degree or anything faintly resembling the third-degree method."

WHAT of the present status of the principals in this prolonged and bitter struggle? Wilson is back at his customary post in Baltimore. Johnson is scheduled to become a Federal Judge and his assistant, Green, is to take his place. Madden, Tessem and Converse are carrying on their routine duties in Chicago. Capone is in jail, Guzik is in jail, Nitti is in jail, most of the principals are in jail. But the Capone organization is running much as it ran before. It is under the direction of Gus Winkler, who is "watching out" for Capone's interests, as it was put by an authority on the gang situation here. It is as though Capone, the president of the corporation, had retired temporarily to Europe, leaving his vice-president, Winkler, in charge.

Wilson, of course, is not concerned with Volstead violations. He is an income tax agent who investigates charges of tax evasion.

The Capone case was not a one man case. Wilson wants that clearly understood. The successful conclusion came only through co-operation and hard work of every agent and attorney who had any connection with the case in Chicago, Washington and Florida, and because of constant support and encouragement from superiors, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, David Burnet; the Chief of the Intelligence Unit of the Bureau, Elmer L. Irey, and other officials in the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department.

It was in the line of duty. That and no more, in Wilson's modest opinion. If ever again he is summoned to work on such an important matter, involving so many dollars and the prestige of a whole Government, he will do his duty again. That is the point of view of the man who did perhaps more than anyone else to convict Capone.

The Year's Record Marlin

was basking in the sun, his beautiful purple fins a challenge. We put the bait at his nose a dozen times. He would merely turn, give us a look of disdain and continue his nap. We tried in a small skiff to run him down—he kept just 50 feet ahead all the time. We finally quit and Sandy remarked, "That's just too bad."

However, on one recent occasion, Sandy actually failed for a new expression. But it is about time to introduce Sandy before describing the event. "Sandy" Sanborn is captain, skipper and owner of the Traveler, a 50-foot boat, with wide beam and all the comforts of home, from a fisherman's point of view. He is a war veteran, with a foreign service record. He is a past master in the delicate art of fly fishing for the salmon, trout and bass, both in Canadian and American waters. He hunts in season for deer, wild pigs and boars. At present his attention is directed toward the marlin, now cruising in the Santa Barbara waters. His favorite waters are just off Santa Cruz and the Anacapa Islands, 30 miles out from Santa Barbara, and that is where we were when it all happened.

In the early morning of August 26 we landed a 200-pound marlin. From 10 a. m. to 2:15 p. m. we were constantly trolling in rough water with the hooked bait and teasers trailing the boat. No sign of a fin, or indication of a fish—not even a shark. Sandy's advice was to keep the bait just behind the teasers, as per our first marlin strike and catch. After many hours of this (a usual occurrence) Sandy went up to the lookout. I surreptitiously dropped my line back 250 feet. The danger of this is to invite a big shark to take the bait and break up our well defined program and purpose, but I was willing, just so something happened to break the montony. Sandy soon discovered my deception. He sympathetically understood, grinned and continued his lookout. Several minutes later I felt the faintest kind of tug. Was it marlin, shark or weed? True to form, I yelled, "Hold her!"

BUD, at the wheel, threw out the clutch and Sandy tumbled down the mast. He reached my side in about seven seconds. "Anything doing?" "Don't know." He pulled in the teasers as my line was slack and limp on the water. As we waited, the line would move out several feet, perhaps from high swell and roll of the boat. Perhaps a fish or drag from a weed. As it turned out, the fish was making up his mind to take the bait. Our patience was rewarded. In 15 more seconds the line commenced to move faster and faster. The time had come to strike. Sandy reached over and tested the drag. "Just right—go ahead." And I struck. We eagerly watched for the inevitable leap of the marlin. No jump. A shark? But no one said anything, and Bud settled himself on the deck. "A marlin!" yelled Sandy as the fish broke water about 600 feet out. Only half out of the water, his huge purple body was a mass of rainbow colors. He made another series of half-leaps 1100 feet out. Only 100 feet more of line on the reel! The supreme moment had arrived to turn the fish or endure a shock, because I would not have cut the line.

I put every ounce of weight in a back-side tug of the rod, the line held and the marlin was diverted to the left. Eleven hundred feet of line out in less than a minute! Thirteen thousand inches to be regained, inch by inch, and only by hard work! It took me 65 minutes to bring the fish within 30 feet of the boat, where we could see him. His big eyes looked like saucers as he jerked at the leader. Then he turned again and, with another series of leaps, ran out 800 feet. I had to do it all over again and set myself for a steady grind. But, no; the line slacked. I reeled as no one has ever reeled before—my fingers became numb. I yelled, "Sandy, I have lost him. He has gone and taken half the line." "Don't give up until you see the end of the line," Sandy replied.

Just then the line tightened and I had my second thrill. He was still on and leaping toward the boat! Bud put on speed ahead. The fish circled the boat eight or ten times. With us it was reverse, then forward, or forward, turn, reverse, or stop, forward, back.

All this time we could feel the fish striking his sword on the leader. Three times he passed under the boat in close proximity to the sharp propeller. He once played dead, only to come to life with a jerk. Sandy remarked, "He's an old-timer—watch out for his tricks." And I assure you he had them a-plenty. After a third run of 600 feet, we brought the fish to gaff. He lay on the water along side of the boat without movement or splash.

We guessed his weight at 300 pounds, but changed our minds when he twice slipped back in the water while we were trying to pull him on deck. He officially weighed 438 pounds, the third largest marlin ever caught in California waters, and so far the record marlin of this year.

Around the gills he measured five feet in circumference, his tail spread 40 inches, the dorsal fin measured 20 inches, length over all, 10 feet 9 inches. Time, 1 hour and 50 minutes.

razorbacks is there to hold down the bag, and Boy-Joe has got his new green tights on.

"I show the razorbacks how to hold the bottom of the bag out away from the fire pit, and then I crawl in underneath and start the fire. Pretty soon she gets good and hot inside and begins to swell out, so I crawl under the edge and take off my pants and shirt, and there I am in the old red tights.

"Well, the old smokebag is puffing out, so I lays out the two chutes side by side on the grass and make sure that the shroud lines is all clear and the little knives is fastened just right with their rubber bands so's we can cut loose with one yank.

AND then I take Boy-Joe to one side to give him the final earful.

" 'Kid,' I says, putting my arm around him. 'Kid, why, shucks, there won't be nothing to it. We got 2000 feet of sunshine before we get near the clouds, and we'll cut loose way down at 1000. We don't want to wait till we're too near the clouds, because they'll cool the bag and down she'll come. I'll cut first, and when my chute opens up, you cut, too. Just shut your eyes, kid, yank the knife cord and hang on."

"He moves his mouth a couple of times, but no sound comes out. Then he takes a long breath and says, "It's no use, Pa. I can't.'

"Well, I don't know what to do, because in a minute or so the smokebag will be full and then we've either got to go up or she'll maybe catch fire. But I spot Ma over in the crowd, so I beckon at her and turn Boy-Joe over to her and walk away, because I know she can fix him up. But I look back at them, and I see her talking to him very earnest, and suddenly she opens up the front of her shirtwaist a little and shows Boy-Joe what she's got on underneath. Didn't you, Ma?"

"Yes, God forgive me," said Ma. "I show him that I've got on my old spangled tights underneath, and I tell him he goes up or I do."

"But, of course, after that you didn't have to," Pa Darby continued. "Boy-Joe comes over to me and I can see he's scared. But he says, 'Okay, Pop.'

"Well, the bag is filled, so we both step through our trapezes on our chutes, and get ready to run.

"I nod at the spieler, give the office to the band leader and yell, 'Leggo, gentlemen! All aboard for cloudland!'

"The four poles come down ker-thump! The spieler lets loose a yell, and the band busts into 'Hail, Columbia!' The old bag jumps up, yanks the slack out of our chute shrouds, and in half a second we're shooting into the air. I see Boy-Joe setting there on his bar with his arms gripped around the side ropes and his eyes tight shut. His face is a bluish-gray. But it all seems like yesterday to me and I hang by my knees, same as I always uster.

"But when I clumb back on my trap, figuring that maybe what I'd done had pepped Boy-Joe up, I see him setting there, his arms gripped around the side ropes. He is only five feet, six inches away from me, so I can talk to him easy. I tell him to open his eyes. He says, 'Yes,' but very absent-minded like, and he doesn't open his eyes.

" 'Well, kid,' I says to him finally, 'here we are at 1000 feet. I'm going to cut loose now, kid, and down I go. And when you see my chute open up, you cut loose, too."

"I yanked my cord and, swooch! down I go! After what it seems like falling a mile, there's the usual jerk and my chute spreads out. I watch to see when Boy-Joe cuts loose. But . . . he doesn't.

"He was just setting there, and me yelling to him to cut. Only he didn't have the nerve to cut.

"Then I'm on the ground and I see him. The bag had cooled off and was flapping limp behind him. He was falling very fast. He hit in a plowed field about a mile and a half on the other side of Belmont. Well, Belmont was about six or eight towns back before we got to this burg. We stayed along with the show, but we didn't feel like doing much. We felt kind of tired all the time, didn't we, Ma? And this afternoon Gamble let us out. We're living in a boarding house uptown, Ma and I, and everything's really very okay."

"We got a hunnerd and eighty-five dollars," Ma said proudly. "We're paid up on the room a week in advance, too. Besides that, we'd oughter hear from our ad in The Billboard by Monday at latest."

"The Rainbow's Source"

THIS landscape is the fifty-first in a series of masterpieces which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest treasures is placed in the alcove to the left of the entrance. Each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities of its history. The complete series will serve as an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. The story of the landscape follows:

The landscapes of John Henry Twachtman are among the most charming which have been produced by American painters. This artist, whose work long went unrecognized, even after his death in 1902, was very markedly under the influence of the "impressionist" school of France, the storm center of late nineteenth century painting. However, so completely were its manifestations ignored in America at that period, that the work of our native painters of light and color failed to arouse even an enthusiastic dislike.

Twachtman was one of the first American artists to be affected by the new movement. He was born in Cincinnati in 1853 and studied in New York and in Munich before going to Paris, where his style of work gradually swung from the academic standard towards the freer realism of the Plein Air group. It was the aim of Monet, leader of this school, and of his followers, such as Sisley and Pissarro, to show the changes in color which were effected by light. To carry out their experiments they found the open air a much more suitable workshop than the studio, for the colors of objects appeared more brilliant and pure in the natural light. Thence is derived their name, pleinairists.

They also found that in order to express this vibrant brilliance with pigment, broken color was the most successful method. That involves the juxtaposition of very small areas of pure pigment instead of colors previously mixed on the artist's palette; in other words, the placing of a bit of blue next to yellow instead of a blending of the two into a spot of green. The realism of this school was implied in the belief that it was only the momentary impression which could be true, since the rapidly changing light causes similar rapid changes in the appearance of the object to the eye of man. As a result, the artist sought to transfer to canvas such instantaneous, fleeting views.

IT WAS particularly during the last decade of his life that Twachtman was following in the path of this school, and his landscapes of the period are entirely different from his earlier Munich work. The sincere, elusive beauty of these scenes, which have come to be considered his most characteristic production, lies in the soft color which takes on the opalescence of iridescent glass.

In no painting is that quality more apparent that in "The Rainbow's Source," purchased by the museum in 1921. As the mountain stream comes splashing down over the rocks the soft light on it is split up and reflected in rainbow tints, with gray blues and varied greens predominating; the pale yellow of the light lends it warmth. The softness of the tints and the lack of definite outline in the forms of rocks and trees are typical of the methods of the impressionists. The manner in which the pigment is put on the canvas in small irregular spots creates a pulsation of light throughout the canvas. The artist has passed on to us his momentary glimpse of a shining, colorful effect of light and atmosphere.

By Amy Alison Porter

DO YOU THINK of baking as a fine art which can be mastered only after years of patient practice? I wish you could have been with me at a luncheon little Mrs. Paul Sutton gave one day last June, back in my old home town in Iowa!

Mary Sutton is very young—barely 21. Until she married, a year ago, she didn't know what an oven and a mixing bowl looked like! Yet here she was, proudly bringing in to her pretty luncheon table a cake that would have made any old-fashioned, long-experienced cook green with envy! A glorious, airy-light, velvety-textured layer cake, covered with the most heavenly boiled frosting I've ever put in my mouth.

"It's one of Frances Lee Barton's cakes," she said, when I went into ecstacies. "Honestly, I can never thank that woman enough! Paul adores home-made cake and when I think of the terrible stuff I used to serve him before I began to listen in to Mrs. Barton's broadcasts—!"

And Mary wasn't the only one. Wherever I went I heard women talking about cake-making—and about Frances Lee Barton. At bridge tables and porch parties and church socials, it was "Frances Lee Barton says—" and "according to Frances Lee Barton you should—" and oftenest of all, "this is one of Frances Lee Barton's cakes. Yes—isn't it a wonder?"

Finally I said to one of my friends, "Do tell me more about this Frances Lee Barton."

"Why," she cried, "she's the woman who broadcasts the General Foods home baking course. All the young marrieds, and we old girls too, who used to think we were pretty good, tune in regularly. She tells things about cake-making you never knew before—just how to blend and bake different kinds, and how to measure more exactly, and what brands of ingredients are best to use—and those tested recipes from the General Foods kitchens are marvelous!"

I Visit Frances Lee Barton in the Radio Kitchen

When I went back to New York I was good and curious about Frances Lee Barton and I jumped at the chance to go to the General Foods kitchen one Thursday morning and see her put on a broadcast.

I was shown into a little reception room, separated from the radio kitchen by a glass partition. There I could see everything as plainly as if I were in the kitchen myself . . . the microphone beside the table, on which were laid out ingredients and utensils for a cake . . . a girl in a green smock taking two beautifully light, golden brown layers out of the oven . . . the announcer bending to catch a whiff of that fresh-baked goodness.

And this rosy-cheeked, dark-haired little woman in the smock of sunflower yellow—could this be Frances Lee Barton? I knew it must be as soon as I heard that soft, rich voice, so full of genuine friendliness and humor, without a trace of the condescending "radio manner" that we listeners have to bear so often. Just talking without effort or speechifying as if we were in her own kitchen together!

She was telling some funny remark that one of her children had made (she has eight children—imagine, eight—and she still has time for radio broadcasting!) and you knew from the way she spoke just what a delightful, twinkling-eyed mother she must be. But soon the serious business of the morning began. The flour sifter turned merrily, snowing down a fine thick mist of Swans Down Cake Flour, and all the time Mrs. Barton was telling us what kind of cake this was going to be—making us fairly taste its soft melting deliciousness!

Now came a pause and Mrs. Barton spoke more earnestly. For she had come to what she called "the biggest little step in baking"—the adding of the baking powder.

In her hand she held a tall can of Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, and she was explaining just what that double-action does for a cake. More than explaining—demonstrating! Proving just why this baking powder produces such miraculous results—just what Calumet does to cake batter to make cake more ethereally light and fine—to give it a more exquisite, velvety texture than you could ever get with any other baking powder!

She put two level teaspoons of Calumet in a glass, added two teaspoons of water and stirred. The tiny fine bubbles rose slowly, half filling the glass. This, she told us, was Calumet's first action, which starts the leavening properly in the mixing bowl when liquid is added to the dry ingredients.

Then she turned and set the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. The mixture in the glass, so quiet a moment before, began to respond to the heat, just as a Calumet batter does in the oven. Thousands of bubbles began to rise once more . . . up . . . up . . . higher and higher . . . to the top of the glass. Graphically illustrating how Calumet's second action, held in reserve to act in the heat of the oven, sends a cake up to heights of soft airy perfection!

Again and again, she tried to bake the delicious home-made cake her husband craved. Again and again she met with failure—costly, humiliating failure. Until one day a friend told her the new principle in cake baking, learned from Frances Lee Barton's radio course in home baking. Then came success—beyond her fondest dreams!

Here then was the explanation of the never-failing success of the Calumet cakes Mrs. Barton had taught the women out home to bake! Here was one vitally important reason why young brides could turn out cakes of light delicate fineness—why older women were letting their traditional recipes gather dust on the shelf! Frances Lee Barton had shown them how to make cakes with undreamed-of success, thanks to accurate application of Calumet's controlled and balanced Double-Action, in recipes worked out with scientific precision in General Foods Kitchens.

There cooking experts had actually baked 2080 cakes in leavening tests—baked them with different types of baking powder in varying proportions—to determine scientifically the ideal type of baking powder, and the ideal amount, required for perfect leavening! I did not wonder that Mrs. Barton was pleading earnestly with her listeners to follow her recipes exactly—to use the right baking powder and measure "on the level"!

Just Pennies—but they count this Year!

And what was this Mrs. Barton was saying about the usual Calumet proportion? Only one level teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour? I thought of recipes that called for two or even three teaspoons of baking powder to the cup of flour, and how often, in spite of this large quantity, I used to hear "My cake didn't rise right this time." How could such a little Calumet make cakes rise so perfectly? But Mrs. Barton was giving me the answer. The extra efficiency, the controlled Double-Action of Calumet! What a discovery for the thousands of women who must watch the pennies nowadays! This marvelous baking powder actually saves money! Yes, for the price is reasonable, the can large—and you use less.

"How many women are getting this good news?" I wondered. And after the broadcast, as we sat in the radio kitchen, enjoying that lovely, melting Calumet cake right down to the last crumb on our plates, Mrs. Barton told me of her thousands and thousands of radio friends. It was a tale so amazing that I could hardly have believed it, if I hadn't known of those hundreds of women in one little Iowa city who swear by Frances Lee Barton and Calumet.

She told me a tale of groaning mailsacks—of letters bearing the mark of nearly every post office east of the Rockies. Letters full of intimate details of daily living—with thankfulness and innocent pride in every line. Stories of old unhappy failures now forgotten—stories of glorious new successes, of husbands beaming with boyish approval, of guests outspoken in friendly admiration, of neighbors revealing new respect for the maker of the best cakes they ever tasted!

Touching letters—amusing letters—letters that bring the happy tears to Frances Lee Barton's soft brown eyes! "I'm the luckiest woman in the world," she told me, "to be able to bring so much happiness to so many other women, just by telling them how to make good cake!"

Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, is at all grocers—everywhere. It is now the world's largest-selling baking powder. Get a can of Calumet to-day—see how it improves all your cakes, cookies, quick breads . . . everything you bake!

TOY TALKIES

Walter Quermann

THE EYES OF THE NIGHT

This is a game that can be played by any child. All that is needed are scissors, paste and some cardboard. The directions for playing "Toy Talkies" are given at the bottom of the game.

THE PLAYERS

OLGA WOLFHOUNDSKI—A newcomer in Coblenz.
SHERLOCK BONES—A great detective and friend of Brickey.

(Sherlock Bones and Brickey enter.)

SHERLOCK BONES—Sh-h-h. I think someone is following us.

BRICKEY—(In a hushed voice.) G-gosh—what will we do?

SHERLOCK BONES—Let us walk around the block and make sure. (They leave and a moment later Olga Wolfhoundski, wearing a disguise, enters.)

OLGA WOLFHOUNDSKI—I hate to do this, but it is the only way. (She leaves and Brickey and Sherlock Bones enter.)

SHERLOCK BONES—Did you notice that woman? She had a shawl over her head.

BRICKEY—I didn't see anyone.

SHERLOCK BONES—You stay here. I will find out who she is. (He leaves.)

BRICKEY—I don't like this business at all. (Sherlock enters disguised as an old woman. He silently crosses the stage and leaves.)

BRICKEY—Gosh, she must be the one who was following us. (Olga Wolfhoundski, still wearing disguise, enters and slowly crosses stage.)

BRICKEY—(Thinking aloud.) This must be Sherlock wearing a disguise. (Then aloud.) Oh! Sherlock. An old woman passed. Is she the one who is following us? (Olga leaves.)

BRICKEY—That settles it—I'm going. Sherlock can at least answer me. (He leaves and Sherlock Bones, minus his disguise, and Olga Wolfhoundski, still wearing hers, enter.)

SHERLOCK BONES—I understand perfectly. You and your brother are of old Russian royalty, and knowing us but such a short time you followed us to see if we were enemies or not. Isn't that right?

OLGA WOLFHOUNDSKI—Mercy! You must be able to read my mind.

SHERLOCK BONES—Ha-ha! Just simple deduction. I would like to have you and your brother pay us a visit tomorrow evening.

OLGA WOLFHOUNDSKI—Oh! Thank you.

SHERLOCK BONES—Now get rid of your disguise. I see Brickey coming up the street. Perhaps he would like to see you safely home. (She leaves and Brickey enters.)

BRICKEY—(Angry.) Why didn't you answer me when I talked to you? Did you think you could fool me with that disguise? (Olga Wolfhoundski enters, minus her disguise.)

BRICKEY—(Surprised.) Olga! What are you doing here?

SHERLOCK BONES—My power of deduction tells me that she has lost her way.

OLGA WOLFHOUNDSKI—Oh, Mr. Bones. You are very clever.

BRICKEY—Please let me see you safely home.

OLGA WOLFHOUNDSKI—That will be grand. Good night, Mr. Bones. (They leave.)

SHERLOCK BONES—Brickey is funny, but I wonder what he was angry about. And what he meant when he said I didn't "answer" him. H-m—h-m. more mystery.

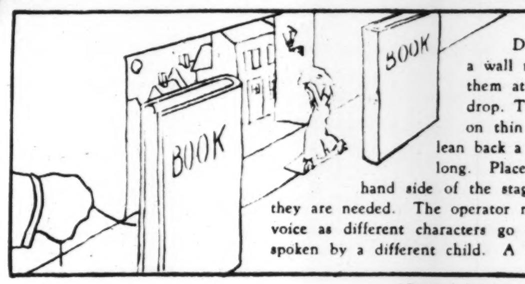
Next week: The Aristocratic Wolfhoundskis.



DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it on a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stand them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back-drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they will lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right-hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. A flashlight can be used as a spotlight.

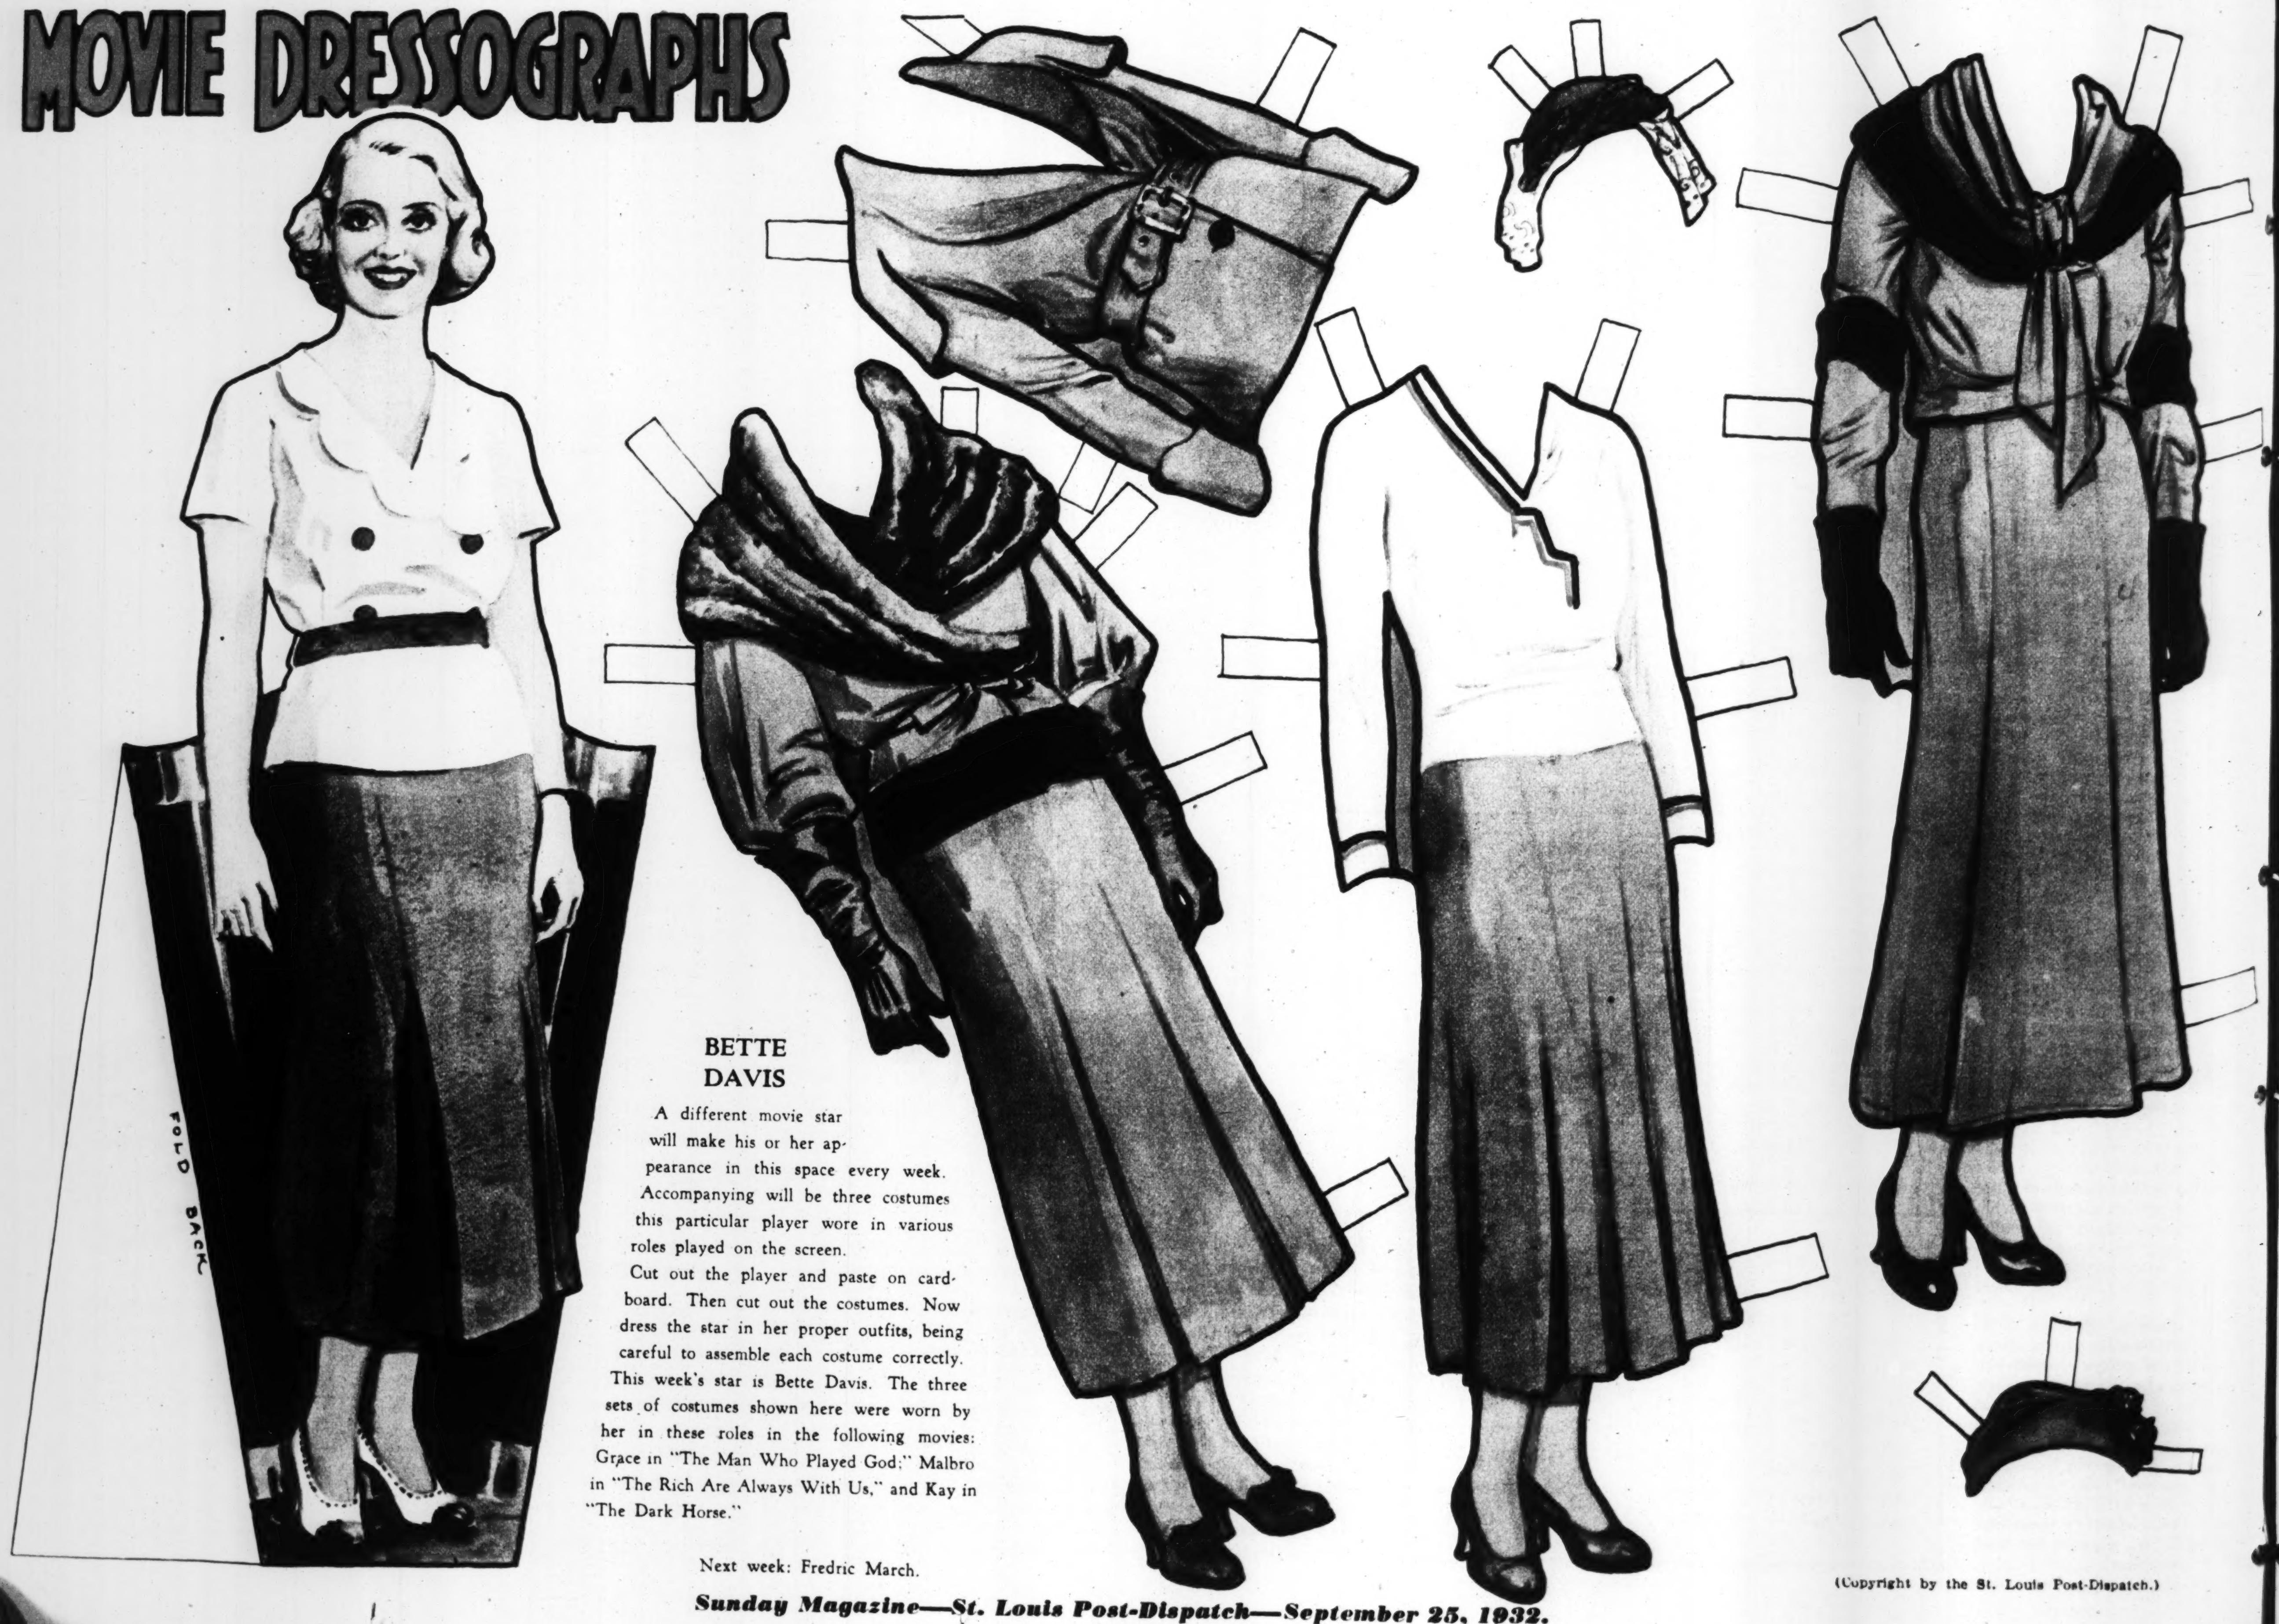
MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS



BETTE DAVIS

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen.

Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in her proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly. This week's star is Bette Davis. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by her in these roles in the following movies: Grace in "The Man Who Played God;" Malbro in "The Rich Are Always With Us," and Kay in "The Dark Horse."

Next week: Fredric March.

I'M GOING TO THE PARTY TONIGHT AN' IF THEY ASK IF I WANT SECONDS ON THE ICE CREAM SHOULD I SAY, "YOU SAID IT?"
OH, MY, NO!
NOW WHEN I'M ASKED ABOUT A SECOND PLATE I ALWAYS SAY, "YES, PLEASE, THANK YOU."
SO YA WOULDN'T SAY, "YA SAID IT, BUDDY."?
WELL, WHAT IF WE'RE PLAYIN' A GAME AN' SOMEONE STEPS ON MY TOE, SHOULD I PASTE HIM?
HEAVENS, NO!
WHEN SOMEONE STEPS ON MY TOE I, ALWAYS SAY, "PARDON ME", SO THEY WON'T FEEL EMBARRASSED AT HAVING DONE IT.
SO IT WOULDN'T BE A GOOD IDEA TO PASTE HIM ONE?
GRACIOUS, NO!
I DON'T KNOW, I GUESS I'D BETTER WATCH YOU DURIN' THE EVENIN'.
I DON'T SEE WHY YOU HAVE TO DO THAT. MY FRIEND, I'VE ALREADY TOLD YOU HOW I ACT ON SUCH OCCASIONS.
WELL, I DON'T WANT ANY SLIRUPS, CAUSE I WANT TO BE SURE TO DO JUST THE OPPOSITE.
